NRA PLANS CAMPAIGN ON "CHISELERS"

INSULL HOPES TO EVADE U. S. RETURN FADE

TURKEY'S STAND ON EXTRADITION IS HELD LEGAL

BY JOHN LLOYD
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Istanbul, April 7 (AP)—The expulsion of Samuel Insull within a week for trial in the United States on fraud charges seemed certain tonight because of a decision forbidding his appeal from a Turkish extradition ruling.

Attorney General Kenan Bey announced the aged former utilities executive cannot question Turkey's stand on the legality of plans to relinquish him to American officers, and simultaneously a Turko-American extradition treaty moved toward final approval.

Nevertheless, the one-time Chicagoan's attorneys were still determined tonight to go before the courts with what they called an iron-clad argument in favor of their right to appeal.

Two Petitions Filed

The lawyers prepared an eleven-page document based on the plea that Insull's detention is a violation of international law and, if the circumstances were reversed, the United States would not follow the procedure Turkey has taken with the American fugitive.

For eighteen months, in Greece and Turkey, Insull has wage a successful fight against extradition to the United States, where charges await him in connection with the failure of the far-flung Insull utilities.

Insull has two petitions before the courts—one requesting provisional release and the other seeking the right of appeal against detention.

If he should be provisionally released some informed quarters believed he would be apprehended immediately on some new charge.

The consensus in reliable quarters was that the white-haired man, who fled from his erstwhile haven in Greece three weeks ago into the arms of Turkish officials, has little chance of out-maneuvering Turkish authorities, who kept him under close guard in the hospital ward of a detention home.

The United States embassy did not outline its next steps. It was believed, however, that the former Chicagoan would be taken into American custody on papers delivered through the embassy.

(A Washington dispatch said Burton Y. Berry, American vice consul at Istanbul, was designated by President Roosevelt to take custody of Insull and expressed the belief Insull would be started back to the United States early next week.)

The S. S. Executive, an American boat, will sail from here next Tuesday. Another United States export line ship, the Excelsior, sails on April 24.

Attaches at the embassy said they had heard nothing new regarding Washington's intentions as to an early extradition.

Langdon Is Sued By Wife Number 3

Los Angeles, April 7. (AP)—Harry Langdon, film comedian recently embarked on his third matrimonial venture, today faced suit for $21,078.57 which his second wife claimed due as arrears in alimony and support costs.

The suit was filed by Mrs. Helen Walton Langdon, based upon a decree in New York state March 16, 1932, which she alleged ordered the comedian to pay her $150 a week until August, 1932, and $200 a week thereafter.

STRIKES BALK AT BOARD PLAN

Nash Labor Trouble Is Still Problem for Federal Body

Detroit, April 7 (AP)—Admittedly nonplussed by the failure of its plan for a settlement of the strike in the Nash Motors company's Wisconsin plants and a threatened walk-out of tool and diemakers in local job shops, the federal automobile labor board continued today its efforts to find a solution of the labor trouble harrying the automobile industry.

Dr. Leo Wolman, chairman of the labor tribunal expressed his disappointment when informed that employes of the Kenosha plant of the Nash company had rejected the board's settlement plan, born of a three-day meeting of the board in Wisconsin this week. "I suppose it can't be helped," he said.

Tool Strike Threatened

He indicated, however, that the board still was in frequent telephonic communication with Nash officials.

Shortly before word was received of the failure of the plan for a return to work of the 4,600 workers in the Nash plants and the Seaman body plant, tool and die makers voted unanimously, their representatives said, to strike on Thursday unless a "considered offer," was made by their job shop employers. Officers of the Mechanics Educational Society, the tool and die-makers' organization, said 2,200 men suspended work today to cast

Two Suits Against Fairbanks Dropped

Los Angeles, April 7. (AP)—Through his lawyer and without explanation, Jorgen Dietz, young chemist, has caused to be dismissed the two suits he filed against Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., movie actor and former husband of Actress Joan Crawford, causing a sensation here more than a year ago.

The dismissals were disclosed by court records today.

Asking $50,000 damages, one complaint charged young Fairbanks with alienating the affections of Dietz' former wife, Solveig, erstwhile Hollywood scenario writer. In the other case, Dietz accused Fairbanks of causing him to be detained and questioned by the district attorney on a false charge of extortion, and sought $20,000 damages.

HUNT SPREADS TO OKLAHOMA FOR OUTLAWS

BOYD RELEASED BY BARROW AND HIS COMPANIONS

Fort Scott, Kas., April 7 (AP)—One of the greatest determined manhunts in the southwest's history—with federal and state authorities cooperating—was pushed tonight for Clyde Barrow, ruthless Texas killer, who eluded capture yesterday after another slaying and kidnaping.

The search for Barrow, his gunwoman sweetheart, Bonnie Parker, and a lieutenant believed to be either Raymond Hamilton or Henry Methvin, escaped Texas convicts, turned southward into Oklahoma this afternoon.

Police broadcast a report that a trio resembling the Barrow gang was seen headed toward Guthrie from Stillwater, Okla., in a blue sedan. Heavily armed state and federal officers rushed to the Guthrie area.

Don't Fear Capture

Early today Barrow and his companions released Police Chief Percy Boyd of Commerce, Okla., near here, after holding him as a hostage since Friday morning when he was slightly wounded and kidnaped in an encounter in which Cal Campbell, Miami, Okla., constable, was slain by machine gun fire.

Riding a break-neck speed over side roads in the Oklahoma-Kansas-Missouri border section, the outlaws successfully dodged scores of officers and national guardsmen after the shooting near Commerce, Okla.

"Barrow and his companions have no fear of being captured," Boyd said. "They think they are too smart to be caught."

But authorities were determined to hunt down the 24-year-old gunman whose desperate career has been blood-splotched with the killing of nine officers.

Department of justice agents were acting upon orders from Attorney General Cummings "to utilize every resource" to capture the outlaw and his companions.

After returning to Commerce, Okla., Police Chief Boyd said today he was unable to identify Barrow's male companion as Raymond Hamilton, but believed he tallied more with the description of Henry Methvin, who was freed with Hamilton from a Texas state prison farm by Barrow recently.

Barrow and Bonnie Parker are accused of having killed two highway patrolmen in cold-blood near Grapevine, Tex., last Sunday.

With hundreds of officers searching the highways for the killers, Capt. D. E. Hammer of the Texas rangers issued a warning to motorists to observe instantly orders or signals to stop. Any motorist who failed to obey would jeopardize his life, Hammer said.

No Cigars For Bonnie

Boyd, with a bandage covering a wound in his scalp from a machine gun bullet, described Barrow as acting "like he owned the earth."

"He thinks quite a lot of himself," said Boyd. "Bonnie is a lot like him, but she thinks quite a lot of Barrow."

"They said they were sorry they had to shoot Campbell," the officer said, "but they kept joking about it all afternoon."

The outlaws drove into Fort Scott twice last night without being observed. Boyd said Barrow bought a newspaper at a drugstore and learned then that Constable Campbell was dead.

Bonnie Parker told the kidnaped police chief indignantly that she was not a cigar smoker as had been reported. She said the stories started because she had posed for a photograph with Barrow and held his cigar in her mouth.

Boyd disclosed that the gunwoman carried a white rabbit as a pet. During the wild ride, he said, she frequently reached into the back of the car for a carrot to feed the rabbit.

Former President Sues Butler For $100,000 Damage

Indianapolis, April 7 (AP)—Dr. Walter Scott Athearn, former president of Butler university here, today filed suit against the university for $100,000.

Dr. Athearn alleged in his complaint that unwholesome publicity attending his dismissal as president of Butler last October damaged his reputation. He was president of the university for two years.

He said in his complaint, filed in superior court, that he met with opposition from the directors when he undertook an inquiry into costs of operating the university. He alleged his investigation showed "dishonesty and immorality in the

HOUSE OPPOSES TAX INCREASES

Representatives Frown On High Levies in Election Year

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Opposition to the Couzens proposal to add 10 per cent to all individual tax returns for one year was expressed today by house Democratic leaders, who predicted its rejection by the house unless President Roosevelt gave the word more revenue was needed.

Meanwhile, Senator LaFollette (R-Wis) predicted approval of his amendment to subject tax returns to public inspection, saying it appeared "doubly important" in view of the senate's banking committee's disclosures of "technically legal tax avoidance" by big taxpayers.

Sentiment Unfavorable

Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee, in announcing his acceptance of the Couzens amendment before it was offered, could make no predictions as to how the house would receive it, but Representative Byrns of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, and Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the ways and means committee, left little doubt about it.

Byrns told newspapermen the house would have to be well informed of the need of additional revenue before it approved the proposal. House sentiment generally appeared unfavorable, based on hesitancy to raise taxes too much in an election year.

Agreeing with Byrns that no further income taxes should be voted unless approved by the administration, Doughton said:

"Of course congress increased the financial burden of the government when it overrode the presidential veto on veterans benefits and federal salary restoration. If the president or Secretary Morgenthau thinks this amount of extra revenue is needed the taxes must be increased. If that comes about congress must realize that it is its own fault."

Pointing out his amendment did not call for full publicity in the sense that all returns would be made public as they came in, LaFollette said all he wanted was "for these returns to be made public records."

Senate leaders look for final passage of the tax bill by Tuesday.

Beulah Smelt Run Reaches Its Height

Beulah, Mich., April 7. (AP)—The annual smelt run was expected to reach its height here tonight—and conservation officers made plans to handle 8,000 visitors.

A drop in the temperature of the water at the 4 a. m. dipping period this morning resulted in smaller catches but few failed to come away from the stream without at least a fair number of the little, silvery fish which annually come up from the lake to spawn.

About 40 tons of smelt have been shipped out of Beulah since the run opened.

Norway Villages Swept By Huge Waves; 50 Dead

BY EINAR ONSUM
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Oslo, Norway, April 7. (AP)—A huge crag weighing thousands of tons fell into the sea on Norway's west coast early today and caused huve waves that trapped sleeping residents of two villages, at least fifty of whom drowned.

Many other inhabitants of the fishing hamlets, Tafjord and Fjoraa, on opposite sides of Korsnaes Fjord, were still missing tonight and were believed victims of the sudden, terrifying disaster—the worst Norway has experienced in years.

Tragedies Revealed

First a small part of the cliff, long regarded as a menace, fell, throwing up a small wave. Two other falls followed in rapid succession, just after 3 a. m., and sent a wall of water as high as 30 feet sweeping over the flimsy houses, and coursing relentlessly a half mile inland.

Many of the small structures were carried off like doll houses. Others were reduced to splinters by the heavy impact of the mass of water. Boats in the harbor were tossed upon the land like toys. Motor cars and other vehicles were borne far inland.

A clergyman who was visiting his parents in Tafjord for a birthday celebration gave the Associated Press this account:

"I was awakened by a noise of rushing waters and the shaking of the house.

"It was only by clinging to the side of the bed that I saved myself. The next moment the windows of the room collapsed—then came the terrifying flood of water.

"Soon I realized the water was rising almost as high as the house. Toward me, borne along by the surging inflow, came a man, helpless but conscious.

"I opened the door and clutched at him as he was being swept past To my amazement I found he was a relative of mine, named Tafjord, the same as the village."

Another eyewitness, who described the waves as coming in series of three, each more violent than the predecessors, related this experience:

"Mothers clutching children to their breasts were caught up and swirled away on the third and most violent wave, as the fathers fought frantically but in vain to rescue their families.

"One of the most pathetic sights was a father who was seen hurrying to the brow of the hill, carrying his tiny son in his arms.

"Reaching the summit, the man apparently thought he was safe, but the water rushed upon him higher and higher until he was last seen standing there holding the boy above the water as the waves edied about his neck.

"The boy was later found alive

UNITED LINES TO REORGANIZE

System Wants To Be Able to Bid on New Airmail Contracts

BY F. J. STARZEL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—Immediate reorganization of United Aircraft & Transport Corp.—separating air lines and manufacturing subsidiaries—was proposed today by Philip G. Johnson, president, "in order that the United Air Lines system may be in a position to participate in the bidding for air mail contracts in the future."

His announcement was the first official intimation from any air mail carrier that reorganization might be effected to qualify for bidding on mail routes.

Congress has not enacted legislation covering permanent awards of new contracts, but the administration has indicated that far-reaching changes in corporate structures would be necessary before any of the companies, whose contracts were cancelled, would be eligible again to enter bids.

Affects Four Lines

The United proposal was explained in a letter to stockholders accompanying the corporation's 1933 financial report. It announced the share-owners annual meeting, scheduled for April 24, has been postponed by the directors until the reorganization plan can be completed.

Johnson's letter pointed out "it is highly probable" that divorcement of carriers and manufacturers "will be stipulated as a condition to the reletting of air mail contracts."

The air lines affected and cities between which they carried mail prior to Postmaster General James A. Farley's cancellation of all contracts are:

Boeing Air Transport, Inc.—Chicago and San Francisco.

Pacific Air Transport—Seattle and Washington.

National Air Transport, Inc.—New York and Chicago, Dallas and Chicago.

Varney Air Lines, Inc.—Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Manufacturing subsidiaries would be grouped into two organizations, Johnson's letter stated, with the eastern group centered in the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. and associated firms in Hartford, Conn., and the Boeing Airplane Co., in Seattle, providing the nucleus for the western concerns.

Consolidated net income for the corporation in 1933 was shown in the report as $1,176,111, equal to 56 cents a share on the common stock.

In 1932, net income after preferred dividends was $1,107,658, equal to 53 cents a common share.

Five Are Rescued From Arctic Ice

Moscow, April 7 (AP)—Russian aviators today rescued five members of a group of 88 who have been adrift since February 15 on the Arctic ice-pack off Siberia.

The fliers Kamanin and Molokoff hopped to the floating ice camp of the castaways from Cape Van Karem, Siberia, and returned to the latter place with those believed the weakest of the party.

Eighty-three men now remain on the ice, the aviator Babushkin, who had been a member of the party, having made his way to the mainland after ten women and two children were saved by the flier Liapidevsky.

The Russians have been marooned on the floe since their boat, the Cheliuskin, was crushed by ice and sank on a return trip from Wrangel island.

Plane Damaged; Fliers Uninjured

Houghton, Mich., April 7 (AP)—Russel J. McLaren and Roland Pierson, Grand Rapids aviators, escaped injury Saturday when their plane struck an air hole in an attempted landing on the ice of Portage Lake and was badly damaged.

The fliers had returned to the mainland from Isle Royle Friday night after an aerial survey of the moose herds on the island. At the time of the accident they were flying from Calumet to Houghton.

DEMOS LINE UP SLATE FOR '34

Comstock and E. Shields Definitely Chosen to Head Ticket

Lansing, Mich., April 7 (AP)—A slate consisting of Gov. William A. Comstock for re-election and Edmund C. Shields, Lansing attorney, for the United States senate—if he will run—has been agreed upon by controlling factions in the Democratic state organization, it was learned today.

Party leaders were inclined to discount reports from Washington that Arthur J. Lacy, of Detroit, might be a candidate for the senate. They were interested, keenly, however, in the announcement today that Claude S. Carney, another Democratic leader, would be a candidate for the senatorial nomination.

Horatio J. Abbott, national committeeman, was inclined to believe that the party would not nominate a man from Detroit as it is the turn of an outstate candidate. Detroit now has a senator in James Couzens. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, who will seek Republican renomination, is from Grand Rapids.

Shields might even be "drafted" at the pre-primary convention and it is a foregone conclusion that Gov. Comstock will be endorsed for renomination.

The makeup of the Republican ticket appears vague. Frank D. Fitzgerald is the only announced gubernatorial candidate and although petitions are in circulation to place Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, of Detroit, in the race for governor, he has not yet announced his intentions. Speculation also is rife as to what former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck will do, friends stating he would "make an announcement soon."

HOME BUILDING CREDIT LOANS

Government to Bolster Mortgage Market; Risk Slight

BY SAM BLEDSOE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Roosevelt administration plans to place government credit back of a home building program which is expected to put more than a billion dollars of cautious private capital to work.

Frank C. Walker, director of the national emergency council, said legislation to carry out the proposal probably would be sent to congress within ten days.

He told newspapermen the measure in view would enable the treasury to guarantee the interest and perhaps the principal of long-term mortgages that would be issued on the new homes.

"It has been the feeling for a long time," Walker said, "that the mortgage market needs support. The proposal I am outlining is tentative but it contemplates establishing requirements for a standard type of mortgage, maturing in 15 or 20 years. All the costs for the building would be taken care of by the amortized mortgage and there would be no need for a second mortgage.

No Loans to Business

"We have made a survey and feel that the government could guarantee the interest and perhaps the principal of the mortgages with little risk to the treasury."

Walker said a survey had convinced those who drafted the plan that banks and lending agencies would readily furnish money to contractors for building if the government "insured" the mortgages. He added, however, that lending to put up small business structures was not contemplated.

It was understood the proposal to back lending to build small business plants was opposed on the grounds it would lead to an over expansion in industries and businesses already overexpanded.

A study has shown, it was said, there is a shortage of small homes, particularly in city suburbs, small towns and the country.

Walker said the plan might extend to small apartment type houses of not more than four stories, but it was intended to stimulate primarily the construction of private homes."

Walker said one agency would direct the home program and that various related activities including slum clearance and subsistence homestead activities would be under this organization.

He said NRA and its administrator, Hugh S. Johnson, would participate in the attempt to spur capital goods industries but "I don't know whether Johnson will direct the home building plan."

SIGNS OF RECOVERY

New York, April 7 (AP)—Residential building—one of the nation's largest potential sources of employment—is showing stirrings of recovery this spring.

Latest statistics indicate, however, that little more than a change of trend has occurred. The volume of contracting for new homes is still but a fraction of what was considered normal in the years 1922-1930.

This industry, still wallowing deep in depression, is therefore awaiting with keen interest details of the plans under consideration in Washington for a nation-wide home building and renovation campaign.

Strange Light In Breast Of Woman Puzzles Doctors

Trieste, Italy, April 7 (AP)—Doctors from all parts of Italy came here today to see, and wonder at, a strange light emanating from the breast of Anna Monaro, a patient in the Pirano hospital.

Dr. Sambro, head of the institution, ordered the isolation of the woman for a careful examination. He said hospital authorities already had excluded the possibility of a hoax, since they thoroughly searched her bed to forestall an attempt to hide a flashlight there.

Signora Monaro herself had remained in ignorance regarding the tremendous stir created throughout Italy by the phenomenon. When a daughter told her about it today she was greatly troubled and said her sleep had been disturbed recently.

STRONG CASES OF VIOLATIONS GO TO COURTS

UNCERTAINTY AS TO ENFORCEMENT OF CODES ENDED

BY JAMES COPE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—A general onslaught of court action against NRA code "chiselers" was ordered today by Hugh S. Johnson.

"The time has come," said NRA's administrator in letters to all code authorities and field representatives "when uncertainty as to enforcement by legal proceeding must end.

Want Strong Cases

"We must now proceed on the basis that one who is violating his code and who is not ready and anxious to comply and make restitution when informed of his non-compliance, must be brought swiftly and surely before the enforcement agencies of government."

To suit action to the word, Johnson ordered that:

Ten days hence, state compliance directors will begin handing all clear-out violation cases directly to their federal district attorneys, instead of first asking advice in Washington.

Within the ten days, state directors, code authorities and local compliance boards will send all good cases in their files to the newly created NRA litigation division here, so the best may be returned immediately to the district attorneys for action.

NRA officials said frankly the new policy was based on success in court with test cases just completed, including the supreme court's ruling for the government in the New York state milk law case and convictions won by NRA.

All hands were warned not to file weak cases, the objective being to obtain prompt convictions.

The new Johnson policy was announced shortly after the national emergency council had said the consumer activities of both NRA and agriculture would be consolidated under the council in a division that would immediately create 112 consumer councils throughout the country on an experimental basis. Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey will direct the job.

The chief duty of the local councils will be to analyze the effect of price changes on consumers and the reaction on business.

Order Is Uphill

Another energizing development of the day was a ruling by Comptroller General McCarl upholding a presidential order requiring all sellers and manufacturers bidding for government contracts to file certificates of compliance with their respective codes before their offers can be considered.

The McCarl ruling effectively shuts out from government business and all state or local business partially financed by the United States, all firms which attempt to disregard codes or which, like the Ford Motor company, comply but refuse to file affirmative commitment to recognize the code as binding. Since the manufacturer must affirm as well as the seller, Ford retailers would not be eligible to obtain contracts unless the firm changes

The dismissals were disclosed by court records today.

Asking $50,000 damages, one complaint charged young Fairbanks with alienating the affections of Dietz' former wife, Solveig, erstwhile Hollywood scenario writer. In the other case, Dietz accused Fairbanks of causing him to be detained and questioned by the district attorney on a false charge of extortion, and sought $20,000 damages.

HUNT SPREADS TO OKLAHOMA FOR OUTLAWS

BOYD RELEASED BY BARROW AND HIS COMPANIONS

Fort Scott, Kas., April 7 (AP)—One of the greatest determined manhunts in the southwest's history—with federal and state authorities cooperating—was pushed tonight for Clyde Barrow, ruthless Texas killer, who eluded capture yesterday after another slaying and kidnaping.

The search for Barrow, his gunwoman sweetheart, Bonnie Parker, and a lieutenant believed to be either Raymond Hamilton or Henry Methvin, escaped Texas convicts, turned southward into Oklahoma this afternoon.

Police broadcast a report that a trio resembling the Barrow gang was seen headed toward Guthrie from Stillwater, Okla., in a blue sedan. Heavily armed state and federal officers rushed to the Guthrie area.

Don't Fear Capture

Early today Barrow and his companions released Police Chief Percy Boyd of Commerce, Okla., near here, after holding him as a hostage since Friday morning when he was slightly wounded and kidnaped in an encounter in which Cal Campbell, Miami, Okla., constable, was slain by machine gun fire.

Riding a break-neck speed over side roads in the Oklahoma-Kansas-Missouri border section, the outlaws successfully dodged scores of officers and national guardsmen after the shooting near Commerce, Okla.

"Barrow and his companions have no fear of being captured," Boyd said. "They think they are too smart to be caught."

But authorities were determined to hunt down the 24-year-old gunman, whose desperate career has been blood-splotched with the killing of nine officers.

Department of justice agents were acting upon orders from Attorney General Cummings "to utilize every resource" to capture the outlaw and his companions.

After returning to Commerce, Okla., Police Chief Boyd said today he was unable to identify Barrow's male companion as Raymond Hamilton, but believed he tallied more with the description of Henry Methvin, who was freed with Hamilton from a Texas state prison farm by Barrow recently.

Barrow and Bonnie Parker are accused of having killed two highway patrolmen in cold-blood near Grapevine, Tex., last Sunday.

With hundreds of officers searching the highways for the killers, Capt. D. E. Hammer of the Texas rangers issued a warning to motorists to observe instantly orders or signals to stop. Any motorist who failed to obey would jeopardize his life, Hammer said.

No Cigars For Bonnie

Boyd, with a bandage covering a wound in his scalp from a machine gun bullet, described Barrow as acting "like he owned the earth."

"He thinks quite a lot of himself," said Boyd. "Bonnie is a lot like him, but she thinks quite a lot of Barrow."

"They said they were sorry they had to shoot Campbell," the officer said, "but they kept joking about it all afternoon."

The outlaws drove into Fort Scott twice last night without being observed. Boyd said Barrow bought a newspaper at a drugstore and learned then that Constable Campbell was dead.

Bonnie Parker told the kidnaped police chief indignantly that she was not a cigar smoker as has been reported. She said the stories started because she had posed for a photograph with Barrow and held his cigar in her mouth.

Boyd disclosed that the gunwoman carried a white rabbit as a pet. During the wild ride, he said, she frequently reached into the back of the car for a carrot to feed the rabbit.

Former President Sues Butler For $100,000 Damage

Indianapolis, April 7 (AP)—Dr. Walter Scott Athearn, former president of Butler university here, today filed suit against the university for $100,000.

Dr. Athearn alleged in his complaint that unwholesome publicity attending his dismissal as president of Butler last October damaged his reputation. He was president of the university for two years.

He said in his complaint, filed in superior court, that he met with opposition from the directors when he undertook an inquiry into costs of operating the university. He alleged his investigation showed "dishonesty and immorality on the part of certain employes."

HOUSE OPPOSES TAX INCREASES

BY D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Opposition to the Couzens proposal to add 10 per cent to all individual tax returns for one year was expressed today by house Democratic leaders, who predicted its rejection by the house unless President Roosevelt gave the world more revenue was needed.

Meanwhile, Senator LaFollette (R-Wis) predicted approval of his amendment to subject tax returns to public inspection, saying it appeared "doubly important" inspection, saying it appeared "doubly important" in view of the senate's banking committee's disclosures of "technically legal tax avoidance" by big taxpayers.

Sentiment Unfavorable

Chairman Harrison of the senate finance committee, in announcing his acceptance of the Couzens amendment before it was offered, made no predictions as to how the house would receive it, but Representative Byrsn of Tennessee, the Democratic leader, and Chairman Doughton (D-NC) of the ways and means committee, left little doubt about it.

Byrns told newspapermen the house would have to be well informed of the need of additional revenue before it approved the proposal. House sentiment generally appeared unfavorable, based on hesitancy to raise taxes too much in an election year.

Agreeing with Byrns that no further income taxes should be voted unless approved by the administration, Doughton said:

"Of course congress increased the financial burden of the government when it overrode the presidential veto on veterans benefits and federal salary restoration. If the president or Secretary Morgenthau thinks this amount of extra revenue is needed the taxes must be increased. If that comes about congress must realize that it is its own fault."

Pointing out his amendment did not call for full publicity in the sense that all returns would be made public as they came in, LaFollette said all he wanted was "for these returns to be made public records."

Senate leaders look for final passage of the tax bill by Tuesday.

Beulah Smelt Run Reaches Its Height

Beulah, Mich., April 7. (AP)—The annual smelt run was expected to reach its height here tonight—and conservation officers made plans to handle 8,000 visitors.

A drop in the temperature of the water at the 4 a. m. dipping period this morning resulted in smaller catches but few failed to come away from the stream without at least a fair number of the little, silvery fish which annually come up from the lake to spawn.

About 40 tons of smelt have been shipped out of Beulah since the run opened.

STRUCK BY CARS

Detroit, Mich., April 7. (AP)—Lyle Gayton and Theodore Meizcur were killed early Saturday when struck by automobiles in two separate accidents while walking with their wives, who were seriously injured.

Norway Villages Swept By Huge Waves; 50 Dead

BY EINAR ONSUM
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Oslo, Norway, April 7. (AP)—A huge crag weighing thousands of tons fell into the sea on Norway's west coast early today and caused huve waves that trapped sleeping residents of two villages, at least fifty of whom drowned.

Many other inhabitants of the fishing hamlets, Tafjord and Fjoraa, on opposite sides of Korsnaes Fjord, were still missing tonight and were believed victims of the sudden, terrifying disaster—the worst Norway has experienced in years.

Tragedies Revealed

First a small part of the cliff, long regarded as a menace, fell, throwing up a small wave. Two other falls followed in rapid succession, just after 3 a. m., and sent a wall of water as high as 30 feet sweeping over the flimsy houses, and coursing relentlessly a half mile inland.

Many of the small structures were carried off like doll houses. Others were reduced to splinters by the heavy impact of the mass of water. Boats in the harbor were tossed upon the land like toys. Motor cars and other vehicles were borne far inland.

A clergyman who was visiting his parents in Tafjord for a birthday celebration gave the Associated Press this account:

"I was awakened by a noise of rushing waters and the shaking of the house.

"It was only by clinging to the side of the bed that I saved myself. The next moment the windows of the room collapsed—then came the terrifying flood of water.

"Soon I realized the water was rising almost as high as the house. Toward me, borne along by the surging inflow, came a man, helpless but conscious.

"I opened the door and clutched at him as he was being swept past To my amazement I found he was a relative of mine, named Tafjord, the same as the village."

Another eyewitness, who described the waves as coming in series of three, each more violent than the predecessors, related this experience:

"Mothers clutching children to their breasts were caught up and swirled away on the third and most violent wave, as the fathers fought frantically but in vain to rescue their families.

"One of the most pathetic sights was a father who was seen hurrying to the brow of the hill, carrying his tiny son in his arms.

"Reaching the summit, the man apparently thought he was safe, but the water rushed upon him higher and higher until he was last seen standing there holding the boy above the water as the waves edied about his neck.

"The boy was later found alive

UNITED LINES TO REORGANIZE

System Wants To Be Able to Bid on New Airmail Contracts

BY F. J. STARZEL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—Immediate reorganization of United Aircraft & Transport Corp.—separating air lines and manufacturing subsidiaries—was proposed today by Philip G. Johnson, president, "in order that the United Air Lines system may be in a position to participate in the bidding for air mail contracts in the future."

His announcement was the first official intimation from any air mail carrier that reorganization might be effected to qualify for bidding on mail routes.

Congress has not enacted legislation covering permanent awards of new contracts, but the administration has indicated that far-reaching changes in corporate structures would be necessary before any of the companies, whose contracts were cancelled, would be eligible again to enter bids.

Affects Four Lines

The United proposal was explained in a letter to stockholders accompanying the corporation's 1933 financial report. It announced the share-owners annual meeting, scheduled for April 24, has been postponed by the directors until the reorganization plan can be completed.

Johnson's letter pointed out "it is highly probable" that divorcement of carriers and manufacturers "will be stipulated as a condition to the reletting of air mail contracts."

The air lines affected and cities between which they carried mail prior to Postmaster General James A. Farley's cancellation of all contracts are:

Boeing Air Transport, Inc.—Chicago and San Francisco.

Pacific Air Transport—Seattle and Washington.

National Air Transport, Inc.—New York and Chicago, Dallas and Chicago.

Varney Air Lines, Inc.—Salt Lake City and Seattle.

Manufacturing subsidiaries would be grouped into two organizations, Johnson's letter stated, with the eastern group centered in the Pratt & Whitney Aircraft Co. and associated firms in Hartford, Conn., and the Boeing Airplane Co., in Seattle, providing the nucleus for the western concerns.

Consolidated net income for the corporation in 1933 was shown in the report as $1,176,111, equal to 56 cents a share on the common stock.

In 1932, net income after preferred dividends was $1,107,658, equal to 53 cents a common share.

Five Are Rescued From Arctic Ice

Moscow, April 7 (AP)—Russian aviators today rescued five members of a group of 88 who have been adrift since February 15 on the Arctic ice-pack off Siberia.

The fliers Kamanin and Molokoff hopped to the floating ice camp of the castaways from Cape Van Karem, Siberia, and returned to the latter place with those believed the weakest of the party.

Eighty-three men now remain on the ice, the aviator Babushkin, who had been a member of the party, having made his way to the mainland after ten women and two children were saved by the flier Liapidevsky.

The Russians have been marooned on the floe since their boat, the Cheliuskin, was crushed by ice and sank on a return trip from Wrangel island.

Plane Damaged; Fliers Uninjured

Houghton, Mich., April 7 (AP)—Russel J. McLaren and Roland Pierson, Grand Rapids aviators, escaped injury Saturday when their plane struck an air hole in an attempted landing on the ice of Portage Lake and was badly damaged.

The fliers had returned to the mainland from Isle Royle Friday night after an aerial survey of the moose herds on the island. At the time of the accident they were flying from Calumet to Houghton.

MISSED FLARES

Ann Arbor, Mich., April 7. (AP)—G. M. Fitzmier, about 65, was killed early Saturday when he drove his car into the rear of a truck and trailer parked on US-12 west of Ann Arbor. Fitzmier, who is a salesman living here, apparently failed to see the flares set in the roadway.

DEMOS LINE UP SLATE FOR '34

Comstock and E. Shields Definitely Chosen to Head Ticket

Lansing, Mich., April 7 (AP)—A slate consisting of Gov. William A. Comstock for re-election and Edmund C. Shields, Lansing attorney, for the United States senate—if he will run—has been agreed upon by controlling factions in the Democratic state organization, it was learned today.

Party leaders were inclined to discount reports from Washington that Arthur J. Lacy, of Detroit, might be a candidate for the senate. They were interested, keenly, however, in the announcement today that Claude S. Carney, another Democratic leader, would be a candidate for the senatorial nomination.

Horatio J. Abbott, national committeeman, was inclined to believe that the party would not nominate a man from Detroit as it is the turn of an outstate candidate. Detroit now has a senator in James Couzens. Senator Arthur Vandenberg, who will seek Republican renomination, is from Grand Rapids.

Shields might even be "drafted" at the pre-primary convention and it is a foregone conclusion that Gov. Comstock will be endorsed for renomination.

The makeup of the Republican ticket appears vague. Frank D. Fitzgerald is the only announced gubernatorial candidate and although petitions are in circulation to place Congressman Clarence J. McLeod, of Detroit, in the race for governor, he has not yet announced his intentions. Speculation also is rife as to what former Governor Alex J. Groesbeck will do, friends stating he would "make an announcement soon."

HOME BUILDING CREDIT LOANS

Government to Bolster Mortgage Market; Risk Slight

BY SAM BLEDSOE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Roosevelt administration plans to place government credit back of a home building program which is expected to put more than a billion dollars of cautious private capital to work.

Frank C. Walker, director of the national emergency council, said legislation to carry out the proposal probably would be sent to congress within ten days.

He told newspapermen the measure in view would enable the treasury to guarantee the interest and perhaps the principal of long-term mortgages that would be issued on the new homes.

"It has been the feeling for a long time," Walker said, "that the mortgage market needs support. The proposal I am outlining is tentative but it contemplates establishing requirements for a standard type of mortgage, maturing in 15 or 20 years. All the costs for the building would be taken care of by the amortized mortgage and there would be no need for a second mortgage.

No Loans to Business

"We have made a survey and feel that the government could guarantee the interest and perhaps the principal of the mortgages with little risk to the treasury."

Walker said a survey had convinced those who drafted the plan that banks and lending agencies would readily furnish money to contractors for building if the government "insured" the mortgages. He added, however, that lending to put up small business structures was not contemplated.

It was understood the proposal to back lending to build small business plants was opposed on the grounds it would lead to an over expansion in industries and businesses already overexpanded.

A study has shown, it was said, there is a shortage of small homes, particularly in city suburbs, small towns and the country.

Walker said the plan might extend to small apartment type houses of not more than four stories, but it was intended to stimulate primarily the construction of private homes."

Walker said one agency would direct the home program and that various related activities including slum clearance and subsistence homestead activities would be under this organization.

He said NRA and its administrator, Hugh S. Johnson, would participate in the attempt to spur capital goods industries but "I don't know whether Johnson will direct the home building plan."

SIGNS OF RECOVERY

New York, April 7 (AP)—Residential building—one of the nation's largest potential sources of employment—is showing stirrings of recovery this spring.

Latest statistics indicate, however, that little more than a change of trend has occurred. The volume of contracting for new homes is still but a fraction of what was considered normal in the years 1922-1930.

This industry, still wallowing deep in depression, is therefore awaiting with keen interest details of the plans under consideration in Washington for a nation-wide home building and renovation campaign.

Strange Light In Breast Of Woman Puzzles Doctors

Trieste, Italy, April 7 (AP)—Doctors from all parts of Italy came here today to see, and wonder at, a strange light emanating from the breast of Anna Monaro, a patient in the Pirano hospital.

Dr. Sambro, head of the institution, ordered the isolation of the woman for a careful examination. He said hospital authorities already had excluded the possibility of a hoax, since they thoroughly searched her bed to forestall an attempt to hide a flashlight there.

Signora Monaro herself had remained in ignorance regarding the tremendous stir created throughout Italy by the phenomenon. When a daughter told her about it today she was greatly troubled and said her sleep had been disturbed recently.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., April 7 (AP)—Dismissed from school because of misbehavior, Jerome Huntzinger, 15, hanged himself at his home, police said today.

STRONG CASES OF VIOLATIONS GO TO COURTS

UNCERTAINTY AS TO ENFORCEMENT OF CODES ENDED

BY JAMES COPE
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Washington, April 7 (AP)—A general onslaught of court action against NRA code "chiselers" was ordered today by Hugh S. Johnson.

"The time has come," said NRA's administrator in letters to all code authorities and field representatives "when uncertainty as to enforcement by legal proceeding must end.

Want Strong Cases

"We must now proceed on the basis that one who is violating his code and who is not ready and anxious to comply and make restitution when informed of his non-compliance, must be brought swiftly and surely before the enforcement agencies of government."

To suit action to the word, Johnson ordered that:

Ten days hence, state compliance directors will begin handing all clear-out violation cases directly to their federal district attorneys, instead of first asking advice in Washington.

Within the ten days, state directors, code authorities and local compliance boards will send all good cases in their files to the newly created NRA litigation division here, so the best may be returned immediately to the district attorneys for action.

NRA officials said frankly the new policy was based on success in court with test cases just completed, including the supreme court's ruling for the government in the New York state milk law case and convictions won by NRA.

All hands were warned not to file weak cases, the objective being to obtain prompt convictions.

The new Johnson policy was announced shortly after the national emergency council had said the consumer activities of both NRA and agriculture would be consolidated under the council in a division that would immediately create 112 consumer councils throughout the country on an experimental basis. Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey will direct the job.

The chief duty of the local councils will be to analyze the effect of price changes on consumers and the reaction on business.

Order Is Uphill

Another energizing development of the day was a ruling by Comptroller General McCarl upholding a presidential order requiring all sellers and manufacturers bidding for government contracts to file certificates of compliance with their respective codes before their offers can be considered.

The McCarl ruling effectively shuts out from government business and all state or local business partially financed by the United States, all firms which attempt to disregard codes or which, like the Ford Motor company, comply but refuse to file affirmative commitment to recognize the code as binding. Since the manufacturer must affirm as well as the seller, Ford retailers would not be eligible to obtain contracts unless the firm changes

Plot To Murder King Carol Found

Budapest, Hungary, April 7 (AP)—A new plot to assassinate state leaders, including possibly King Carol, was reported uncovered in Budapest today.

Several officers and civilians were arrested, among them the well-known Colonel Prekup.

Reports said the projected killings were to have taken place at a midnight service marking the Orthodox Easter.

Late last month police said a conspiracy to assassinate Premier Tatarescu and other government leaders had been revealed.

40% Bank Payoff Begins Wednesday

Kalamazoo, Mich., April 7 (AP)—A 40 per cent payoff to its 23,000 depositors will be started next Wednesday morning by the Bank of Kalamazoo, it was announced Saturday night by Earl D. Albertson, conservator.

The announcement followed months of negotiation with R. F. C. officials at Detroit and Washington and with state officials at Lansing. Approximately $2,203,000 impounded in the bank since the Comstock holiday was proclaimed, will be released at once. The payoff will be the first since the institution was closed.

POLICE GUNFIRE HIT DILLINGER?

Ravings of Injured Man Lead to Belief Fugitive Wounded

St. Paul, Minn., April 7. (AP)—From the ravings of wounded Eugene Green, federal operatives today said they obtained information which led them to believe John Dillinger was wounded in his last brush with the law.

A week ago today the Indiana desperado and two companions, one a man whom officers say was Green, and the other a woman, battled their way out of a Lexington avenue apartment here in a machine gun fight with officers. Green was wounded Tuesday night when he and another woman were seized here in a second raid by officers.

In a hospital since, and delirious most of the time, Green's ravings have been carefully studied by federal officers for a clew to his much sought pal's whereabouts.

At the same time authorities are pressing search for other reputed Dillinger associates, Tommy Carroll, Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis. The latter two are linked by the government with the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer kidnaping. Carroll is wanted on murder charges.

Through Carroll also, officers believe, a lead might be unearthed that would pave the way for Dillinger's capture.

Carroll, with John Hamilton, chief lieutenant of Dillinger, left the Lexington avenue apartment shortly before last Saturday's fight.

The woman held by the government since her capture with Green was identified tonight as Mrs. Bessie Moore, who until a year ago had operated a roadhouse near here. However, in a writ of habeas corpus, returnable Monday, and filed in federal district court by J. E. Burke, attorney, she was named as "Mrs. Green or Mrs. Bessie Hines."

LAUNCH NEW SEARCH

Indianapolis, April 7. (AP)—When a machine gun stock and cartridge clips were found today in an abandoned automobile along an arterial highway twenty miles north of here, state police began a new search for John Dillinger.

Capt. Matt Leach expressed the belief that the jail breaking bank bandit might have been one of the men who fled after the car collided with a truck on U. S. Highway 31.

The damaged touring car with a black body was towed to Noblesville for inspection. There it was found that the serial numbers had been chiseled from the cylinder engine.

Support for the theory that Dillinger was an occupant of the car came from the statement of Joseph Manning, Peru, Ind., whose truck struck the machine.

Manning said two men leaped from the machine, quickly stripped it of Minnesota license plates and fled into a nearby woods with a machine gun.

It was just a week ago today that a department of justice agent and a detective engaged in a gun fight in a St. Paul apartment house wih two men, one of whom was identified through finger prints as Dillinger.

Son Of President Hits Photographer

Philadelphia, April 7 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., 19-year-old son of the president, commenting on his altercation with a photographer at a wrestling show, today was quoted as saying:

"What I objected to was his sneaking up the aisle and taking the picture without my consent."

Lawyers Poor Authors, Says Arthur Train

New York, April 7 (AP)—If you want to be a writer, don't start by being a lawyer.

That is the advice of Arthur Train, novelist-attorney who created "Mr. Ephraim Tutt," the ingenious fictional hero who confounds all opponents by mixing common sense with the law.

"Legal training is, in the very nature of things, opposed to free expression," said Train today. "The lawyer is trained not to draw conclusions, not to draw parallels, not to use metaphors, not to rely on hearsay.

"In short, the lawyer is trained to be accurate, while life is not accurate.

"For instance, a lawyer would never think of asking a witness if the defendant looked 'like a boiled owl when he came home,' and yet the phrase might be very effective in a story."

Train, who served in the district attorney's office in the days when he said politicians frankly wrote "for graft" on check stubs, who served as special deputy attorney general and sent men to prison by making the jury think he felt sorry for them, said he left the law after he found he could not serve two masters successfully.

"I always wanted to write from the time I was a small boy," he said. "I became a lawyer because my family expected me to, but I kept on writing.

"It was exciting to try cases, to win verdicts, but suddenly, about ten years ago, I found that writing was more profitable and that interesting cases did not bob up every day, so I decided to devote all my time to writing."

Train, a smallish, droll man of 58, who recently returned from Mexico on an expedition for "local color," weaves many of his stories around unusual quirks in the law.

He found that few persons, including government officials, knew just what form of currency was legal tender, and used that as the basis of a story. He discovered that a notary public has considerably more power than most people, including the notaries, ever suspected, and that produced another story.

Within a week after one story was published, he said, two lawyers wrote him to say they had employed the same technique successfully in similar cases.

Surplus Electric Energy Furnished Free For 2 Months

Lansing, April 6 (AP)—Three upper peninsula water power companies today took the lead in agreeing to the request of the Michigan public utilities commission to furnish surplus electric energy to their customers without cost during April and May.

The companies are the Houghton County Electric company, the Iron Range Light & Power company, and the Baraga County Light & Power company. They service the cities of Hancock, Houghton, Lake Linden, Laurium, Calumet and South Range, together with virtually all the mines in the upper peninsula copper country.

Under the plan electric bills for March will represent the maximum amount to be paid in April and May. Customers can use any amount of electrical energy over the amount consumed in March and not be required to pay for it. The commission suggested the plan in view of the surplus water power available at the company plants.

William Woodin, Jr., In Serious Condition

but we have no trace of the father."

Family Wiped Out

Another witness told of the loss of an entire family of nine, the mother of which climbed to the roof of their humble home as the waters lapped at her feet.

"As the waters rose she climbed from the bedroom window with her three smallest children in her arms or clinging to her skirts.

"Gaining the edge of an adjacent roof the woman cried vainly for help. Nothing further was seen of the four until the waters receded and their bodies were found." As the waters engulfed an electrical transformer, an eerie and spectacular flash of light momentarily illuminated the countryside and threw the scenes of death and destruction into stark relief. A column of light flashed up and then all was quiet and dark.

Those fortunate enough to escape huddled terrified, as they awaited relief in the cold weather preceding dawn. So sudden had been the disaster that they had had no time to dress. Twenty children were believed among the victims.

The fjord separating the villages is narrow and has steep mountainous sides. The scenery nearby is familiar to many American tourists.

Fire At Indiana Prison Controlled

Michigan City, Ind., April 7. (AP)—Flames that raged through the receiving building of the Indiana state prison and threatened to spread to 10 other buildings housing nearly 2,500 felons were brought under control tonight.

Authorities asserted that they did not believe that the fire was a plot to free prisoners.

The building, a brick structure of about 40 by 60 feet, was damaged badly, but quick responses to alarms by the city, prison and nearby LaPorte fire departments, resulted in the flames being quenched.

Extra guards emmediately were thrown into cell blocks. About 150 prisoners in the "J" block, nearest to the flaming receiving building, were transferred to quarters more remote from the fire.

TAX MEASURE GETS APPROVAL

Higher Levies Agreeable to Administration Leaders

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Senate administration leaders announced late today they would accept amendments next week to the $330,000,000 revenue bill which would yield approximately $150,000,000 more in higher income and inheritance taxes.

The bill had been laid aside to permit passage of the $18,000,000 legislative appropriation bill before the week-end adjournment, when Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.), of the finance committee, in charge of the revenue legislation, said in an interview he would agree to the higher levies to be proposed from the Republican side.

One, by Senator Couzens (R-Mich.), would add 10 percent for one year only to the amount of income and surtax paid by all individuals. It was estimated this would bring in $55,000,000 additional revenue.

The other, by Senator La Follette (R-Wis.), would boost estate or inheritances taxes permanently to raise approximately $90,000,000 in the first full year of operation—the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935.

Harrison termed the Couzens proposal "fair." All indications were the senate would approve it, as well as the La Follette amendment. They would still be subject to approval by the house, however.

The Mississippian said the two changes would go a long way toward providing the government with much-needed revenue for its recovery program.

The ten percent proposal would not increase the existing 4 percent normal income tax by that much, but would hike only the amount of tax paid that much. For instance if a person paid $100 tax, the Couzens amendment would require him to pay $110.

The same 10 percent would be added to the amount of all surtaxes, which range in the bill from 5 to 59 percent, as against 1 to 55 in existing law.

Detroit, Mich., April 7. (AP)—Mrs. Gerda Jensen, 42, was killed and her husband, Herbert Jensen, critically injured Saturday when their automobile struck a train in Wyandotte.

Sharp Increase In Orders For Steel Seen For Future

Cleveland, April 5 (AP)—A belief that the automotive industry is going to take steel deliveries throughout the second quarter of the year far in excess of its immediate requirements was the subject of comment today among steel men.

In the Ohio section, where most of the automotive steel is produced, the belief is current that automobile makers are determined to fill warehouses with large surplus stocks of the metal, now being ordered before the new price schedules in the steel industry take effect.

Reliable sources estimate commitments for more than 500,000 tons of steel will have been placed by auto and auto-parts makers before the end of next week, A large amount of the June quota of this total, steel men believe, will serve to build up the automotive industry's surplus stocks to an extent even greater than was done last December just before the Jan. 1 steel price advance was applied.

Mother Accused Of Poisoning Children To Get Insurance

Coshocton, O., April 7 (AP)—A 43-year old mother, who collected $1,587.84 in insurance when two of her offspring died, today was charged with killing them by poison.

Climaxing a year-long inquiry into the deaths of a son and a daughter, a grand jury indicted Mrs. Amelia Rivers Webb Wardrop. It listed three counts, two of first degree murder, and a third charging the administering of poison with intent to kill to a 21-year-old nephew, Charles Hughes.

Crippled from the hips down and hobbling into Prosecutor Russell E. Lyons' office on crutches, young Hughes a year ago told the story that led to a painstaking investigation, a secret night-time exhumation of the bodies of his cousins, and discovery by a chemist that each contained poison enough to have caused death.

Two Factions Fighting For Control of Auto Company

Lansing, Mich., April 7 (AP)—R. H. Scott, president of the Reo Motor Car Co., here and R. E. Olds, chairman of the company and one of its founders, were arrayed against each other tonight in a proxy battle for control of one of America's oldest car companies, which will reach a showdown here at the annual stockholders meeting on April 17.

The new management committee headed by Olds, which was created last December after Scott was deposed as general manager, issued a lengthy statement tonight, appealing for proxy support among the stockholders, and laying the responsibility on Scott for conditions within the company as depicted by Scott's faction.

The Reo president is backing the fight of the independent stockholders committee, which claims to control 100,000 proxies. The new management committee, which includes Olds, D. E. Bates, G. E. Smith and R. A. Devlieg, claims to have 400,000 proxy votes.

Blamed for Losses

Earlier in the day, the Scott faction sent a letter to stockholders charging a decline of $51,000,000 in sales in the last six years, a decrease of working capital of 65 per cent and losses of more than $10,000,000 in the last four years. The Scott committee, of which W. S. Diamond is chairman, charged that the majority of the present directors hold less than 25,000 of 1,800,000 shares outstanding, and added that Chairman Olds had disposed of most of his stock.

Expressing regret and surprise, the Olds committee replied to the Scott faction tonight.

"Whatever responsibility arises as a result of the critical accusations made by the 'independent stockholders committee'," said the statement, "must be squarely placed upon the promoter of this attack, Mr. R. H. Scott. For the past 10 years Mr. Scott has been president of the company, and with the exception of the year 1930 and 1931, he has for the past 16 years, been general manager. The by-laws of the company gave him as general manager, the full power and authority to manage the business."

their strike votes. They will return to work Monday, awaiting an answer, the officers announced.

Although the labor board's jurisdiction over the tool and diemakers' controversy has been questioned by Matthew Smith, general secretary of the Mechanics Educational Society, Dr. Wolman has said the board would not stand on technicalities in its effort to bring peace in the automotive labor field. Smith has pointed out that labor's representative on the board, Richard Byrd, is an American Federation of Labor official, and that the toolmakers organization is not affiliated with the federation.

The board conferred in closed session today with representatives of the Motor Products Corp. and their employes endeavoring to adjust a wage dispute that caused 1,000 men in the plating department to walk out and force a shutdown of the plant that has had 5,600 men on its rolls.

An echo of the automotive labor situation was heard in recorders' court today when Judge Arthur Gordon commented sharply upon the disclosure that some outside workers were being brought into Detroit.

Premier Of France Wins Great Victory

Paris, April 7 (AP)—Premier Gaston Doumergue won a smashing victory tonight when government workers decided not to call a strike in protest against pay cuts.

Both the central committee of the workers and the council of the federation of labor ended their special conferences on the government's economy program without positive action on a walkout which had been threatened for several days.

The federation's counsel adopted a wide industrial program calling for a reduction of hours and the nationalization of the credit control banks, but carefully kept out of the pay cut fight.

Backus Accused Of Taking $7,000,000 Of Company Funds

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Edward W. Backus, former president of the Minnesota and Ontario Paper company, who asserted bankers conspired to "steal" the $75,000,000 concern, was charged in turn today with abstracting $7,000,000 of the company's funds, some for stock market purposes, before he lost control.

These charges and counter charges were made at a one-day hearing before the senate's bankruptcy investigating committee and at the conclusion Chairman Ashurst indicated it would take no action.

Ashurst accused Backus of using the committee as "a conduit to send his personal views to the country" instead of presenting evidence.

However, Ashurst obtained from one of the company's receivers, R. H. M. Robinson, an agreement to permit Backus free access to the company's books.

In return, Robinson's attorney, John D. Faegre, asked permission to inspect the personal records of Backus and his company, the Backus-Brooks company, to see what happened to the $7,000,000 he said was taken from the paper company.

POLICE GUNFIRE HIT DILLINGER?

Ravings of Injured Man Lead to Belief Fugitive Wounded

St. Paul, Minn., April 7. (AP)—From the ravings of wounded Eugene Green, federal operatives today said they obtained information which led them to believe John Dillinger was wounded in his last brush with the law.

A week ago today the Indiana desperado and two companions, one a man whom officers say was Green, and the other a woman, battled their way out of a Lexington avenue apartment here in a machine gun fight with officers. Green was wounded Tuesday night when he and another woman were seized here in a second raid by officers.

In a hospital since, and delirious most of the time, Green's ravings have been carefully studied by federal officers for a clew to his much sought pal's whereabouts.

At the same time authorities are pressing search for other reputed Dillinger associates, Tommy Carroll, Fred Barker and Alvin Karpis. The latter two are linked by the government with the $200,000 Edward G. Bremer kidnaping. Carroll is wanted on murder charges.

Through Carroll also, officers believe, a lead might be unearthed that would pave the way for Dillinger's capture.

Carroll, with John Hamilton, chief lieutenant of Dillinger, left the Lexington avenue apartment shortly before last Saturday's fight.

The woman held by the government since her capture with Green was identified tonight as Mrs. Bessie Moore, who until a year ago had operated a roadhouse near here. However, in a writ of habeas corpus, returnable Monday, and filed in federal district court by J. E. Burke, attorney, she was named as "Mrs. Green or Mrs. Bessie Hines."

LAUNCH NEW SEARCH

Indianapolis, April 7. (AP)—When a machine gun stock and cartridge clips were found today in an abandoned automobile along an arterial highway twenty miles north of here, state police began a new search for John Dillinger.

Capt. Matt Leach expressed the belief that the jail breaking bank bandit might have been one of the men who fled after the car collided with a truck on U. S. Highway 31.

The damaged touring car with a black body was towed to Noblesville for inspection. There it was found that the serial numbers had been chiseled from the cylinder engine.

Support for the theory that Dillinger was an occupant of the car came from the statement of Joseph Manning, Peru, Ind., whose truck struck the machine.

Manning said two men leaped from the machine, quickly stripped it of Minnesota license plates and fled into a nearby woods with a machine gun.

It was just a week ago today that a department of justice agent and a detective engaged in a gun fight in a St. Paul apartment house wih two men, one of whom was identified through finger prints as Dillinger.

Son Of President Hits Photographer

Philadelphia, April 7 (AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., 19-year-old son of the president, commenting on his altercation with a photographer at a wrestling show, today was quoted as saying:

"What I objected to was his sneaking up the aisle and taking the picture without my consent."

Lawyers Poor Authors, Says Arthur Train

New York, April 7 (AP)—If you want to be a writer, don't start by being a lawyer.

That is the advice of Arthur Train, novelist-attorney who created "Mr. Ephraim Tutt," the ingenious fictional hero who confounds all opponents by mixing common sense with the law.

"Legal training is, in the very nature of things, opposed to free expression," said Train today. "The lawyer is trained not to draw conclusions, not to draw parallels, not to use metaphors, not to rely on hearsay.

"In short, the lawyer is trained to be accurate, while life is not accurate.

"For instance, a lawyer would never think of asking a witness if the defendant looked 'like a boiled owl when he came home,' and yet the phrase might be very effective in a story."

Train, who served in the district attorney's office in the days when he said politicians frankly wrote "for graft" on check stubs, who served as special deputy attorney general and sent men to prison by making the jury think he felt sorry for them, said he left the law after he found he could not serve two masters successfully.

"I always wanted to write from the time I was a small boy," he said. "I became a lawyer because my family expected me to, but I kept on writing.

"It was exciting to try cases, to win verdicts, but suddenly, about ten years ago, I found that writing was more profitable and that interesting cases did not bob up every day, so I decided to devote all my time to writing."

Train, a smallish, droll man of 58, who recently returned from Mexico on an expedition for "local color," weaves many of his stories around unusual quirks in the law.

He found that few persons, including government officials, knew just what form of currency was legal tender, and used that as the basis of a story. He discovered that a notary public has considerably more power than most people, including the notaries, ever suspected, and that produced another story.

Within a week after one story was published, he said, two lawyers wrote him to say they had employed the same technique successfully in similar cases.

Surplus Electric Energy Furnished Free For 2 Months

Lansing, April 6 (AP)—Three upper peninsula water power companies today took the lead in agreeing to the request of the Michigan public utilities commission to furnish surplus electric energy to their customers without cost during April and May.

The companies are the Houghton County Electric company, the Iron Range Light & Power company, and the Baraga County Light & Power company. They service the cities of Hancock, Houghton, Lake Linden, Laurium, Calumet and South Range, together with virtually all the mines in the upper peninsula copper country.

Under the plan electric bills for March will represent the maximum amount to be paid in April and May. Customers can use any amount of electrical energy over the amount consumed in March and not be required to pay for it. The commission suggested the plan in view of the surplus water power available at the company plants.

but we have no trace of the father."

Family Wiped Out

Another witness told of the loss of an entire family of nine, the mother of which climbed to the roof of their humble home as the waters lapped at her feet.

"As the waters rose she climbed from the bedroom window with her three smallest children in her arms or clinging to her skirts.

"Gaining the edge of an adjacent roof the woman cried vainly for help. Nothing further was seen of the four until the waters receded and their bodies were found." As the waters engulfed an electrical transformer, an eerie and spectacular flash of light momentarily illuminated the countryside and threw the scenes of death and destruction into stark relief. A column of light flashed up and then all was quiet and dark.

Those fortunate enough to escape huddled terrified, as they awaited relief in the cold weather preding dawn. So sudden had been the disaster that they had had no time to dress. Twenty children were believed among the victims.

Fire At Indiana Prison Controlled

Michigan City, Ind., April 7. (AP)—Flames that raged through the receiving building of the Indiana state prison and threatened to spread to 10 other buildings housing nearly 2,500 felons were brought under control tonight.

Authorities asserted that they did not believe that the fire was a plot to free prisoners.

The building, a brick structure of about 40 by 60 feet, was damaged badly, but quick responses to alarms by the city, prison and nearby LaPorte fire departments, resulted in the flames being quenched.

Extra guards emmediately were thrown into cell blocks. About 150 prisoners in the "J" block, nearest to the flaming receiving building, were transferred to quarters more remote from the fire.

TAX MEASURE GETS APPROVAL

Higher Levies Agreeable to Administration Leaders

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Senate administration leaders announced late today they would accept amendments next week to the $330,000,000 revenue bill which would yield approximately $150,000,000 more in higher income and inheritance taxes.

The bill had been laid aside to permit passage of the $18,000,000 legislative appropriation bill before the week-end adjournment, when Chairman Harrison (D-Miss.), of the finance committee, in charge of the revenue legislation, said in an interview he would agree to the higher levies to be proposed from the Republican side.

One, by Senator Couzens (R-Mich.), would add 10 percent for one year only to the amount of income and surtax paid by all individuals. It was estimated this would bring in $55,000,000 additional revenue.

The other, by Senator La Follette (R-Wis.), would boost estate or inheritances taxes permanent- to raise approximately $90,000,000 in the first full year of operation—the fiscal year ending June 30, 1935.

Harrison termed the Couzens proposal "fair." All indications were the senate would approve it, as well as the La Follette amendment. They would still be subject to approval by the house, however.

The Mississippian said the two changes would go a long way toward providing the government with much-needed revenue for its recovery program.

The ten percent proposal would not increase the existing 4 percent normal income tax by that much, but would hike only the amount of tax paid that much. For instance if a person paid $100 tax, the Couzens amendment would require him to pay $110.

The same 10 percent would be added to the amount of all surtaxes, which range in the bill from 5 to 59 percent, as against 1 to 55 in existing law.

Sharp Increase In Orders For Steel Seen For Future

Cleveland, April 5 (AP)—A belief that the automotive industry is going to take steel deliveries throughout the second quarter of the year far in excess of its immediate requirements was the subject of comment today among steel men.

In the Ohio section, where most of the automotive steel is produced ,the belief is current that automobile makers are determined to fill warehouses with large surplus stocks of the metal, now being ordered before the new price schedules in the steel industry take effect.

Reliable sources estimate commitments for more than 500,000 tons of steel will have been placed by auto and auto-parts makers before the end of next week, A large amount of the June quota of this total, steel men believe, will serve to build up the automotive industry's surplus stocks to an extent even greater than was done last December just before the Jan. 1 steel price advance was applied.

Mother Accused Of Poisoning Children To Get Insurance

Coshocton, O., April 7 (AP)—A 43-year old mother, who collected $1,587.84 in insurance when two of her offspring died ,today was charged with killing them by poison.

Climaxing a year-long inquiry into the deaths of a son and a daughter, a grand jury indicted Mrs. Amelia Rivers Webb Wardrop. It listed three counts, two of first degree murder, and a third charging the administering of poison with intent to kill to a 21-year-old nephew, Charles Hughes.

Crippled from the hips down and hobbling into Prosecutor Russell E. Lyons' office on crutches, young Hughes a year ago told the story that led to a painstaking investigation, a secret night-time exhumation of the bodies of his cousins, and discovery by a chemist that each contained poison enough to have caused death.

REO OFFICIALS SEEK PROXIES

Two Factions Fighting For Control of Auto Company

Lansing, Mich., April 7 (AP)—R. H. Scott, president of the Reo Motor Car Co., here and R. E. Olds, chairman of the company and one of its founders, were arrayed against each other tonight in a proxy battle for control of one of America's oldest car companies, which will reach a showdown here at the annual stockholders meeting on April 17.

The new management committee headed by Olds, which was created last December after Scott was deposed as general manager, issued a lengthy statement tonight, appealing for proxy support among the stockholders, and laying the responsibility on Scott for conditions within the company as depicted by Scott's faction.

The Reo president is backing the fight of the independent stockholders committee, which claims to control 100,000 proxies. The new management committee, which includes Olds, D. E. Bates, G. E. Smith and R. A. Devlieg, claims to have 400,000 proxy votes.

Blamed for Losses

Earlier in the day, the Scott faction sent a letter to stockholders charging a decline of $51,000,000 in sales in the last six years, a decrease of working capital of 65 per cent and losses of more than $10,000,000 in the last four years. The Scott committee, of which W. S. Diamond is chairman, charged that the majority of the present directors hold less than 25,000 of 1,800,000 shares outstanding, and added that Chairman Olds had disposed of most of his stock.

Expressing regret and surprise, the Olds committee replied to the Scott faction tonight.

"Whatever responsibility arises as a result of the critical accusations made by the 'independent stockholders committee'," said the statement, "must be squarely placed upon the promoter of this attack, Mr. R. H. Scott. For the past 10 years Mr. Scott has been president of the company, and with the exception of the year 1930 and 1931, he has for the past 16 years, been general manager. Backus Accused Of Taking $7,000,000 Of Company Funds

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Edward W. FOREST SERVICE PLANS FOR 1934

Real Work Accomplished In Peninsula By CCC Crews

"The President's emergency conservation work program, popularly known as the CCC program, has passed through the trial and development stages and is functioning as a real work accomplishing program," says F. J. Johnson, acting federal forest supervisor in this district. The improvement of national forests under the CCC program is now entering its second year, and the forest service is making plans for the handling of an enlarged program during the new period.

Just a year ago the initial Upper Michigan CCC camps were established on the Upper Michigan National Forests. The Department of Labor was made responsible for the selection of the men. The Department of War has had the responsibility of enrolling and caring for the men and operating the camps.

The Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture has been responsible for the successful carrying on of work projects on the National Forests.

The Forest Service has an experienced camp superintendent and several trained foremen in each camp whose responsibility it is to have complete charge of the work projects, and to handle the work under the direct supervision of year long forest officers.

A list of the forest officers in immediate charge of the work on the national forests, and the camp superintendents are as follows:

Marquette National Forest

Forest Ranger—E. F. Ball with headquarters at Raco.

Camp Supt., Raco Camp—A. J. Quinkert.

Camp Supt., Strongs Camp — H. Miotke.

Camp Supt., Pine River Camp —R. Kellett.

Hiawatha National Forest

Forest Ranger—Geo. D. Ferrari with headquarters at Munising.

Camp Supt., Kentucky Camp—R. Sloss.

Camp Supt., Steuben Camp—L. Cihak.

Camp Supt., Wyman Camp — P. R. Krueger.

Camp Supt., McComb Lake Camp—A. Ewald.

Ottawa National Forest

Forest Ranger—Clare Hendee with headquarters at Kenton.

Camp Supt., Kenton Camp — C. B. Goetzen.

Camp Supt., Paint Lake Camp —B. Berg.

Camp Supt., Jumbo Camp — P. Sliger.

Current reports of work accomplishment out of the CCC Camps have been published from time to time. A complete summary of work accomplished on the Upper Michigan national forests during the past year will be prepared within the next few days and a complete summary will be published for the information of the public.

A glimpse at the work plans being prepared, for the camps on the national forests, and covering the next six months period shows a forecast of an even greater amount of work to be accomplished than in the past twelve months. Plans are well along for the planting of at least 20 thousand acres of national forest land to tree seedlings, the improvement of several thousand acres of timber stands, the construction of 150 miles of protection roads, the construction of four lookout towers, eleven fire guard cabins, four large warehouses, the eradication of several thousand acres of ribes for the protection of white pine from blister rust infection and the improvement of several trout streams and lakes. The construction of 150 miles of telephone lines will be accomplished and several public camp grounds will be prepared for public use and enjoyment.

These and many other improvements, vitally needed for the efficient administration and protection of the Upper Michigan national forests, will be accomplished by men in the CCC and under the supervision of the forest service.

The enrolled men in the CCC camps are by and large taking an active interest in the work, and are eager to continue doing their part in building the national forests to a point where every acre is producing its maximum yield and the forests in condition so that they can be administered for the greatest good to the greatest number of people in the long run.

A large amount of improvement work will be carried on in the areas recently approved as additions to the national forests. It is the aim of the Upper Michigan forest service personnel to practically complete the road and improvement construction work on the forests and purchase unit additions this year.

Junior Class Play Is Well Received

Newberry, April 7—A play with many unusual features was "Tiger House" given on Friday night by the junior class of the Newberry high school before a good audience in the school auditorium. It was a mystery play, full of thrills and unexpected turns, with many clever lines and was well done by the young people. The stage management was an important item in the success of the play, lightning-wind effects being managed with skill. Miss Lois Heath had charge of the production and the stage was set by Burton Kemp and the members of the manuel arts classes. The cast: Erma Lowrie taken by Kathryn Shepherd. Aunt Sophis by Ethel Knutson; Mystery Woman by Ruth Thorley, Peg Van Ness by Muriel Jewell, Yaml by Wesley North, Arthur Hale by Harvey Riddell, Macintosh by Louis Dwyer, Mrs. Murdock by Muriel Ney, Thompson by Gordon Campbell and Oswold Kerins by Charles Labrom.

SOCIAL WELFARE CLUB

The Newberry State Hospital Nurses Guild was organized on Wednesday evening at the state institution under supervision of Mrs. M. R. Barringer, superintendent of nurses. The new club is to be a social welfare club. The first meeting was held at the Nurse's home with ten charter members present; Mrs. M. R. Barringer, Mrs. Charles Burns, Mrs. E. Nelson Dennis, Mrs. Harold Harrison, Miss Margaret Shilson, Miss Clara Anderson, Miss Catherine Seass, Miss Irene Wilbur, Miss Margaret Grogan and Miss Helen Driscoll. Plans for the spring and summer were outlined at this time and a delicious lunch was served. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Burns with Mrs. Burns and Miss Seass as hostesses.

SNOW AND ICE

Driving on the woods roads, side roads and village streets has its own doubtful joys these days. Although the snow is going rapidly under the warm sun the ice ruts are so deep that cars must use railroad tactics and go into a switch to allow each other to pass. Two conservation officers, making a trip through the northern end of the county report snow three feet depe on the level on the road between Pine-Stump Junction and Reed and Green bridge on the Two Heart. At the bridge the snow settled 10 inches in twenty-four hours.

Newberry streets are a mess due to the sewer construction and the melting snow and ice. Newberry Avenue is about the worst in town, from the railroad to the south limits, with the ridge of mud down the center and the rest of the street thickly coated with mud and sand from the winter sandings. A good rain would do wonders and is needed badly.

4-H CLUB

Miss Olga Bird and Clare Rood of Marquette, U. P. 4-H Club leaders will be the officials in charge of the 4-H round-up in the community building on Tuesday next. The program includes a display of handicraft from 3 to 9 p. m. and the awarding of prizes. A style show, in which the girls will wear the outfits which they have made during the year will be one of the main features. Two girls and two boys, the healthiest of those competing, will be selected by Dr. Swanson as health champions of the county. The work in Luce county has been carried on by volunteers since the office of county farm agent was discontinued but the young people are doing excellent work and will make a good showing. The public is invited to attend.

SENEY MARSH PROJECT

Word comes from a conservation official who has recently been in Lansing that the wild duck refuge planned for the great Seney marsh is looking better and better. The federal department of conservation is being urged to take over the 300,000 acre of now almost useless march and sand ridges and return them to the condition in which they gave feeding and breeding grounds to millions of wild ducks in the days before roads and ditches drained the territory. Sportsmen and resort people in this end of the peninsula are getting interested in the project and hope to be able to get the work under way while the CCC camps are still available for man-power.

Dairy Products Are Boosted In Upper Peninsula

A resolution was unanimously passed at the recent Tri-State Dairy congress meeting in Duluth, urging an extensive advertising campaign to call the better attention of the public to the food value of dairy products.

It was pointed out that the per capita annual use of milk, cream, cheese and other milk derivatives in the United States is only a fraction of such consumption in many other countries.

The Michigan Butter committee of the National Dairy council announced a few days ago that active work along this line will be under way shortly in the upper peninsula. Pledges will be secured from the largest possible number of people to increase their family use of milk or milk products by the equivalent of one pound of butter per week.

U. P. WELFARE FIGURES GIVEN

13,750 of Delta County Population on Public Relief

Statistics on the extent of public relief in the upper peninsula were disclosed by Raymond M. Foley, director of public relations for the state highway department, who was in Houghton attending the conference of upper peninsula highway engineers. Mr. Foley displayed a map of the state which showed the population of each county, the number of people on public relief in each county. The statistics were compiled as of January 11, 1934, when CWA was at its peak.

The percentage of people on public relief in upper peninsula counties ranged from 24.2 per cent in Chippewa the lowest, to 81.5 per cent in Keweenaw, the highest. Marquette county, with a population of 44,076, had 17,950 persons, or 41 per cent, on relief, including direct relief and CWA.

In Keweenaw county the population is given as 5,076 and there were 4,140 on public relief.

The statistics furnished by Mr. Foley are intended to emphasize the need of the $30,000,000 bond issue which is proposed in the employment recovery act, which will be submitted at a referendum election on April 30:

Exhibit Planned For Michigan At Boat-Sports Show

Over two miles of displays, all on one floor and under one roof, will be on view to visitors at the Chicago National Boat and Sports show, which will be held on the navy pier in that city during the week beginning May 6.

The navy pier is a ten million dollar building located a short distance from the Chicago loop, with street cars at the door and parking space for several thousand cars. The show will be staged in one room over half a mile long, with the booths arranged down both sides and through the center, and plenty of space for crowds and entertainment features. The boat races and trap shooting contests of the week will be held in Lake Michigan waters adjoining the pier.

A series of attendance prizes will be given away each night. All guests who receive prize tickets will register, and their addresses will be available to exhibitors. The prizes will include fishing tackle, guns, tents, boats, motors, wearing apparel, binoculars and all-expense vacations at nearby resorts.

Michigan will have a fine tourist and resorting exhibit sponsored by the state tourist and resort commission and the statewide tourist associations. A free fish dinner will be a feature of the opening day at the Michigan booth.

There will be many displays of wild life, and the entire lay out will, it is promised, be on a different and more unique order than at any other affair of the kind heretofore presented. The show will be over before the Century of Progress exposition will enter upon its second season.

GOOD NEWS

The recent activities of the Conservation Officers at the nightly smelt runs is good news to all Conservationists and particularly to the Trout Fishermen. Trout licenses brought by Trout fishermen have practically supported the Fish Division of the Michigan Department of Conservation, and for the past several years the cost of the license rose steadily. In 1930 it was $1.00, 1931, $1.25; 1932, $1.75, and in 1933 was reduced for the first time to $1.00. As a result the Trout fishermen were forced to pay the bill for the bass, perch, bluegills and other pan fish which went into southern Michigan lakes, while the inland lake fishermen fished free from license charges.

The last regular session of the legislature corrected the situation which had worked an injustice to the Trout fishermen and passed the General Rod License Law which required every fisherman to buy a 50 cent license and thus pay his fair share of the cost of the work done by the Fish Division in Michigan. The trout fishermen sighed with relief.

Some few maintain that the smelt is not a game fish. That is not the question. Smelt dipping is real sport and the decision of the Conservation Commissioners, requiring smelt fishermen to purchase a Rod License was evidently not based on the status of smelt as a game fish but on the evident enjoyment to be received from dip-netting a portion of the millions of smelt which ascend northern Michigan streams during their annual spring migration. A few minutes at the scene of action on any Delta County smelt stream will furnish conclusive proof of the high place smelt dipping holds in fishing experiences. The recent smelt stream activities of the Conservation Officers are hailed with joy by the Trout fishermen of Northern Michigan.

Banking Problems

To the Press:

I wish to express one farmer's idea of banks. There is so much loose talk about banks and borrowing and credit. And so many are blaming the banks for being too "tight."

Let us think what a bank is and what it should do. Suppose a bank has a capital of $100,000 and deposits of ten or twenty times as much. Now when the bank loans $1,000 nearly all of it is really the people's money and not the banks. If a banker is careless and loans on poor security he endangers the people's money much more than his own.

Escanaba is fortunate and should be proud in having bankers who were careful enough so that not a dollar was lost by any depositor during the late bank crisis.

Now the president is planning to have the government loan money to private business firms. A bank is always glad to loan on proper security. That is the way it makes a profit. If the government loans on improper security it is the loss of you and me for taxes will have to be collected to make up the loss.

In a recent talk with a Wisconsin friend, who is a banker, he told me that his bank got rid of a lot of chattel mortgages by the farmers getting government loans. Many times these loans were for more than the property was worth. Of course you and I will have to help pay those losses by increased taxation.

In my judgment a government loan to private business is all wrong and the people should write the members of congress to head such a law off.

We do not keep in touch with our senators and representatives as closely as we should. Let them know we are interested and encourage them when they stand for what we think is right.

Pleas Of Guilty In Liquor Cases Lighten Sentences

Persons arrested for violation of the liquor laws in Alger county will be given a new deal in the dispensing of justice in these cases, Justice Thomas J. Walters informed the Press correspondent yesterday. When anyone is brought into his court on a liquor charge, hereafter, a plea of guilty will reduce the charge to one of a misdemeanor and the punishment will be meted out in justice court, he said, thus disposing of the case and saving the county considerable expense.

However, if an examination is demanded and sufficient evidence is furnished whereby the defendant is bound over to circuit court the charge becomes a felony. This is in accordance with an act passed by the special session of the legislature, for immediate effect after the repeal of the 18th amendment, and the interpretation that the state liquor control commission places on this act.

The first case where this method was applied was held in Justice Walters' court yesterday when John Cleary, of Island View Addition, was arrested by Sheriff Pellitier for the sale of moonshine whiskey. Cleary was arrested on affidavit made by Joe Scott of Wetmore. He pleaded guilty and was fined $50 and

FOREST SERVICE PLANS FOR 1934

Real Work Accomplished In Peninsula By CCC Crews

"The President's emergency conservation work program, popularly known as the CCC program, has passed through the trial and development stages and is functioning as a real work accomplishing program," says F. J. Johnson, acting federal forest supervisor in this district. The improvement of national forests under the CCC program is now entering its second year, and the forest service is making plans for the handling of an enlarged program during the new period.

Just a year ago the initial Upper Michigan CCC camps were established on the Upper Michigan National Forests. The Department of Labor was made responsible for the selection of the men. The Department of War has had the responsibility of enrolling and caring for the men and operating the camps.

The Forest Service of the Department of Agriculture has been responsible for the successful carrying on of work projects on the National Forests.

The Forest Service has an experienced camp superintendent and several trained foremen in each camp whose responsibility it is to have complete charge of the work projects, and to handle the work under the direct supervision of year long forest officers.

A list of the forest officers in immediate charge of the work on the national forests, and the camp superintendents are as follows:

Marquette National Forest

Forest Ranger—E. F. Ball with headquarters at Raco.

Camp Supt., Raco Camp—A. J. Quinkert.

Camp Supt., Strongs Camp — H. Miotke.

Camp Supt., Pine River Camp —R. Kellett.

Hiawatha National Forest

Forest Ranger—Geo. D. Ferrari with headquarters at Munising.

Camp Supt., Kentucky Camp—R. Sloss.

Camp Supt., Steuben Camp—L. Cihak.

Camp Supt., Wyman Camp — P. R. Krueger.

Camp Supt., McComb Lake Camp—A. Ewald.

Ottawa National Forest

Forest Ranger—Clare Hendeo with headquarters at Kenton.

Camp Supt., Kenton Camp — C. B. Goetzen.

Camp Supt., Jumbo Camp — P. Sliger.

Current reports of work accomplishment out of the CCC Camps have been published from time to time. A complete summary of work accomplished on the Upper Michigan national forests during the past year will be prepared within the next few days and a complete summary will be published for the information of the public.

A glimpse at the work plans being prepared, for the camps on the national forests, and covering the next six months period shows a forecast of an even greater amount of work to be accomplished than in the past twelve months. Plans are well along for the planting of at least 20 thousand acres of national forest land to tree seedlings, the improvement of several thousand acres of timber stands, the construction of 150 miles of protection roads, the construction of four lookout towers, eleven fire guard cabins, four large warehouses, the eradication of several thousand acres of ribes for the protection of white pine from blister rust infection and the improvement of several trout streams and lakes. The construction of 160 miles of telephone lines will be accomplished and several public camp grounds will be prepared for public use and enjoyment.

These and many other improvements, vitally needed for the efficient administration and protection of the Upper Michigan national forests, will be accomplished by men in the CCC and under the supervision of the forest service.

The enrolled men in the CCC camps are by and large taking an active interest in the work, and are eager to continue doing their part in building the national forests to a point where every acre is producing its maximum yield and the forests in condition so that they can be administered for the greatest good to the greatest number of people in the long run.

A large amount of improvement work will be carried on in the areas recently approved as additions to the national forests. It is the aim of the Upper Michigan forest service personnel to practically complete the road and improvement construction work on the forests and purchase unit additions this year.

Junior Class Play Is Well Received

Newberry, April 7—A play with many unusual features was "Tiger House" given on Friday night by the junior class of the Newberry high school before a good audience in the school auditorium. It was a mystery play, full of thrills and unexpected turns, with many clever lines and was well done by the young people. The stage management was an important item in the success of the play, lightning-wind effects being managed with skill. Miss Lois Heath had charge of the production and the stage was set by Burton Kemp and the members of the manuel arts classes. The cast: Erma Lowrie taken by Kathryn Shepherd. Aunt Sophis by Ethel Knutson; Mystery Woman by Ruth Thorley, Peg Van Ness by Muriel Jewell, Yami by Wesley North, Arthur Hale by Harvey Riddell, MacIntosh by Louis Dwyer, Mrs. Murdock by Muriel Ney, Thompson by Gordon Campbell and Oswold Kerins by Charles Labrom.

SOCIAL WELFARE CLUB

The Newberry State Hospital Nurses Guild was organized on Wednesday evening at the state institution under supervision of Mrs. M. R. Barringer, superintendent of nurses. The new club is to be a social welfare club. The first meeting was held at the Nurse's home with ten charter members present; Mrs. M. R. Barringer, Mrs. Charles Burns, Mrs. E. Nelson Dennis, Mrs. Harold Harrison, Miss Margaret Shilson, Miss Clara Anderson, Miss Catherine Seass, Miss Irene Wilbur, Miss Margaret Grogan and Miss Helen Driscoll. Plans for the spring and summer were outlined at this time and a delicious lunch was served. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Burns with Mrs. Burns and Miss Seass as hostesses.

SNOW AND ICE

Driving on the woods roads, side roads and village streets has its own doubtful joys these days. Although the snow is going rapidly under the warm sun the ice ruts are so deep that cars must use railroad tactics and go into a switch to allow each other to pass. Two conservation officers, making a trip through the northern end of the county report snow three feet depe on the level on the road between Pine-Stump Junction and Reed and Green bridge on the Two Heart. At the bridge the snow settled 10 inches in twenty-four hours.

Newberry streets are a mess due to the sewer construction and the melting snow and ice. Newberry Avenue is about the worst in town, from the railroad to the south limits, with the ridge of mud down the center and the rest of the street thickly coated with mud and sand from the winter sandings. A good rain would do wonders and is needed badly.

4-H CLUB

Miss Olga Bird and Clare Rood of Marquette, U. P. 4-H Club leaders will be the officials in charge of the 4-H round-up in the community building on Tuesday next. The program includes a display of handicraft from 3 to 9 p. m. and the awarding of prizes. A style show, in which the girls will wear the outfits which they have made during the year will be one of the main features. Two girls and two boys, the healthiest of those competing, will be selected by Dr. Swanson as health champions of the county. The work in Luce county has been carried on by volunteers since the office of county farm agent was discontinued but the young people are doing excellent work and will make a good showing. The public is invited to attend.

SENEY MARSH PROJECT

Word comes from a conservation official who has recently been in Lansing that the wild duck refuge planned for the great Seney marsh is looking better and better. The federal department of conservation is being urged to take over the 300,000 acre of now almost useless march and sand ridges and return them to the condition in which they gave feeding and breeding grounds to millions of wild ducks in the days before roads and ditches drained the territory. Sportsmen and resort people in this end of the peninsula are getting interested in the project and hope to be able to get the work under way while the CCC camps are still available for man-power.

Dairy Products Are Boosted In Upper Peninsula

A resolution was unanimously passed at the recent Tri-State Dairy congress meeting in Duluth, urging an extensive advertising campaign to call the better attention of the public to the food value of dairy products.

It was pointed out that the per capita annual use of milk, cream, cheese and other milk derivatives in the United States is only a fraction of such consumption in many other countries.

The Michigan Butter committee of the National Dairy council announced a few days ago that active work along this line will be under way shortly in the upper peninsula. Pledges will be secured from the largest possible number of people to increase their family use of milk or milk products by the equivalent of one pound of butter per week.

BUREAU'S FINANCES ARE IMPROVED

ANNOUNCEMENT that the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has been able to drastically improve its financial position during the most critical period of its 23 years of history and at the same time discharge its fundamental functions in behalf of section of Michigan, neglected and unappreciated until the bureau came into being, will be cheering news to a lot of people.

By cutting overhead expenditures to the bone and curtailing all but its most important activities, officers of the bureau, it was revealed at Marquette on Friday, have been able to reduce an indebtedness of approximately $15,000, accumulated over a long period of years, to an amount less than $5,000 and the budget planned for the remainder of the year, contemplates the wiping out of all indebtedness by Jan. 1, 1935.

Through a state appropriation engineered through the legislature by Gov. William A. Comstock, under which the development bureau will receive $10,000 this year, if the bureau itself can raise $2500 for advertising the peninsula and its summer tourist attractions, bureau officials have announced that every prospect is offered that a sizable advertising campaign can be conducted and by continued vigilance over other expenditures, the present year can be closed with all debts paid up and a cash balance remaining in the treasury.

The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has fully justified itself in the minds of all thinking people of the peninsula, by its accomplishments, in behalf of this section of Michigan and its people, in the 23 years covered by its history. For nearly a quarter of a century every worthwhile movement for the advancement of the interests of the peninsula has been sponsored by the development bureau. It has furnished a common ground for effort by forward looking citizens for the common good of Hiawathaland and its people. It is the development bureau that in season and out of season for many years has advertised the summer tourist advantages of this section of Michigan, to finally place summer tourist patronage as the most important asset possessed by the peninsula. Above all else the development bureau has served as the vehicle for the expression of the wants and the desires of the people of an isolated and detachable section, to officials at Lansing and at Washington, in the collective voice that could be and has been heard, where the voice of individual counties and communities would have been but a whisper. The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has now proven its ability to function in adversity as well as in prosperity and its continued support by the people of the peninsula in measure with their ability under present economic conditions, is all that is asked or expected by officials of the organization.

GREEN COMING NORTH

ANNOUNCEMENT that Ex-Governor Fred W. Green, of Michigan will join Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago in addressing Republicans of the peninsula at Ishpeming on Saturday evening of this week, should make that meeting the largest political gathering ever held in this section of the state. No governor in all the history of Michigan displayed a more practical interest in the welfare and advancement of the peninsula than did Governor Green. The people of this section of the state have not forgotten the recognition they enjoyed or the favors that were extended during his administration and the announcement that he is to discuss state issues at the Ishpeming meeting, will attract a tremendous crowd of his friends and admirers.

Col. Knox will discuss national issues at the coming meeting and his ability as well as his knowledge of national affairs have been tellingly demonstrated in recent weeks by addresses delivered by him at Indianapolis, Kansas City, and Boston.

Members of the committee in charge of the upper peninsula Republican get-together meeting are to be congratulated upon their success in providing for party followers a program that will be featured by the appearance of two such outstanding men as speakers of the evening.

PWA REJECTS "SAN"

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Public Works Administration in Washington that the application of the board of trustees of Pinecrest Sanatorium for a $300,000 loan cannot be granted at this time, due to the fact that consideration is now being given only to projects sponsored by municipalities. Until Congress makes an additional grant of funds for public works projects, it is likely that the Pinecrest Sanatorium project will remain moribund as far as federal aid is concerned.

Hope has been expressed that the greatly needed addition to Pinecrest Sanatorium might be realized with the passage of the $38,000,000 Michigan public works measure into law, it provided that a sum of $590,000 be allocated for the construction of a sanatorium in the upper peninsula, on a site to be selected by the tuberculosis sanatorium commission, if in the judgment of the commission such a sanatorium is needed.

There is no question that additional sanatorium facilities are a dire necessity in the upper peninsula, for a survey made sometime ago has indicated that the death rate from tuberculosis in this region is above that prevailing in lower Michigan.

It is pointed out by some that the $590,000, allocated under the state public works bond issue proposal, could be used advantageously in building additions to the strategically-located sanatoria at Powers and Marquette. Such a procedure would be economically wiser than to construct an entirely new plant at some other point, thereby increasing the cost of maintenance and operation.

Of course, such plans can scarcely be discussed satisfactorily until it is determined whether Michigan's gigantic public works program will be launched. All this depends upon a favorable vote of the people at the special election to be held April 30.

CARNEY ANNOUNCES

CLAUDE S. CARNEY, chairman of the state department of labor and industry, is the first Democrat to definitely announce himself as seeking the nomination for United States senator.

Carney, who hails from Kalamazoo, sought the Democratic nomination for governor in 1932, but was defeated in the primary election by Governor Comstock. Although he was later appointed to the office of labor commissioner by Comstock, it is understood that he is lacking administration support in his new political venture.

Since Carney, although obviously a self-starter, is the first to throw his hat in the ring, he will have a certain strategic advantage. It is possible that the Democratic organization may eventually lend its support to his candidacy, rather than invite others to get into the race, thereby developing a bitter contest that might prove detrimental to the party's interests.

If all the Democrats who have been mentioned as senate possibilities make up their minds to enter the race it will be a grand free-for-all, in which many heads will be bumped. Among those whose names have been in the limelight are: Arthur Lacy, Detroit; Edmund C. Shields, Ann Arbor; Martin R. Bradley, Hermansville; M. S. Pittman, Ypsilanti; Congressman George Foulkes, Hartford; Congressman Michael Hart, Saginaw; Frank A. Picard, Saginaw; and Frank Murphy, now governor-general of the Philippines.

For a time, Auditor General John K. Stack Jr. loomed as a possible senatorial candidate, but the Escanaba man is reported to have his mind set on the governorship. Governor Comstock already has announced his candidacy for relection. The fiery auditor general definitely broke with the administration several weeks ago, and rumors emanating out of Lansing and Detroit indicate that an announcement of his political plans will be forthcoming soon.

25 YEARS SERVICE

REV. DAVID L. CATHCART of Escanaba has gone to Chicago to conduct a series of services in celebration of his 25 years of service as a missionary of the American Sunday School Union.

The Escanaba clergyman first began his missionary work in the mining camps of southern Illinois, and came to the upper peninsula in 1920 to organize Sunday schools in the isolated rural communities and also to preach in the logging camps.

As a lumber camp "sky pilot," however, his work was short-lived, he explained recently. Only for a couple year after his arrival here did he conduct religious services in the camps. The reason for the departure of the old-time "sky pilot" is that lumbering methods have changed, along with the new social and economic conditions. No longer are there the large camps, with from 150 to 250 men employed, since most of the getting out of timber is done by small jobbers.

The automobile and improved highways also have made the services of the "sky pilot" no longer so necessary. The woodsmen usually spend the week-ends with their families in the city and villages outside of the forest areas, enabling them to attend services at their own churches.

The "sky-pilot," like the old-time lumberjack, may be classed along with the other types of pioneer Americans, who no longer appear in the modern scene.

CHAPTER XXXIII

The gossip about Juanito and Estelle finally reached Lottie. "I'll spoil her face!" she promised shrilly as she stood, arms akimbo, looking down at Beau who lounged in a deep wicker chair.

"Aw, show a little sense!"

"It means we'll be kicked outa here," Lottie said craftily. That might reach Beau, she thought.

"A lot you're worryin' about that!" he commented. "Kid," he said easily, "we got our rake-off. I know how you feel about him, Lottie, but he don't lean your way an' that's all there is to it. You might as well make up your mind about it. It ain't your fault an' it ain't his."

"I'll kill that girl!"

"Now don't talk crazy! You got enough to keep you the rest of your days—with what you can pick up easy. You don't wanta go knifin' anyone—"

"Don't I?"

"Aw, have some sense!" he advised again, much tried and showing it.

Marcia sat by Estelle's bed. The girl had suddenly become ill when she heard Marcia planned to go to the fight at La Mirafiores. She had asked Marcia to stay with her. Marcia had stayed, but she had also done some wondering.

She knew that Estelle was only pretending to be sick. Estelle had recently shown little desire for Marcia's company. She had been an irreproachable hostess but Marcia had sensed the fact that Estelle did not like her.

Well, in time she'd find out what it meant, Marcia decided. Meantime—

"Shall I read to you, dear?" she asked.

Estelle said that would be very nice. As Marcia hunted for the book Estelle added, "I hate to think of your going Monday—it is Monday, isn't it?"

Marcia smiled. Quite obviously the child wanted her out of the way.

"I might stop a bit longer," she said with hidden malice, "if someone begged me—very prettily!"

She saw Estelle swallow hard at that. "Now what's up?" Marcia asked herself. "What in the world—?"

Jim Field recognized Juanito as Pablito, the boy who had run his boats, but he had no intention of mentioning the fact. He had won heavily on Juanito. "Ted Jeffries was no good anyway," Field thought as he rode home through the darkness, the scents and moving air that make a moonless Cuban night.

No, he would not give Pablito away. But before the passage of an hour he had put a codicil to this decision.

Carlito was in the hall with a letter in his hand as Field entered. Carlito showed his surprise and made the mistake of holding the letter behind him.

"What have you there?" Field demanded.

"Nothing, Sir."

"Let me see it."

"It is—a letter from the sweetheart of one of the servants. I take it to him."

"I said let me see it!"

Carlito answered bravely. "Mr. Field, it is a letter from a lady—"

"Do you want me to knock you down?"

Carlito felt Field's strong, blunt fingers tighten on his arm. A moment and the letter was in those same fingers.

"A letter from one of the servants—addressed to my daughter!" Field sneered as he slit the envelop. He drew forth the folded sheet beginning, "My own dearest," and ending, "Juanito."

Field laughed. "God!" he exclaimed, "this is a find! And I thought she was mild as milk!"

The letter still in his hand, he pounded up the stairs and made his way, without knocking, into his daughter's room. She was in her night things and a negligee, standing by a window. Field smiled on her with that smile he always gave those wholly within his power.

"I have a letter that is directed to you," he said and his sense of strength was increased by her sudden palor.

"How long has this been going on—and just how far has it gone?" he continued.

Estelle did not pretend to misunderstand. Field's keen, sly eyes followed her. He heard her say in the dry, faltering way of those who are badly frightened, "I love him as I never thought I could love anyone—"

"Ah!" he murmured. "Sit down. We must have a little talk."

Trembling, she settled in a low chair and he dropped to one that faced it. She wished, shrinking, that he was not so near. Then he laughed suddenly, elated by the feeling that she was, after all, his daughter. He himself had not been too particular in his gayest years. Here was the same streak in her; the streak that could let her love a prize fighter, a murderer and a thief.

"You little devil!" he commented. "Well, I understand all this but I won't have it! How far has it gone? Where have you been meeting him?"

"Usually at the park and the Cathedral——"

He guffawed. "You'll do better next time," he prophesied, "but next time it will be harder, too! I'm going to have you watched. Understand? And—I won't have this! I have other plans for you."

He sat back. "Estelle," he said, "I recognized Juanito tonight. Juanito!"

She lost even more color.

"I'm going to turn him over to the police if you ever see him again. That's all. Otherwise he can go his damned way without any interference from me. Is that clear?"

"But he didn't do it, Father—!

He smiled and raised his bushy eyebrows. "I don't care whether he did or not. I said I have other plans for you. And I also said that if you see him again I'll turn him over to the police who are still looking for him. Do you understand me?"

"Yes."

"Do you agree?"

"No."

He started, leaning forward. "Why not?"

"I love him so!"

"Is that all?"

"What else?" she questioned with a little surprise. He relaxed, smiling once more.

"Well," he said slowly, "if you can't give him up I can inform the authorities and let justice take its course. That will mean that your Juanito will go to prison for life—if he's lucky. Otherwise he'll sleep a few nights in the Death House and then—" He paused to search his pockets for a cigaret case, finds it and lights a cigaret. "I've always wondered," he went on, "whether the method they use is quite merciful. It sometimes takes three turns of the switch or button—whatever it is—to kill a man. Have a cigaret, child."

"No."

"The young man's life is in your hands, Estelle. He hasn't a chance if I turn him over to the police. And he couldn't hide again. I shall have him watched until you tell me that I do not need to. It's for you to decide."

She began to speak as he had known she would, to beg his mercy. She was still amazingly young, he thought, as he heard her. Her voice blurred, shook, broke as she repeated her petitions.

"All this is interesting," he commented as she paused, breathing hard and shaking. "Interesting but not convincing. If you see him again I'll send him to life imprisonment or death. Have you ever known me to break my word?"

She made no answer.

Field took out his watch. "I shall give you," he said, looking at the watch, "five minutes in which to decide."

He whistled a waltz tune that was being played at the cafes. The girl sat before him, her stricken eyes on his, her tense hands gripping the arms of the chair.

ALL RIGHTIE

I hear her on the telephone,
Behind the counter sometimes meet her,
And yet, though saccharine her tone,
As sweet as sugar, often sweeter,
Of all the folk who come and go,
The one I really would indictie
Is some sweet thing I do not know
Who dares to answer me "All rightie."

I try to telephone some man
About some goods he'd like to sell me,
Say, "Please connect me, if you can."
Then what does that fair maiden tell me?
Another house has lost a sale
Because I'm mad enough to fightie,
Yet some men wonder why they fail
Who have a girl who says, "All rightie."

I know I'd be a man of peace,
I would if clerks and operators
Would only please desist and cease
From stirring up my inner craters.
Alas, I know instead that I
Shall run around some day and bitie
The maid who gives me that reply,
Though she's all right, except "All Rightie.'

Bounty System Recommended For Those Who Dip-Net Smelt

Well I have undertook to look into this Smelts fishing sitsuation for you and will now give you the real Low down dope from first hand infomation Gathered by myself on the scene of the action

And after considerable personal questioning amongst the net Dippers theirselfs I have reached the following concluseions why it is they do not get licenst to take out smelts

1st—They do not consider net dipping is fishing

2st—They do not consider Smelts is fish

3st—They do not like to eat Smelts

4st—They do not have the 50c

So from what I can gather on the sitsuation I would say that instead of put fine on those which net dip for Smelts I would say they should pay them a bounty of so much per bushel or so much per truck load and have the consevation officers punch a hole with a ticket punch in the tails of each smelt which was caught so that the fishermens could not cheat and collect bounty twicet on the same Smelt they same way they use to do with Wolfs and this would be fair to all concerned and those which catch Smelts by the truck load and still do not like to eat them could get some thing out of consevation officers by Bounty and then use them for Fertillizar meaning the Smelts or elst have a closed season on Smelts instead of breaking up their Familys every spring

Now some folks a thrill and a
Lark
And some fun seem to be getting
From Going to fish after dark
And Trying luck at Smelts netting

A smelt can be felt but not
smellt
And often you get a good wetting
When ice of the stream start to
Melt
I never seen sport in Smelt netting

'Now What Are We Going to Argue About?'

Michigan In Washington

Emil Hurja of Crystal Falls Slated to Direct Next National Campaign for Democratic Party

(By The Associated Press)

From Capitol Hill come increasing rumors that Emil Hurja, who came to Washington from Crystal Falls, Mich., to play an important role in the new administration, is going to direct the next national campaign for the Democrats.

Hurja, who first was closely allied with Postmaster General James A. Farley, has more recently been connected with the administration of Secretary Ickes in the public works section. The capitol reports now say he is preparing to leave that department and that the indications are he will return to Democratic national headquarters.

The possibility has added to the increasing interest in the Democratic nomination in Michigan of a candidate to seek the seat now held by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, who already has made his formal bid for renomination.

Although Frank Murphy, who quit as mayor of Detroit to become governor-general of the Philippine Islands has repeatedly denied that he will return to his home state to make the race for the senatorship himself, there remains a possibility that he will come back to take the stump throughout the state for the nominee.

Michigan Democrats believe Murphy could help make the campaign a spirited one and that he would wield some influence by personal appearances.

Representative Michael J. Hart of Saginaw, who is by a short space the oldest Democratic Michigan member of the house in point of service, still refuses to say whether he will be a candidate, and has indicated strongly that if he is he will not make a formal announcement in advance of the time for nomination.

Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit came into the picture a few days ago when he was in Washington, and friends urged him to consider making the race for senator or to seek the gubernatorial nomination. Lacy was reluctant to discuss his plans, however.

Woodruff Is Prominent

Representative Roy O. Woodruff of Bay City has been one of the most conspicuous participants in debate on the Republican side of the house recently, twice attacking the administration's proposals, and rising frequently in spirited debate over the sugar program.

Woodruff denounced the tariff bill in a lengthy address in which he characterized it as "abandonment of the last vestige of the power of congress under the constitution." He assailed the sugar bill as one that was designed to "wreck the American sugar beet industry."

Prospects for a restoration of airmail service in Michigan have been brightened considerably by Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, who holds out hope that permanent service from Detroit by way of Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskegon to Milwaukee may be resumed permanently.

Michigan is characterized by its representatives here as being virtually off the air mail map, with only a "relay" from Toledo to Detroit, which has not been serving the remainder of the state.

Who'll Get Job?

The Democrats are still unable to hazard a good guess as to the probable appointee for collector of customs for the port of Detroit.

One of the Michigan newcomers in the house apparently is going to be opposed for renomination by his former secretary. Representative John D. Dingell of Detroit, said he understood that Horace Thurber, who came to Washington with him as his secretary a year ago, is planning to enter the race.

Dingell has made it no secret that the parting of the ways by himself and Thurber was not an amicable one, and he added that he was not "worried" about his opponent. Dingell defeated Charles Bowles, former mayor of Detroit, in the fall election of 1932.

The New York Telephone Co. reports a net gain of 4,781 stations in March, contrasting with a net loss of 19,163 installations in March, 1933. The net increase for the first quarter of this year was 5,711 compared with a loss of [illegible]

20 Years Ago

Although three days have elapsed since Monday's election, no returns have yet been received at the county clerk's office from Fairbanks township, one of the most isolated sections of the county. Masonville, Garden and Nahma townships finally filed their belated returns yesterday but the Fairbanks vote is still missing from the tabulation and County Clerk Semer is becoming concerned over the delay.

An active Mothers club organization, sponsored by the Escanaba Womans club, was organized yesterday at the Webster school, with the following officers: Mrs. Carl Johnson, president; Mrs. W. D. Mooney, vice president; Mrs. A. S. Kitchen, secretary and Mrs. Ira Nelson, treasurer. An effort will be made to organize similar clubs among the mothers of pupils in all the public schools of the city.

Returns filed with the county clerk yesterday showed that Ex-Supervisor Reuben Young, of Rapid River staged a comeback at Monday's election, defeating Supervisor Levi Barboo 142 to 109. In Garden township Supervisor Wesley Gray defeated George Marsil by a vote of 132 to 85.

Deputy State Game Warden Herman Leisner has returned to the city after killing a pack of five deer hounds at the Weston Lumber Company's camp, seven miles north of Watson.

By a vote of 146 to 59 the people of Garden township voted on Monday to issue bonds of the township for the purchase of the Van's Harbor Land & Lumber Company's railroad, extending from Van's Harbor to Cook's mills.

Breaking all records for previousness and displaying the first real sign of spring a well known Escanaba young man appeared on Ludington street yesterday wearing a straw hat. Last year the first straw hat appeared here on April 15.

BUREAU'S FINANCES ARE IMPROVED

ANNOUNCEMENT that the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has been able to drastically improve its financial position during the most critical period of its 23 years of history and at the same time discharge its fundamental functions in behalf of section of Michigan, neglected and unappreciated until the bureau came into being, will be cheering news to a lot of people.

By cutting overhead expenditures to the bone and curtailing all but its most important activities, officers of the bureau, it was revealed at Marquette on Friday, have been able to reduce an indebtedness of approximately $15,000, accumulated over a long period of years, to an amount less than $5,000 and the budget planned for the remainder of this year, contemplates the wiping out of all indebtedness by Jan. 1, 1935.

Through a state appropriation engineered through the legislature by Gov. William A. Comstock, under which the development bureau will receive $10,000 this year, if the bureau itself can raise $2500 for advertising the peninsula and its summer tourist attractions, bureau officials have announced that every prospect is offered that a sizable advertising campaign can be conducted and by continued vigilance over other expenditures, the present year can be closed with all debts paid up and a cash balance remaining in the treasury.

The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has fully justified itself in the minds of all thinking people of the peninsula, by its accomplishments, in behalf of this section of Michigan and its people, in the 23 years covered by its history. For nearly a quarter of a century every worthwhile movement for the advancement of the interests of the peninsula has been sponsored by the development bureau. It has furnished a common ground for effort by forward looking citizens for the common good of Hiawathaland and its people. It is the development bureau that in season and out of season for many years has advertised the summer tourist advantages of this section of Michigan, to finally place summer tourist patronage as the most important asset possessed by the peninsula. Above all else the development bureau has served as the vehicle for the expression of the wants and the desires of the people of an isolated and detachable section, to officials at Lansing and at Washington, in the collective voice that could be and has been heard, where the voice of individual counties and communities would have been but a whisper. The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has now proven its ability to function in adversity as well as in prosperity and its continued support by the people of the peninsula in measure with their ability under present economic conditions, is all that is asked or expected by officials of the organization.

GREEN COMING NORTH

ANNOUNCEMENT that Ex-Governor Fred W. Green, of Michigan will join Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago in addressing Republicans of the peninsula at Ishpeming on Saturday evening of this week, should make that meeting the largest political gathering ever held in this section of the state. No governor in all the history of Michigan displayed a more practical interest in the welfare and advancement of the peninsula than did Governor Green. The people of this section of the state have not forgotten the recognition they enjoyed or the favors that were extended during his administration and the announcement that he is to discuss state issues at the Ishpeming meeting, will attract a tremendous crowd of his friends and admirers.

Col. Knox will discuss national issues at the coming meeting and his ability as well as his knowledge of national affairs have been tellingly demonstrated in recent weeks by addresses delivered by him at Indianapolis, Kansas City, and Boston.

Members of the committee in charge of the upper peninsula Republican get-together meeting are to be congratulated upon their success in providing for party followers a program that will be featured by the appearance of two such outstanding men as speakers of the evening.

PWA REJECTS "SAN"

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Public Works Administration in Washington that the application of the board of trustees of Pinecrest Sanatorium for a $300,000 loan cannot be granted at this time, due to the fact that consideration is now being given only to projects sponsored by municipalities. Until Congress makes an additional grant of funds for public works projects, it is likely that the Pinecrest Sanatorium project will remain moribund as far as federal aid is concerned.

Hope has been expressed that the greatly needed addition to Pinecrest Sanatorium might be realized with the passage of the $38,000,000 Michigan public works measure into law, it provided that a sum of $590,000 be allocated for the construction of a sanatorium in the upper peninsula, on a site to be selected by the tuberculosis sanatorium commission, if in the judgment of the commission such a sanatorium is needed.

There is no question that additional sanatorium facilities are a dire necessity in the upper peninsula, for a survey made sometime ago has indicated that the death rate from tuberculosis in this region is above that prevailing in lower Michigan.

It is pointed out by some that the $590,000, allocated under the state public works bond issue proposal, could be used advantageously in building additions to the strategically-located sanatoria at Powers and Marquette. Such a procedure would be economically wiser than to construct an entirely new plant at some other point, thereby increasing the cost of maintenance and operation.

Of course, such plans can scarcely be discussed satisfactorily until it is determined whether Michigan's gigantic public works program will be launched. All this depends upon a favorable vote of the people at the special election to be held April 30.

CARNEY ANNOUNCES

CLAUDE S. CARNEY, chairman of the state department of labor and industry, is the first Democrat to definitely announce himself as seeking the nomination for United States senator.

Carney, who hails from Kalamazoo, sought the Democratic nomination for governor in 1932, but was defeated in the primary election by Governor Comstock. Although he was later appointed to the office of labor commissioner by Comstock, it is understood that he is lacking administration support in his new political venture.

Since Carney, although obviously a self-starter, is the first to throw his hat in the ring, he will have a certain strategic advantage. It is possible that the Democratic organization may eventually lend its support to his candidacy, rather than invite others to get into the race, thereby developing a bitter contest that might prove detrimental to the party's interests.

If all the Democrats who have been mentioned as senate possibilities make up their minds to enter the race it will be a grand free-for-all, in which many heads will be bumped. Among those whose names have been in the limelight are: Arthur Lacy, Detroit; Edmund C. Shields, Ann Arbor; Martin R. Bradley, Hermansville; M. S. Pittman, Ypsilanti; Congressman George Foulkes, Hartford; Congressman Michael Hart, Saginaw; Frank A. Picard, Saginaw; and Frank Murphy, now governor-general of the Philippines.

For a time, Auditor General John K. Stack Jr. loomed as a possible senatorial candidate, but the Escanaba man is reported to have his mind set on the governorship. Governor Comstock already has announced his candidacy for relection. The fiery auditor general definitely broke with the administration several weeks ago, and rumors emanating out of Lansing and Detroit indicate that an announcement of his political plans will be forthcoming soon.

25 YEARS SERVICE

REV. DAVID L. CATHCART of Escanaba has gone to Chicago to conduct a series of services in celebration of his 25 years of service as a missionary of the American Sunday School Union.

The Escanaba clergyman first began his missionary work in the mining camps of southern Illinois, and came to the upper peninsula in 1920 to organize Sunday schools in the isolated rural communities and also to preach in the logging camps.

As a lumber camp "sky pilot," however, his work was short-lived, he explained recently. Only for a couple year after his arrival here did he conduct religious services in the camps. The reason for the departure of the old-time "sky pilot" is that lumbering methods have changed, along with the new social and economic conditions. No longer are there the large camps, with from 150 to 250 men employed, since most of the getting out of timber is done by small jobbers.

The automobile and improved highways also have made the services of the "sky pilot" no longer so necessary. The woodsmen usually spend the week-ends with their families in the city and villages outside of the forest areas, enabling them to attend services at their own churches.

The "sky-pilot," like the old-time lumberjack, may be classed along with the other types of pioneer Americans, who no longer appear in the modern scene.

CHAPTER XXXIII

The gossip about Juanito and Estelle finally reached Lottie. "I'll spoil her face!" she promised shrilly as she stood, arms akimbo, looking down at Beau who lounged in a deep wicker chair.

"Aw, show a little sense!"

"It means we'll be kicked outa here," Lottie said craftily. That might reach Beau, she thought.

"A lot you're worryin' about that!" he commented. "Kid," he said easily, "we got our rake-off. I know how you feel about him, Lottie, but he don't lean your way an' that's all there is to it. You might as well make up your mind about it. It ain't your fault an' it ain't his."

"I'll kill that girl!"

"Now don't talk crazy! You got enough to keep you the rest of your days—with what you can pick up easy. You don't wanta go knifin' anyone—"

"Don't I?"

"Aw, have some sense!" he advised again, much tried and showing it.

Marcia sat by Estelle's bed. The girl had suddenly become ill when she heard Marcia planned to go to the fight at La Miraflores. She had asked Marcia to stay with her. Marcia had stayed, but she had also done some wondering.

She knew that Estelle was only pretending to be sick. Estelle had recently shown little desire for Marcia's company. She had been an irreproachable hostess but Marcia had sensed the fact that Estelle did not like her.

Well, in time she'd find out what it meant, Marcia decided. Meantime—

"Shall I read to you, dear?" she asked.

Estelle said that would be very nice. As Marcia hunted for the book Estelle added, "I hate to think of your going Monday—it is Monday, isn't it?"

Marcia smiled. Quite obviously the child wanted her out of the way.

"I might stop a bit longer," she said with hidden malice, "if someone begged me—very prettily!"

She saw Estelle swallow hard at that. "Now what's up?" Marcia asked herself. "What in the world—?"

Jim Field recognized Juanito as Pablito, the boy who had run his boats, but he had no intention of mentioning the fact. He had won heavily on Juanito. "Ted Jeffries was no good anyway," Field thought as he rode home through the darkness, the scents and moving air that make a moonless Cuban night.

No, he would not give Pablito away. But before the passage of an hour he had put a codicil to this decision.

Carlito was in the hall with a letter in his hand as Field entered. Carlito showed his surprise and made the mistake of holding the letter behind him.

"What have you there?" Field demanded.

"Nothing, Sir."

"Let me see it."

"It is—a letter from the sweetheart of one of the servants. I take it to him."

"I said let me see it!"

Carlito answered bravely. "Mr. Field, it is a letter from a lady—"

"Do you want me to knock you down?"

Carlito felt Field's strong, blunt fingers tighten on his arm. A moment and the letter was in those same fingers.

"A letter from one of the servants—addressed to my daughter!" Field sneered as he slit the envelop. He drew forth the folded sheet beginning, "My own dearest," and ending, "Juanito."

Field laughed. "God!" he exclaimed, "this is a find! And I thought she was mild as milk!"

The letter still in his hand, he pounded up the stairs and made his way, without knocking, into his daughter's room. She was in her night things and a negligee, standing by a window. Field smiled on her with that smile he always gave those wholly within his power.

"I have a letter that is directed to you," he said and his sense of strength was increased by her sudden palor.

"How long has this been going on—and just how far has it gone?" he continued.

Estelle did not pretend to misunderstand. Field's keen, sly eyes followed her. He heard her say in the dry, faltering way of those who are badly frightened, "I love him as I never thought I could love anyone—"

"Ah!" he murmured. "Sit down. We must have a little talk."

Trembling, she settled in a low chair and he dropped to one that faced it. She wished, shrinking, that he was not so near. Then he laughed suddenly, elated by the feeling that she was, after all, his daughter. He himself had not been too particular in his gayest years. Here was the same streak in her; the streak that could let her love a prize fighter, a murderer and a thief.

"You little devil!" he commented. "Well, I understand all this but I won't have it! How far has it gone? Where have you been meeting him?"

"Usually at the park and the Cathedral——"

He guffawed. "You'll do better next time," he prophesied, "but next time it will be harder, too! I'm going to have you watched. Understand? And—I won't have this! I have other plans for you."

He sat back. "Estelle," he said, "I recognized Juanito tonight. Juanito!"

She lost even more color.

"I'm going to turn him over to the police if you ever see him again. That's all. Otherwise he can go his damned way without any interference from me. Is that clear?"

"But he didn't do it, Father—!

He smiled and raised his bushy eyebrows. "I don't care whether he did or not. I said I have other plans for you. And I also said that if you see him again I'll turn him over to the police who are still looking for him. Do you understand me?"

"Yes."

"Do you agree?"

"No."

He started, leaning forward. "Why not?"

"I love him so!"

"Is that all?"

"What else?" she questioned with a little surprise. He relaxed, smiling once more.

"Well," he said slowly, "if you can't give him up I can inform the authorities and let justice take its course. That will mean that your Juanito will go to prison for life—if he's lucky. Otherwise he'll sleep a few nights in the Death House and then—" He paused to search his pockets for a cigaret case, finds it and lights a cigaret. "I've always wondered," he went on, "whether the method they use is quite merciful. It sometimes takes three turns of the switch or button—whatever it is—to kill a man. Have a cigaret, child."

"No."

"The young man's life is in your hands, Estelle. He hasn't a chance if I turn him over to the police. And he couldn't hide again. I shall have him watched until you tell me that I do not need to. It's for you to decide."

She began to speak as he had known she would, to beg his mercy. She was still amazingly young, he thought, as he heard her. Her voice blurred, shook, broke as she repeated her petitions.

"All this is interesting," he commented as she paused, breathing hard and shaking. "Interesting but not convincing. If you see him again I'll send him to life imprisonment or death. Have you ever known me to break my word?"

She made no answer.

Field took out his watch. "I shall give you," he said, looking at the watch, "five minutes in which to decide."

He whistled a waltz tune that was being played at the cafes. The girl sat before him, her stricken eyes on his, her tense hands gripping the arms of the chair.

ALL RIGHTIE

I hear her on the telephone,
Behind the counter sometimes meet her,
And yet, though saccharine her tone,
As sweet as sugar, often sweeter,
Of all the folk who come and go,
The one I really would indictie
Is some sweet thing I do not know
Who dares to answer me "All rightie."

I try to telephone some man
About some goods he'd like to sell me,
Say, "Please connect me, if you can,"
Then what does that fair maiden tell me?
Another house has lost a sale
Because I'm mad enough to fightie,
Yet some men wonder why they fail
Who have a girl who says, "All rightie."

I know I'd be a man of peace,
I would if clerks and operators
Would only please desist and cease
From stirring up my inner craters,
Alas, I know instead that I
Shall run around some day and bitie
The maid who gives me that reply,
Though she's all right, except "All Rightie.'

Bounty System Recommended For Those Who Dip-Net Smelt

Well I have undertook to look into this Smelts fishing sitsuation for you and will now give you the real Low down dope from first hand infomation Gathered by myself on the scene of the action

And after considerable personal questioning amongst the net Dippers theirselfs I have reached the following concluseions why it is they do not get licenst to take out smelts

1st—They do not consider net dipping is fishing

2st—They do not consider Smelts is fish

3st—They do not like to eat Smelts

4st—They do not have the 50c

So from what I can gather on the sitsuation I would say that instead of put fine on those which net dip for Smelts I would say they should pay them a bounty of so much per bushel or so much per truck load and have the consevation officers punch a hole with a ticket punch in the tails of each smelt which was caught so that the fishermens could not cheat and collect bounty twicet on the same Smelt they same way they use to do with Wolfs and this would be fair to all concerned and those which catch Smelts by the truck load and still do not like to eat them could get some thing out of consevation officers by Bounty and then use them for Fertillizar meaning the Smelts or elst have a closed season on Smelts instead of breaking up their Familys every spring

Now some folks a thrill and a Lark
And some fun seem to be getting
From Going to fish after dark
And Trying luck at Smelts netting

A smelt can be felt but not smellt
And often you get a good wetting
When ice of the stream stert to Melt
I never seen sport in Smelt netting

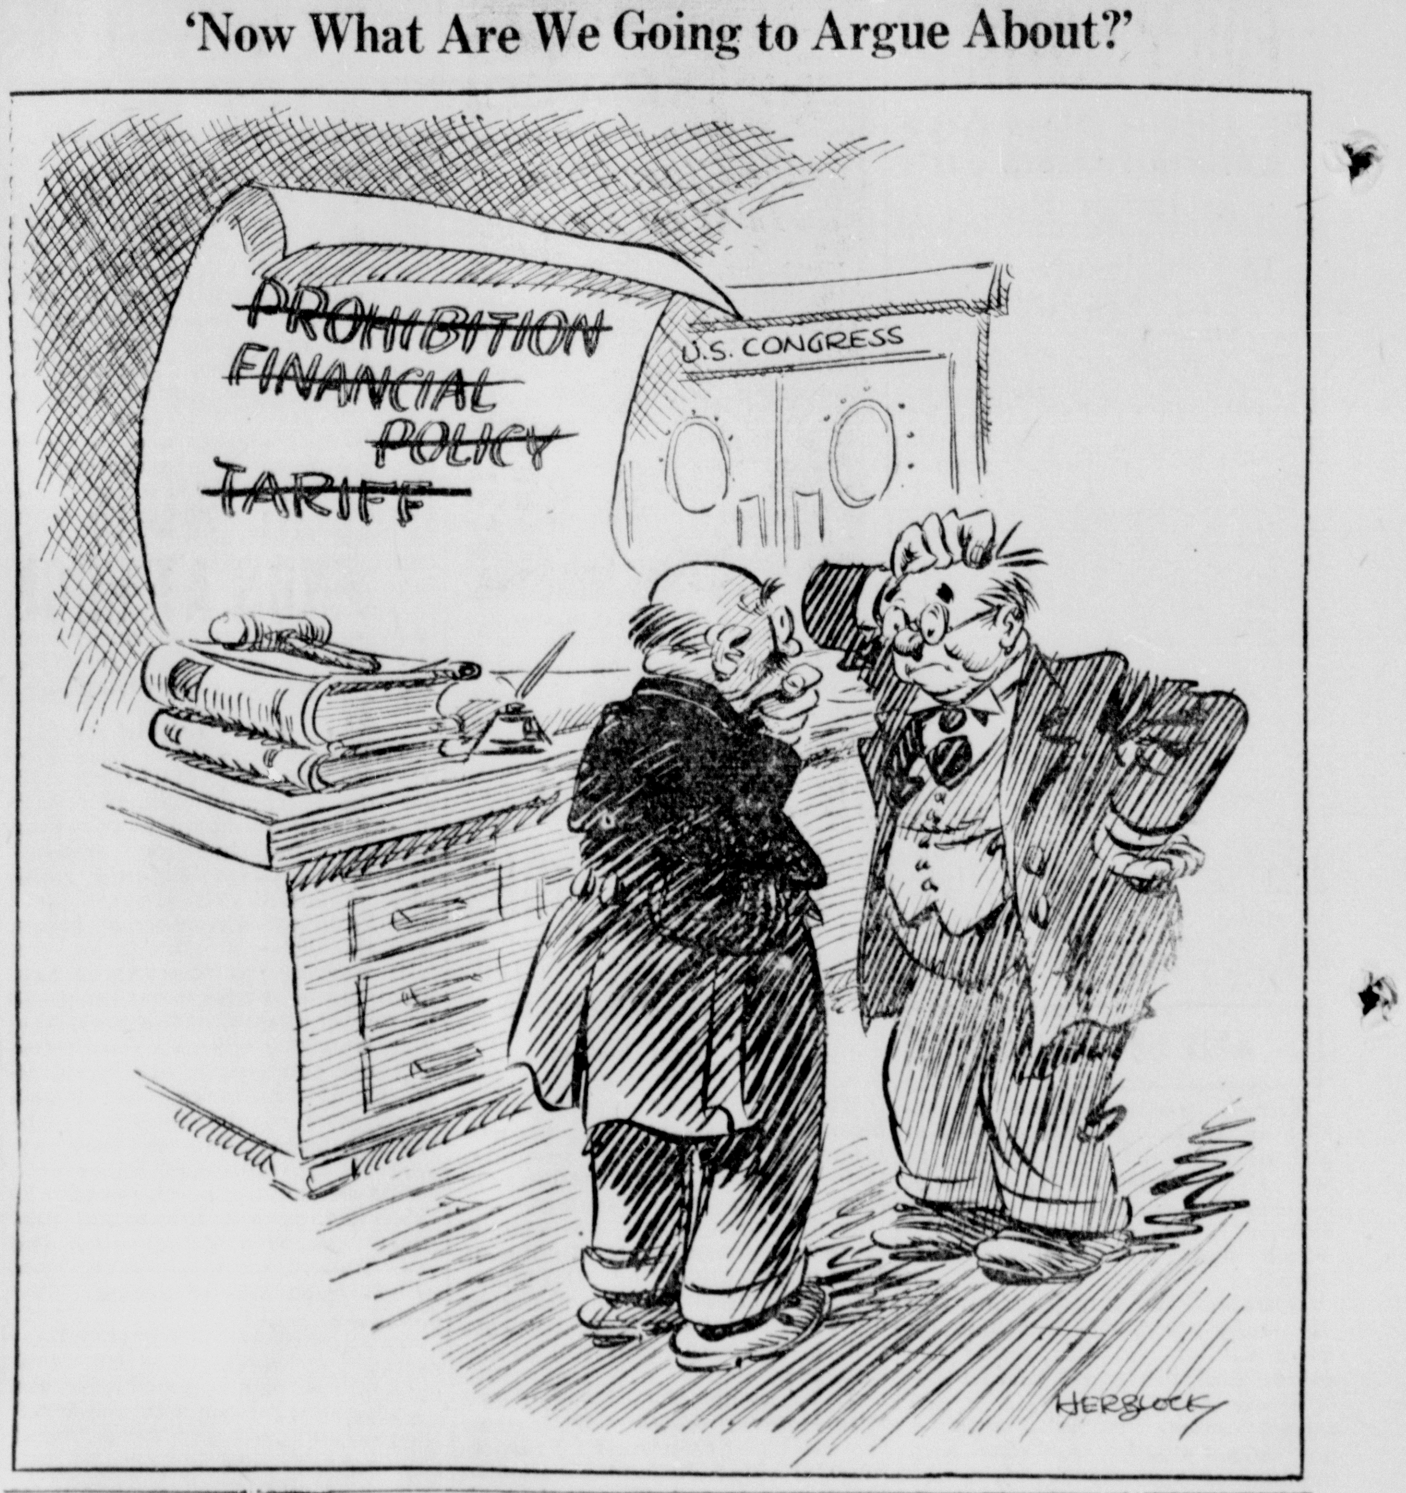
'Now What Are We Going to Argue About?'



Michigan In Washington

(By The Associated Press)

From Capitol Hill come increasing rumors that Emil Hurja, who came to Washington from Crystal Falls, Mich., to play an important role in the new administration, is going to direct the next national campaign for the Democrats.

Hurja, who first was closely allied with Postmaster General James A. Farley, has more recently been connected with the administration of Secretary Ickes in the public works section. The capitol reports now say he is preparing to leave that department and that the indications are he will return to Democratic national headquarters.

The possibility has added to the increasing interest in the Democratic nomination in Michigan of a candidate to seek the seat now held by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, who already has made his formal bid for renomination.

Although Frank Murphy, who quit as mayor of Detroit to become governor-general of the Philippine Islands has repeatedly denied that he will return to his home state to make the race for the senatorship himself, there remains a possibility that he will come back to take the stump throughout the state for the nominee.

Michigan Democrats believe Murphy could help make the campaign a spirited one and that he would wield some influence by personal appearances.

Representative Michael J. Hart of Saginaw, who is by a short space the oldest Democratic Michigan member of the house in point of service, still refuses to say whether he will be a candidate, and has indicated strongly that if he is he will not make a formal announcement in advance of the time for nomination.

Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit came into the picture a few days ago when he was in Washington, and friends urged him to consider making the race for senator or to seek the gubernatorial nomination. Lacy was reluctant to discuss his plans, however.

Woodruff Is Prominent

Representative Roy O. Woodruff of Bay City has been one of the most conspicuous participants in debate on the Republican side of the house recently, twice attacking the administration's proposals, and rising frequently in spirited debate over the sugar program.

Woodruff denounced the tariff bill in a lengthy address in which he characterized it as "abandonment of the last vestige of the power of congress under the constitution." He assailed the sugar bill as one that was designed to "wreck the American sugar beet industry."

Prospects for a restoration of airmail service in Michigan have been brightened considerably by Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, who holds out hope that permanent service from Detroit by way of Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskegon to Milwaukee may be resumed permanently.

Michigan is characterized by its representatives here as being virtually off the air mail map, with only a "relay" from Toledo to Detroit, which has not been serving the remainder of the state.

Who'll Get Job?

The Democrats are still unable to hazard a good guess as to the probable appointee for collector of customs for the port of Detroit.

One of the Michigan newcomers in the house apparently is going to be opposed for renomination by his former secretary. Representative John D. Dingell of Detroit, said he understood that Horace Thurber, who came to Washington with him as his secretary a year ago, is planning to enter the race.

Dingell has made it no secret that the parting of the ways by himself and Thurber was not an amicable one, and he added that he was not "worried" about his opponent. Dingell defeated Charles Bowles, former mayor of Detroit, in the fall election of 1932.

The New York Telephone Co. reports a net gain of 4,781 stations in March, contrasting with a net loss of 19,163 installations in March, 1933. The net increase for the first quarter of this year was 6,711 compared with a loss of 56,342 a year ago.

Although three days have elapsed since Monday's election, no returns have yet been received at the county clerk's office from Fairbanks township, one of the most isolated sections of the county. Masonville, Garden and Nahma townships finally filed their belated returns yesterday but the Fairbanks vote is still missing from the tabulation and County Clerk Semer is becoming concerned over the delay.

An active Mothers club organization, sponsored by the Escanaba Womans club, was organized yesterday at the Webster school, with the following officers: Mrs. Carl Johnson, president; Mrs. W. D. Mooney, vice president; Mrs. A. S. Kitchen, secretary and Mrs. Ira Nelson, treasurer. An effort will be made to organize similar clubs among the mothers of pupils in all the public schools of the city.

Returns filed with the county clerk yesterday showed that Ex-Supervisor Reuben Young, of Rapid River staged a comeback at Monday's election, defeating Supervisor Levi Barboo 142 to 109. In Garden township Supervisor Wesley Gray defeated George Marsil by a vote of 132 to 85.

Deputy State Game Warden Herman Leisner has returned to the city after killing a pack of five deer hounds at the Weston Lumber Company's camp, seven miles north of Watson.

By a vote of 146 to 59 the people of Garden township voted on Monday to issue bonds of the township for the purchase of the Van's Harbor Land & Lumber Company's railroad, extending from Van's Harbor to Cook's mills.

Breaking all records for previousness and displaying the first real sign of spring a well known Escanaba young man appeared on Ludington street yesterday wearing a straw hat. Last year the first straw hat appeared here on April 15.

AMUSEMENTS

Robert Montgomery, in the role of Revel, gentleman crook, is starred in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picture dealing with a series of gruesome murders in London, "Mystery of Mr. X," which opens today at the Delft Theatre.

Elizabeth Allan plays the role of Jane Frensham, beautiful daughter of Sir Herbert Frensham, Scotland Yard head.

Lewis Stone, aristocrat of the screen, enacts the role of Connor, super-sleuth, the most wily member of Scotland Yard's famed experts.

Ralph Forbes, as Sir Christopher Marche, is a heavy drinking British sportsman who vies with the sprightly finesse of Montgomery for the affections of Elizabeth Allan.

Henry Stephenson, in the role of Sir Herbert Frensham, is the kindly, convalescent head of Scotland Yard and father of Jane. Around his venerable gray head centers the criticism and intrigue attendant upon the outrageous murders of London police.

Forrester Harvey, as Palmer, and Ivan Simpson, as Hutchinson, are Montgomery's two quick-witted partners-in-crime. Harvey's cockney comedy antics are at humorous variance with Simpson's lugubrious worrying.

Leonard Mudie plays "X," the fiendish murderer whose gray felled bodies of his victims. His ultimate, dramatic capture climaxes a series of hair-raising events.

Upper Peninsula Bean Crop Has Possibilities

BY STANLEY D. NEWTON

The newcomer to the upper peninsula of Michigan is always impressed by its farming development. The wide-spreading, healthy-looking fields of potatoes, hay, grain and other farm crops, the Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey, Hereford and other herds, poultry flocks, silos and other evidences of farming progress always amaze the visitor. His usual comment is: "I didn't think there could be any real farming so far north."

Incidentally the production of so-called 'dry' beans in this region has generally been considered out of the question. While lower Michigan is a leading producer of pea or navy beans, their culture in a commercial way has been largely confined to that part of the downstate farming districts south of the Bay City-Muskegon line. The news, therefore, that 'dry' kidney beans have been grown successfully in the upper peninsula for nearly half a century will be interesting to many people.

First in Baraga

The story goes back to a time well over 40 years ago, when the father of Lloyd Vedder, Baraga county farmer, came from downstate and took up a homestead near Covington. Among the supplies which he brought north were a few seed beans of an unusual character. The Vedders planted carefully selected seed each year but raised only enough beans for their own table.

In 1930 a representative of the Lake Shore railway noticed the fine condition of the bean plants in the Vedder farm garden. He enlisted the interest of several farmers, county agents and others, and that fall enough of the seed was saved to make several demonstration plots possible in 1931. Two years more of plots over a wide territory and on diversified soils followed, and growing and yield tests were made under as varied conditions as possible.

The sponsors, wishing to be fairly sure of their ground before making any announcements, have kept their experiments under cover until very recently. They have accumulated nearly 200 bushels of the new bean seed at the offices of Lake Superior Potato Growers Association, Inc., at Marquette and are selling the beans at cost to intending growers.

Samples of the beans have been examined by expert seedsmen, and the latter have been unable to precisely name the variety. The new legume is of the kidney type, from one-half to five-eighths of an inch long, with a handsome colored base. The background is variegated with numerous blood-red dots and stripes, forming a very attractive article of food merchandise. The beans make delicious eating when baked, boiled or used in soups.

Lake Superior Bean

This seeming stranger to the north county has been named by its sponsors the Lake Superior bean. A prominent upper peninsula wholesaler is fairly certain that the legume is a member of the pinto family. The pinto bean is a native of Peru and is grown invariably in tropical or sub-tropical climes. The Lake Superior bean is considerably larger than the southern grown pinto. If the wholesaler's supposition is correct, the way in which the plants have adapted themselves to their new home is little short of astonishing.

Many biologists say that plant life has something in it akin to what we call mentality. If that is true, the Lake Superior bean must have resolved to make good under the more rigorous conditions of its changed environment. It has done just that, and it is now one of the toughest plant babies imaginable.

Demonstration plots last year were carefully measured, and their total area was about nine acres. Most of the seed was saved for growing on a larger scale. The sponsors do not wish to make money from the present limited supply of seed. Their aim is to interest the largest possible number of growers this year and thus to supply the urgent demand for more seed. Ultimately, they hope, another good cash crop for upper peninsula farmers may be developed here.

At least one field of six acres will be planted with the new beans this year. Several other sizable pieces of ground will also give the promising prospect a tryout. The marketing of the product, if and when the latter arrives at commercial shipping status, will not be difficult. Beans of the kidney type usually bring a somewhat higher price than those of the pea variety.

Prospective growers should write Lake Superior Potato Growers, Inc., at Marquette, for further information, or see their county agents. A sample of the beans may be inspected at The Press office, and bean fanciers are invited to try their hand at naming the variety if possible.

WILL IMPROVE RURAL ROUTES

Thorough Inspection of Mail Service To Be Made in May

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Improvement of the rural mail service out of the Bark River, Cornell, Ensign, Escanaba, Fayette, Gladstone, Rapid River, Rock and Stonington postoffices will be the aim of a thorough inspection of all rural routes at those offices, scheduled for early in May, it was announced today at the postoffice department.

The inspection at each office is to be made by the postmaster, or by the assistant postmaster or a trusted and competent employe, designated by the postmaster and under his supervision, according to Harlee Branch, Second Assistant Postmaster General.

Every rural route at each of the offices named will be personally travelled by the official making the inspection, with particular attention being given the question of whether the carrier is serving the route in accordance with the official description and instructions. Distances on each route will be checked against the official distances shown on the map, as a basis for readjustment of carriers' pay if necessary.

According to Mr. Branch, the inspections "should bring to light many conditions which need to be corrected in the interest of a more efficient and economical service."

Six music publishing houses recently helped prisoners in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta present a musical revue by contributing song hits of the day without cost.

Lumberjack Gang From Michigan To Sing at St. Louis

Michigan will be well represented at the National Folk festival to be held in St. Louis during the week of April 29. The Michigan Tourist and Resort commission at Lansing is sponsoring a Michigan exhibit.

The folk lore and folk songs of the Negroes of the old south will be presented in a series of programs. Hill billies from the Ozarks will be there, cowboys from the western ranges, and many other special features.

Michigan will send 20 well trained lumberjack singers as the state's contribution to the festival. They are sure to be popular with their songs, music and stories of lumbering days.

Tall tales of Paul Bunyan's time will give color to the week's events. A typical woods bunkhouse scene will form the background for the doings of the lumberjacks, who have been practicing their scores for weeks.

The Michigan contingent will travel by special bus to and from St. Louis. It is believed that some excellent newspaper and radio publicity will be accorded Michigan's efforts, which will fittingly supplement the state's tourist and resort advertising in St. Louis territory.

SALUTE THE CHAMPION—THE V-TYPE ENGINE. It holds every major record on land, on water and in the air.

It has the stuff that makes a winner in any grueling test . . . speed to go into the lead and the endurance to hold that lead to the finish. For it takes more than speed to win under the severest racing conditions. It takes efficiency of a rare order and the ability to keep going when the others drop out.

That's why record-breaking automobiles, speed boats and seaplanes use the V-type engine. And like these V-type engines, the Ford V-8 can take it.

Right there is the reason for the outstanding performance of the New Ford V-8. No other low-price car can match it on the road because no other low-price car has a V-8 engine. Fact is, you have to pay more than $2000 to get a V-type eight-cylinder engine in any other car but Ford.

Dick Carlton will be interlocuter and the end men will be Donald Norval, Leo Alperovitz, Robert Anderson, Max Stoakes, Arthur Olson and Kenneth Thompson.

AMUSEMENTS

Robert Montgomery, in the role of Revel, gentleman crook, is starred in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picture dealing with a series of gruesome murders in London, "Mystery of Mr. X," which opens today at the Delft Theatre.

Elizabeth Allan plays the role of Jane Frensham, beautiful daughter of Sir Herbert Frensham, Scotland Yard head.

Lewis Stone, aristocrat of the screen, enacts the role of Connor, super-sleuth, the most wily member of Scotland Yard's famed experts.

Ralph Forbes, as Sir Christopher Marche, is a heavy drinking British sportsman who vies with the sprightly finesse of Montgomery for the affections of Elizabeth Allan.

Henry Stephenson, in the role of Sir Herbert Frensham, is the kindly, convalescent head of Scotland Yard and father of Jane. Around his venerable gray head centers the criticism and intrigue attendant upon the outrageous murders of London police.

Forrester Harvey, as Palmer, and Ivan Simpson, as Hutchinson, are Montgomery's two quick-witted partners-in-crime. Harvey's cockney comedy antics are at humorous variance with Simpson's lugubrious worrying.

Leonard Mudie plays "X," the fiendish murderer whose gray felled bodies of his victims. His ultimate, dramatic capture climaxes a series of hair-raising events.

Upper Peninsula Bean Crop Has Possibilities

BY STANLEY D. NEWTON

The newcomer to the upper peninsula of Michigan is always impressed by its farming development. The wide-spreading, healthy-looking fields of potatoes, hay, grain and other farm crops, the Holstein, Guernsey, Jersey, Hereford and other herds, poultry flocks, silos and other evidences of farming progress always amaze the visitor. His usual comment is: "I didn't think there could be any real farming so far north."

Incidentally the production of so-called 'dry' beans in this region has generally been considered out of the question. While lower Michigan is a leading producer of pea or navy beans, their culture in a commercial way has been largely confined to that part of the downstate farming districts south of the Bay City-Muskegon line. Two Casts Are Rehearsing for Club Production

Two casts are busily engaged in rehearsing "Introducin' Susan," the clever play which will be presented by the Mask and Wig club of Escanaba high school on April 20.

The casts, which are of practically equal merit, rehearse alternately and there is keen rivalry between the two groups to determine which shall give the coveted evening performance and which shall give the matinee.

Several students in the play this year will be remembered as having taken part in the Mask and Wig play, "Oh! Professor," presented last year. These include Mungo Miller, Eleanore Franzen, Eileen Reynolds, Harold Snyder, Clara Karas, Marian Cook and Kenneth Parent.

Glenn Sandberg, Irene Larson and Ray Hurley, who had leading roles in the operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," are also members of the cast.

The play, the story of which is decidedly entertaining and the experienced players give promise of a most successful production in "Introducin' Susan."

Leaving Escanaba some years ago she made her home in Dakota, during which time she devoted herself to study of several subjects and music more especially. Since returning here she has devoted herself definitely to the study and teaching of music.

Two Casts Are Rehearsing for Club Production

Two casts are busily engaged in rehearsing "Introducin' Susan," the clever play which will be presented by the Mask and Wig club of Escanaba high school on April 20.

The casts, which are of practically equal merit, rehearse alternately and there is keen rivalry between the two groups to determine which shall give the coveted evening performance and which shall give the matinee.

Several students in the play this year will be remembered as having taken part in the Mask and Wig play, "Oh! Professor," presented last year. These include Mungo Miller, Eleanore Franzen, Eileen Reynolds, Harold Snyder, Clara Karas, Marian Cook and Kenneth Parent.

Glenn Sandberg, Irene Larson and Ray Hurley, who had leading roles in the operetta, "H. M. S. Pinafore," are also members of the cast.

The play, the story of which is decidedly entertaining and the experienced players give promise of a most successful production in "Introducin' Susan."

FOUR MILLIONS FOR U. P. ROADS

Bond Issue Would Give Extra Million for Institutions

Houghton, April 6—Highway improvement work in excess of $4,000,000 and institutional projects of more than a million dollars additional will be the upper peninsula's share of the state's $36,000,000 bond issue, if the voters approve it at the polls April 30.

That was the promise of speakers at the closing session of the three-day highway conference arranged by Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner. Modeled after similar meetings held in the lower peninsula, the gathering in Houghton was the first of its kind to be held in the upper peninsula and, it was stated, the registration exceeded that at the last lower peninsula meeting.

Approximately 300 persons were present at the dinner that marked the close of the conference, and they were mightily interested in the remarks of the several speakers, particularly those having bearing on the bond issue. As has been realized, there has been much doubt throughout the upper peninsula, and the lower state as well regarding this proposition, principally because there has been little information regarding the contents of the legislative enactment authorizing the election and the expenditure of the money, if the people so provide.

The plan is another PWA measure under which the federal government would donate 30 percent of the cost of the project and accept the state's bonds for the remaining 70 percent, although the state is not restricted to federal sale of the securities, but may offer them on the open market.

Not Burden on Property

But one point that has not been generally understood, and which was brought out by the conference speakers, is that while property owners only may vote upon the issue, the bonds themselves would not be a tax levy on property.

The law provides, it was pointed out, that the bonds are to be retired as follows:

Approximately $19,800,000 to be spent on the institutional program and to be retired over a period of 30 years with receipts from the corporation tax.

Another $18,000,000 to be spent on highway construction and to mature over a period of 15 years and be bought in with receipts of the state highway department.

In this manner, it was stated, there will be no property tax levied and therefore no reason why a property owner should fear to vote for the bonds. Rather, it was said, the bond burden, to the extent that it is a burden, will be more equally shared than if it were imposed upon the property tax levy.

Challenge to People

The most enlightening talk up on the subject was given by Ray M. Foley, public relations director of the state highway department. He asserted that the bond issue was "a challenge" to the people of the state to determine whether they are behind the recovery movement or are indifferent and bogged down.

Foley asserted that the principal features of the issue was that of employment, while the benefits to be gained from the construction program were incidentals, but, nevertheless, incidentals of importance from the standpoint of public benefits.

A "defeatist attitude" has been the biggest "stumbling block" to the bond program, Foley said in relating the long and treacherous route that the bill followed through three sessions of the legislature. He ascribed most of the opposition to the bickering and quibbling that beset the bill at every angle at its first introduction and subsequent experiences before final adoption with the referendum clause included.

Foley said that the background of the bill was non-partisan and still is. It represents, wholly, he stated, a movement led by the governor to attempt something to provide employment and share fully not only in the benefits, but also the responsibilities of the President's recovery profram.

Getting directly then to the subject of the bond issue, Foley gave figures to show what it would mean to the upper peninsula. In highway improvement alone, he said, the estiamtes by counties are as follows:

Alger, $216,000; Baraga, $219,000; Chippewa, 353,000; Delta, $328,000; Dickinson, $268,000; Gogebic, $314,000, Houghton, $403,000; Iron, $258,000; Keweenaw, $135,000; Mackinac, $262,000; Marquette, $473,000; Menominee, $230,000; Ontonagon, $289,000; Schoolcraft, $257,000.

The distribution, he stated, is on a four-factor basis, namely: Area, population, mileage and relief case load.

But this distribution of money is not all that would come to the upper peninsula, according to Foley, for more than a million dollars is allotted for the construction of an addition to the Newberry state hospital and $590,000 is provided for a sanatorium, the location of which has not yet been selected.

I am opposed to any one government attempting to change the customs and culture of another, although I will admit that some South American countries have benefited because of outside influence.

PUBLIC WORKS LOAN DELAYED

Escanaba's Application Must Hurdle Five Barriers Yet

BY PAUL MAY

Washington, D. C., April 7.—Five barriers await the effort of T. F. Kessler, city manager of Escanaba, to secure public works loans and grants for Escanaba, it has been learned here.

The applications filed by Mr. Kessler are: $20,400 for waterworks; $66,600 for street improvements; $1,100 for building repairs; $4,500 for street improvements; $44,700 for a storm sewer; $1,700 for tennis courts; $6,900 for waterworks; $600 for gas plant equipment; $15,500 for street improvement, and $2,600 for a dock.

As an initial step the applications must await their turn before the financial, legal, and engineering boards of the PWA. These three bodies will inquire exhaustively into the ability of the applicant to finance the loan portions of the requested allotments, into the question of whether or not the applicant can legally take upon itself the burden of that financing, and finally, whether or not the project is feasible from the engineering standpoint.

Passing these barriers the applications must secure the approval of Deputy Administrator Waite and Adminfstrator Ickes who will view the project from the public policy angle. If the proposed construction fulfills their demands they will be sent to President Roosevelt for signature.

The executive approval will mean that the amount requested will be earmarked from the Michigan section of the PWA fund pending the negotiation of a satisfactory contract for the purchase of the municipal bond issue. If no bond issue is made some other form of financing satisfactory to the PWA must be arranged.

Tobin Launches Drive Against Wildcat Trucks

CLAUDE J. TOBIN

A campaign to drive out "wildcat" carriers or force them to obtain licenses from the Michigan Public Utilities Commission has been launched by the department, Claude J. Tobin, Escanaba, announced yesterday.

The "wildcat" operators, Mr. Tobin said, haul for hire without permits. The minimum permit from the state is $25 and $10 filing fee. Fees are based on weight and equipment; one mill per mile for 11,000 pounds or under 1 1-2 mills for equipment 11,000 to 15,000 pounds, and two mills per mile for equipment over 15,000 pounds.

WILL APPOINT NEC ADJUSTER

Henry M. Stack Rejects Offer of Position With Gov't

Arthur E. Anderson, Ironwood, has been recommended for appointment as field adjuster and representative of the National Emergency Council for upper Michigan, according to word received yesterday from Washington.

Anderson was named after Henry M. Stack, of Escanaba, who was previously recommended by Congressman Prentiss M. Brown, had declined to serve. The position pays $2200 a year and expenses.

It is understood that the duties of this job are to adjust differences between employers and labor, and also to check up on violations of the NRA codes.

Swedish Prince Is Denied Forgiveness By Royal Family

Cannes, France, April 6 (AP)—Royal forgiveness was again refused Sigvard Bernadotte and his pretty German wife today as King Gustaf of Sweden kept dodging his grandson, the former prince.

The king apparently decided there have been too many such marriages in the royal family and he declined all overtures looking toward a reconciliation.

"I will never forgive Sigvard," King Gustaf was reported to have said. This was revealed by the Countess De Bonde, wife of the court chamberlain.

Because her husband is taking expensive dancing lessions and refuses to buy shoes for the children, a woman in Willisden, England, wants him arrested.

EAST WRITES ON PREDATORS

Outdoor Editor Advocates Control by Conservation Dep't

The discussion of the predatory animal control issue in Michigan has been reviewed by Ben East, well known outdoor editor of the Grand Rapids Press, who predicts that disposition of this matter will be delayed for sometime.

In his "Trail Talk" column, Mr. East writes as follows:

The question of whether predatory animal control work in northern Michigan is to continue under the direction of H. P. Williams, federal trapper "loaned" the state by the United States biological survey, or is to be put back directly under the supervision of the state conservation department apparently is one that will not be settled in the immediate future.

At the February meeting of the conservation commission it was hinted this matter would come up for a general airing at the April meeting which is due to be held in Lansing next Friday.

The present outlook, however, is that Director George R. Hogarth will not be present at next week's meeting. And in that case it's safe to forecast that no action will be taken on the predatory animal question, in which Hogarth is very much interested.

The prediction, recently made by Trail Talk, that this issue would produce fireworks when it came up for discussion by the commission, certainly produced plenty of fireworks in the upper peninsula, especially in the Escanaba district where Williams has his headquarters.

Letters have poured in to the editor of this page in an endless stream, some attacking, some defending Williams and his direction of the state trapper force.

To judge from the letters stockmen in the upper peninsula—who are charged by sportsmen with wanting to keep the work of the state trappers concentrated in the vicinity of their ranches, at the expense of the protection of deer and other game in more remote areas, and whose criticisms were largely responsible for bringing Williams into the state several years ago—are rallying promptly to the support of the federal man.

In a caustic letter, A. C. Gould, Beechwood cattle rancher, declares that there is not one predator in the upper peninsula now where there were ten in 1924, bears excepted. He blames politics for any attempt to put the state trapper force back under the supervision of the conservation department and his letter bristles with charges that the department seeks control of the trapper force for the sake of political patronage. Such charges are so absurd and unfair as to need no comment.

Gould's statement regarding the scarcity of predators is not borne out either by the statements of woodsmen, a number of whom have written to declare that predators, especially coyotes, are increasing rapidly throughout the upper peninsula and that game is suffering as a result.

Upper peninsula newspapers have devoted considerable space to the controversy. In a heated editorial the Escanaba Press builds up a case for Williams, charges that he has been hampered by jealousy-inspired criticism from undercover employes of the conservation department and concludes by saying that the day Williams leaves his post as head of the state trapper system will be a happy day for the wolves and coyotes of the upper peninsula.

Running through the letters and newspaper comments is frequent mention of the bounty system, indicating that many upper peninsula people would like to see that system returned. It is hardly likely, however, that Michigan will go back to a system so costly and affording such excellent opportunities for graft. Certainly it is to be hoped the bounty system is out for good. Whatever the faults of the trapper system under Williams or any other leader, it is still ahead of the bounty method of predator control.

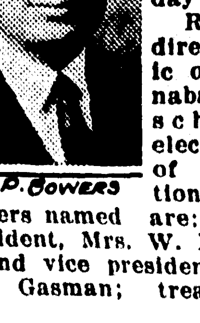
For the present the whole squabble appears to be up in the air with little chance that anything will be done about it for at least another month. What the final outcome will be is not safe to predict. The biological survey, to which Williams is answerable, recently lost Paul Redington as its chief, his place being taken by J. N. Darling. Sportsmen are intensely gratified at this change. Whether it will aid in solving the Michigan state trapper problem, however, remains to be seen.

This much is certain: Despite the fact that Col. William Bergin, upper peninsula field administrator of the conservation department, was quoted in newspaper dispatches last week as having said at Escanaba that "this predatory animal trouble is all newspaper talk," those on the inside of the state's conservation affairs know better. At least two officials high up in the conservation department are anything but satisfied with the way Williams is managing the predatory animal work. Sooner or later the rumbling storm appears sure to break out.

In the meantime Trail Talk reaffirms its belief that Michigan's state trapper force should be headed by an employe of the conservation department, answerable directly to his superiors in that department, that there is not and never has been any need for the state to "borrow" a federal trapper for this job, that the conservation department ran out on a trying problem when it brought Williams in and the sooner the present arrangement is terminated the better.

Permanent Music Fest Association Organized

Organization of the Music Festival association, a permanent organization for the promotion of musical events in this community, was effected at a meeting held at the Escanaba junior high school Friday evening.



R. P. BOWERS

R. P. Bowers, director of music of the Escanaba public schools, was elected president of the association. Other officers named are: First vice president, Mrs. W. H. Summers; second vice president, Mrs. Harold Gasman; treasurer, Wm. Warmington; and secretary, Harold P. Lindsay.

The first event which will get the attention of the new association will be the Upper Peninsula High School Music Festival, which will be held here on April 27 and 28. Later, the organization will expand its program to include musical activities in which adult groups will participate.

About five hundred high school students from Gladstone, Iron Mountain, Negaunee, Vulcan, Stephenson, Alpha, Iron River, Lake Linden, Rapid River, Crystal Falls, Kingsford and Houghton will take part in the music festival here. An added attraction will be appearance of the famous Augustana College Choir.

CIRCUIT COURT OPENS MONDAY

Short Calendar Indicated For April Session At Escanaba

A short jury session is indicated for the April term of Delta county circuit court, which opens in Escanaba Monday, with Judge Frank A. Bell presiding. Jurors have been notified to report for duty Tuesday, and the opening day will be given over to arraignments and arranging the docket.

A dozen or more criminal cases are listed on the calendar, including a half dozen liquor law violation cases. It was indicated that at least one of the liquor cases would be contested. Others are expected to be settled without the necessity of a jury trial.

The civil jury case calendar is also light for the session, and will not take up as much time as in previous terms. Court officials anticipate that the business of the session will be wound up this week.

FOUR MILLIONS FOR U. P. ROADS

Bond Issue Would Give Extra Million for Institutions

Houghton, April 6—Highway improvement work in excess of $4,000,000 and institutional projects of more than a million dollars additional will be the upper peninsula's share of the state's $36,000,000 bond issue, if the voters approve it at the polls April 30.

That was the promise of speakers at the closing session of the three-day highway conference arranged by Murray D. Van Wagoner, state highway commissioner. Modeled after similar meetings held in the lower peninsula, the gathering in Houghton was the first of its kind to be held in the upper peninsula and, it was stated, the registration exceeded that at the last lower peninsula meeting.

Approximately 300 persons were present at the dinner that marked the close of the conference, and they were mightily interested in the remarks of the several speakers, particularly those having bearing on the bond issue. As has been realized, there has been much doubt throughout the upper peninsula, and the lower state as well regarding this proposition, principally because there has been little information regarding the contents of the legislative enactment authorizing the election and the expenditure of the money, if the people so provide.

The plan is another PWA measure under which the federal government would donate 30 percent of the cost of the project and accept the state's bonds for the remaining 70 percent, although the state is not restricted to federal sale of the securities, but may offer them on the open market.

Not Burden on Property

But one point that has not been generally understood, and which was brought out by the conference speakers, is that while property owners only may vote upon the issue, the bonds themselves would not be a tax levy on property.

The law provides, it was pointed out, that the bonds are to be retired as follows:

Approximately $19,800,000 to be spent on the institutional program and to be retired over a period of 30 years with receipts from the corporation tax.

Another $18,000,000 to be spent on highway construction and to mature over a period of 15 years and be bought in with receipts of the state highway department.

In this manner, it was stated, there will be no property tax levied and therefore no reason why a property owner should fear to vote for the bonds. Rather, it was said, the bond burden, to the extent that it is a burden, will be more equally shared than if it were spread upon the property tax levy.

Challenge to People

The most enlightening talk upon the subject was given by Ray M. Foley, public relations director of the state highway department. He asserted that the bond issue was "a challenge" to the people of the state to determine whether they are behind the recovery movement or are indifferent and bogged down.

Foley asserted that the principal feature of the issue was that of employment, while the benefits to be gained from the construction program were incidentals, but, nevertheless, incidentals of importance from the standpoint of public benefits.

A "defeatist attitude" has been the biggest "stumbling block" to the bond program, Foley said in relating the long and treacherous route that the bill followed through three sessions of the legislature. He ascribed most of the opposition to the bickering and quibbing that beset the bill at every angle at its first introduction and subsequent experiences before final adoption with the referendum clause included.

Foley said that the background of the bill was non-partisan and still is. It represents, wholly, he stated, a movement led by the governor to attempt something to provide employment and share fully not only in the benefits, but also the responsibilities of the President's recovery profram.

Getting directly then to the subject of the bond issue, Foley gave figures to show what it would mean to the upper peninsula. In highway improvement alone, he said, the estiamtes by counties are as follows:

Alger, $216,000; Baraga, $219,000; Chippewa, 353,000; Delta, $328,000; Dickinson, $268,000; Gogebic, $314,000, Houghton, $403,000; Iron, $288,000; Kewenaw, $125,000; Mackinac, $262,000; Marquette, $473,000; Menominee, $230,000; Ontonagon, $289,000; Schoolcraft, $257,000.

The distribution, he stated, is on a four-factor basis, namely: Area, population, mileage and relief case load.

But this distribution of money is not all that would come to the upper peninsula, according to Foley, for more than a million dollars is allotted for the construction of an addition to the Newberry state hospital and $590,000 is provided for a sanatorium, the location of which has not yet been selected.

I am opposed to any one government attempting to change the customs and culture of another, although I will admit that some South American countries have benefited because of outside influence.

AN insect must have certain qualifications to be called a true bug. Strictly speaking, it must possess a sucking beak, and belong to the order Hemiptera. Many insects which are commonly called bugs do not really come under this classification. The well-known potato bug is an example.

County Dirt Shovel Damaged by Flames

Fire of incendiary origin Friday evening damaged a gasoline dirt shovel, the property of the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, stationed at a dirt pit along the old route of Highway US-2 near its junction with Lake Shore Drive about two miles east of the city limits. It is believed that gasoline thieves who had punctured a hole in the bottom of the tank about as large as one's finger, deliberately started the blaze which soon enveloped the shovel in flames and vividly lighted the immediate vicinity.

The county fire truck answered the call at 7:10 p. m. Because of the constant flow of gasoline, the firemen found it impossible to extinguish the blaze with chemicals, and the blaze continued for about twenty minutes until the gasoline supply was exhausted. The intense heat and flame kept fire fighters from an attempt to cut off the tank or plug up the opening.

The extent of the damage to the shovel is not known, although the motor is believed to be in running condition. No insurance was carried on the piece of equipment.

April 12, at the home of Mrs. Scott Creighton, 215 Arbutus avenue. Mrs. A. T. Anderson is the assisting hostess and all members are requested to be present.

Frank Wharfield To Open Tourist Bureau Tomorrow

Announcement was made yesterday by Frank Wharfield, veteran tourist guide, that he will open his tourist information bureau, corner of Deer and Chippewa avenue, tomorrow, weather permitting. It will be the ninth annual campaign in which Frank will attempt to satisfy tourists' questions, send them on their routes, and guide them to beauty spots in the neighboring vicinity.

Mr. Wharfield, a pioneer of these parts who knows every lake, stream, and resort within a hundred mile radius of the city, always tries to keep the tourist in Manistique as long as possible by inducing them to spend several days or longer looking over the scenic beauties in this vicinity. He can cite numerous instances in which he has persuaded tourists to remain here after they had asked for directions to Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, and other places.

He recounts an incidence of this nature which occurred last summer when two couples from the south drove through here on their way to Sault Ste. Marie. Learning that they were merely on a pleasure jaunt and in no hurry to reach their destination, Frank "sold" them on the beauty spots of this vicinity.

The women in the party had never seen a log cabin. Spotting a photo of one in Frank's office, they inquired as to how far they would have to go to see it. It happened that this particular cabin was situated at Indian lake and when the party was told that it was only three miles distant, they immediately went to see it. They were so attracted by the cabin and the beauties of Indian lake that they decided to spend a few days there.

Every other day, they came to Frank's bureau and inquired of various trips which they might take. They were directed to the several lakes north of here on M-94, to the sand dunes near Grand Marais, Blaney Park, the Big Spring, etc., from where they would return each night. The group finally left two weeks later, enthusiastic over the scenery and game afforded by this region. It was only one of many instances where tourists who would have only "passed through," were prevailed upon to stay and become acquainted with the many opportunities for healthful recreation which this vicinity affords.

As an added attraction, Captain Frank, will have on display in his tourist information bureau, a stuffed freak animal which he calls "The Tiger," although it really is non-descript. The animal has one huge eye in the center of its head, two pair of ears, a snoot and tail resembling those of a dog, and four different kinds of feet.

$100 Reward!
$100 Reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the County Shovel Friday evening.

Aileen Waters, Carlton Passenheim To Do Research Work

Miss Aileen Waters, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Waters, and Carlton Passenheim, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Passenheim, have merited identical scholastic honors, both accepting fellowships to the University of Michigan for a year's research work. The fellowships allow all expenses for the year's study.

Miss Waters, a senior at Alma college, has shown unusual ability in her scholastic work and has the novel distinction of having been named valedictorian of her high school class and of the senior class at Alma as well. She was graduated from Manistique high school in 1930, the same year as Mr. Passenheim was graduated.

Carlton Passenheim, a brilliant student, has accomplished remarkable work during his four years at Michigan College of Mining and Technology at Houghton. In addition to his fine record in the regular curriculum, he has been exceptionally active in extra curricular activities.

Besides being student leader of the school band, Mr. Passenheim has been prominent in debate, having been a member of the varsity team for the past two years.

Honorary fraternal organizations with which he is affiliated include the Blue Key, a national service organization which was first instituted at Tech in 1932; Tau Beta Phi, national honorary engineering fraternity; the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, a major national professional association; Tri Beta, honorary band fraternity; and is a member of Theta Tau and Tau Nu Tau. He is also a member of the Michigan Tech Student Council.

County Dirt Shovel Damaged by Flames

Fire of incendiary origin Friday evening damaged a gasoline dirt shovel, the property of the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, stationed at a dirt pit along the old route of Highway US-2 near its junction with Lake Shore Drive about two miles east of the city limits. It is believed that gasoline thieves who had punctured a hole in the bottom of the tank about as large as one's finger, deliberately started the blaze which soon enveloped the shovel in flames and vividly lighted the immediate vicinity.

The county fire truck answered the call at 7:10 p. m. Because of the constant flow of gasoline, the firemen found it impossible to extinguish the blaze with chemicals, and the blaze continued for about twenty minutes until the gasoline supply was exhausted. The intense heat and flame kept fire fighters from an attempt to cut off the tank or plug up the opening.

The extent of the damage to the shovel is not known, although the motor is believed to be in running condition. No insurance was carried on the piece of equipment.

April 12, at the home of Mrs. Scott Creighton, 215 Arbutus avenue. Mrs. A. T. Anderson is the assisting hostess and all members are requested to be present.

Frank Wharfield To Open Tourist Bureau Tomorrow

Announcement was made yesterday by Frank Wharfield, veteran tourist guide, that he will open his tourist information bureau, corner of Deer and Chippewa avenue, tomorrow, weather permitting. It will be the ninth annual campaign in which Frank will attempt to satisfy tourists' questions, send them on their routes, and guide them to beauty spots in the neighboring vicinity.

Mr. Wharfield, a pioneer of these parts who knows every lake, stream, and resort within a hundred mile radius of the city, always tries to keep the tourist in Manistique as long as possible by inducing them to spend several days or longer looking over the scenic beauties in this vicinity. He can cite numerous instances in which he has persuaded tourists to remain here after they had asked for directions to Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, and other places.

He recounts an incidence of this nature which occurred last summer when two couples from the south drove through here on their way to Sault Ste. Marie. Learning that they were merely on a pleasure jaunt and in no hurry to reach their destination, Frank "sold" them on the beauty spots of this vicinity.

The women in the party had never seen a log cabin. Spotting a photo of one in Frank's office, they inquired as to how far they would have to go to see it. It happened that this particular cabin was situated at Indian lake and when the party was told that it was only three miles distant, they immediately went to see it. They were so attracted by the cabin and the beauties of Indian lake that they decided to spend a few days there.

Every other day, they came to Frank's bureau and inquired of various trips which they might take. They were directed to the several lakes north of here on M-94, to the sand dunes near Grand Marais, Blaney Park, the Big Spring, etc., from where they would return each night. The group finally left two weeks later, enthusiastic over the scenery and game afforded by this region. It was only one of many instances where tourists who would have only "passed through," were prevailed upon to stay and become acquainted with the many opportunities for healthful recreation which this vicinity affords.

As an added attraction, Captain Frank, will have on display in his tourist information bureau, a stuffed freak animal which he calls "The Tiger," although it really is non-descript. The animal has one huge eye in the center of its head, two pair of ears, a snoot and tail resembling those of a dog, and four different kinds of feet.

$100 Reward!
$100 Reward will be paid for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons who set fire to the County Shovel Friday evening.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—The sight-seeing congressmen who spent half an hour in the stock exchange visitors' gallery today saw a quiet, routine market. Final changes for stocks, mostly of the fractional variety, averaged into a small net loss, while transactions, amounting to only 549,020 shares, represented the smallest Saturday business in three months.

Bonds were quiet also, although their advance, which featured the week's security dealings, made another new high on the basis of the closing composite. Commodities fluctuated narrowly, except for rye which extended its recent gains. Numerous preferred stocks continued to attract buyers.

A few stocks escaped from the narrow groove which bounded movements of the usual leaders. American Telephone ran into some selling, presumably a reflection of the Splawn report's recommendation of a thorough inquiry into communication company affairs; at the worst it was off a point and a half. Allied Chemical sagged 2. Otherwise the larger changes were mostly made by inactives.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, April 7—Fireworks in the rye market today gave quotations for that grain an upward whirl to almost 5 cents a bushel higher than yesterday's bottom figures.

The spurt today for rye values followed orders from Washington that severe big shipments of rye from Poland be shut out from landing in the United States pending investigation to determine whether the grain was subject to added duties under the anti-dumping clause of the United States tariff act. Further impetus to rye market upturns came from an authoritative estimate that the condition of the 1934 domestic crop of rye is only 65.1, breaking the low point record.

Rye closed unsettled at a fraction under the top prices reached but 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 above yesterday's finish, wheat unchanged to ½ higher, corn 1-8 to ½ up, oats 1-8 to ½ advanced, and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

A maximum gain of exactly 2 cents a bushel today was scored for rye, with the effect however not confined to that cereal but helping to turn all grains from early weakness to comparative strength.

Upturns of wheat prices in response to strength of rye were a good deal hindered because of some selling of wheat at Kansas City to be delivered in Chicago. Something of a drawback, however, to Kansas City sales of wheat to come here was prospective silver legislation at Washington. Better shipping demand for corn helped impart firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions were steadied by upturns of grains.

x—New 1934 highs.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—Bonds continued to record "new highs" today although most advances were modest and trading relatively quiet.

The average for 60 domestic corporate issues held a net gain of two-tenths of a point at 86.3. On the week this average was up 1.4 points at another peak since 1931. Transfers totaled $8,174,000, par value.

U. S. government securities displayed minor irregularities, but the turnover here amounted to only about $400,000. The called Liberty fourth 4¼s were the most active at a decline of 2-32nds of a point. Liberty 3½s and the uncalled 4¼s were up as much. Most of the treasury loans were a trifle easier.

Mild Demand For Gold Mine Shares Is Curb Feature

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—A mild demand for gold mining shares provided the lone feature in the curb trading today. Other parts of the list were dull and changes extremely narrow.

Hiram Walker lost a small fraction while other liquor shares were inactive. Leading oils including Gulf and Humble Oils closed virtually unchanged. Commonwealth Edison rose a point in a small transfer but Electric Bond and Share and American Gas & Electric were a shade lower.

Hollinger Gold and Hudson Bay Mining advanced a point or so each while fractional improvement was shown by Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves. Newmont yielded slightly. Greyhound corporation, actively higher yesterday, ended about steady. Swift & Company and Schiff Company were moderately firm.

Total transfers approximated 156,000 shares, compared with 188,000 shares last Saturday.

CIVILIAN CORPS TAKES HONORS

Two Outstanding Camps Of Nation In This Forest Area

"Two of the nine outstanding Civilian Conservation Corps Companies in the United States are found in this National Forest Region, according to selections just announced," said Regional Forester E. W. Tinker. One of the companies is located at the State "Douglas" camp, camp Douglas, Wisconsin and the other occupies the Federal "Good Harbor" camp in the Superior National Forest near Grand Marais, Minnesota.

The competition was conducted by the War Department with the approval of Robert Fechner, Director of Emergency Conservation Work. The selections were made, one in each of nine Corps Areas, as the result of a series of inspections of camp locations and layouts, leadership ability of the officers, morale of the enrollees, facilities, food, and work accomplished for the technical services.

In choosing the winning companies, 100 points were given to leadership and initiative, 300 points to camp administration and operation and 600 points to work accomplished. Company Commanders, Lieutenant Maurice L. Moore of the State camp and Captain Allen Anderson of the Federal camp will receive the Army and Navy Journal gold medals. Silver buttons from the same source will be presented to the subordinate officers of both camps and the C. C. C. enrollees and Army enlisted men will receive bronze buttons.

The Camp Superintendents, largely responsible for the work accomplishments, are W. H. Magie for the "Good Harbor" camp and Leif Steiro for the "Douglas" camp. At the latter the C. C. C. boys have had some fires to fight this year and have done trail-side clearing for fire prevention, forest stand improvement and some road work.

"Work at "Good Harbor" included fire hazard reduction, timber stand improvement, truck trails, public camp ground clearing, planting, rodent control and surveys," concluded Mr. Tinker.

Path Cleared For Payment Of Taxes

Minneapolis, April 6 (AP)—Riot or no riot, the city's taxes must be paid.

As police battled 6,000 unemployed rioters at the courthouse today, one Minneapolitan fought his way through the mob and protested to police barring him and "not allowing an honest citizen to pay his taxes."

Shown his tax statement and a roll of currency, police finally escorted him through a haze of tear gas to the city assessor's office.

The annual meeting of General Baking company's stockholders has been postponed until May 3.

THEATRES

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow, platinum blonde charmer of the screen, are seen together for the second time in their careers in "Red Dust," sensuous drama of Indo-China, which heads the program at the Rialto Theatre for the next several days.

Miss Harlow played opposite Gable in one of his first important pictures, "The Secret Six." Since then, both have been catapulted to major fame. She recently changed the color of her tresses for "The Red Headed Woman," and Gable scored an outstanding hit in "Strange Interlude."

Second Feature

By popular request, "She Done Him Wrong," featuring the well rounded performance of Mae West, has been brought here again and will be shown as a second feature. It is a lusty, roaring story of the Bowery, with its saloons and honkytonks, its tough men and bejeweled women.

Phyllis LaPine To Take School Census

Miss Phyllis LaPine has again been chosen by the Gladstone board of education to take the school census in this city. This will be the third year that Miss LaPine has had charge of the work which is done annually in connection with the distribution of primary school money. All persons in the city between the ages of five and twenty are included in the census. Last year there were 1704 listed. It will probably be two or three weeks before the work is started.

New York, April 7 (AP)—The sight-seeing congressmen who spent half an hour in the stock exchange visitors' gallery today saw a quiet, routine market. Fnal changes for stocks, mostly of the fractional variety, averaged into a small net loss, while transactions, amounting to only 549,020 shares, represented the smallest Saturday business in three months.

Bonds were quiet also, although their advance, which featured the week's security dealings, made another new high on the basis of the closing composite. Commodities fluctuated narrowly, except for rye which extended its recent gains. Numerous preferred stocks continued to attract buyers.

A few stocks escaped from the narrow groove which bounded movements of the usual leaders. American Telephone ran into some selling, presumably a reflection of the Splawn report's recommendation of a thorough inquiry into communication company affairs; at the worst it was off a point and a half. Allied Chemical sagged 2. Otherwise the larger changes were mostly made by inactives.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Chicago, April 7—Fireworks in the rye market today gave quotations for that grain an upward whirl to almost 5 cents a bushel higher than yesterday's bottom figures.

The apex today for rye values followed orders from Washington that seven big shipments of rye from Poland be shut out from landing in the United States pending investigation to determine whether the grain was subject to added duties under the anti-dumping clause of the United States tariff act. Further impetus to rye market upturns came from an authoritative estimate that the condition of the 1934 domestic crop of rye is only 65.1, breaking the low point record.

Rye closed unsettled at a fraction under the top prices reached but 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 above yesterday's finish, wheat unchanged to ½ higher, corn 1-8 to ½ up, oats 1-8 to ¼ advanced, and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

A maximum gain of exactly 2 cents a bushel today was scored for rye, with the effect however not confined to that cereal but helping to turn all grains from early weakness to comparative strength.

Upturns of wheat prices in response to strength of rye were a good deal hindered because of some selling of wheat at Kansas City to be delivered in Chicago. Something of an offset, however, to Kansas City sales of wheat to come here was prospective silver legislation at Washington. Better shipping demand for corn helped impart firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions were steadied by upturns of grains.

x—New 1934 highs.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—Bonds continued to record "new highs" today although most advances were modest and trading relatively quiet.

The average for 60 domestic corporate issues held a net gain of two-tenths of a point at 86.3. On the week this average was up 1.4 points at another peak since 1931. Transfers totaled $8,174,000, par value.

U. S. government securities displayed minor irregularities, but the turnover here amounted to only about $400,000. The called Liberty fourth 4¼s were the most active at a decline of 2-32nds of a point. Liberty 3½s and the uncalled 4¼s were up as much. Most of the treasury loans were a trifle easier.

Mild Demand For Gold Mine Shares Is Curb Feature

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—A mild demand for gold mining shares provided the lone feature in the curb trading today. Other parts of the list were dull and changes extremely narrow.

Hiram Walker lost a small fraction while other liquor shares were inactive. Leading oils including Gulf and Humble Oils closed virtually unchanged. Commonwealth Edison rose a point in a small transfer but Electric Bond and Share and American Gas & Electric were a shade lower.

Hollinger Gold and Hudson Bay Mining advanced a point or so each while fractional improvement was shown by Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves. Newmont yielded slightly. Greyhound corporation, actively higher yesterday, ended about steady. Swift & Company and Schiff Company were moderately firm.

Total transfers approximated 156,000 shares, compared with 188,000 shares last Saturday.

CIVILIAN CORPS TAKES HONORS

Two Outstanding Camps Of Nation In This Forest Area

"Two of the nine outstanding Civilian Conservation Corps Companies in the United States are found in this National Forest Region, according to selections just announced," said Regional Forester E. W. Tinker. One of the companies is located at the State "Douglas" camp, camp Douglas, Wisconsin and the other occupies the Federal "Good Harbor" camp in the Superior National Forest near Grand Marais, Minnesota.

The competition was conducted by the War Department with the approval of Robert Fechner, Director of Emergency Conservation Work. The selections were made, one in each of nine Corps Areas, as the result of a series of inspections of camp locations and layouts, leadership ability of the officers, morale of the enrollees, facilities, food, and work accomplished for the technical services.

In choosing the winning companies, 100 points were given to leadership and initiative, 300 points to camp administration and operation and 600 points to work accomplished. Company Commanders, Lieutenant Maurice L. Moore of the State camp and Captain Allen Anderson of the Federal camp will receive the Army and Navy Journal gold medals. Silver buttons from the same source will be presented to the subordinate officers of both camps and the C. C. C. enrollees and Army enlisted men will receive bronze buttons.

The Camp Superintendents, largely responsible for the work accomplishments, are W. H. Magie for the "Good Harbor" camp and Leif Steiro for the "Douglas" camp. At the latter the C. C. C. boys have had some fires to fight this year and have done trail-side clearing for fire prevention, forest stand improvement and some road work.

"Work at "Good Harbor" included fire hazard reduction, timber stand improvement, truck trails, public camp ground clearing, planting, rodent control and surveys," concluded Mr. Tinker.

Path Cleared For Payment Of Taxes

Minneapolis, April 6 (AP)—Riot or no riot, the city's taxes must be paid.

As police battled 6,000 unemployed rioters at the courthouse today, one Minneapolitan fought his way through the mob and protested to police barring him and "not allowing an honest citizen to pay his taxes."

Shown his tax statement and a roll of currency, police finally escorted him through a haze of tear gas to the city assessor's office.

The annual meeting of General Baking company's stockholders has been postponed until May 3.

THEATRES

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow, platinum blonde charmer of the screen, are seen together for the second time in their careers in "Red Dust," sensuous drama of Indo-China, which heads the program at the Rialto Theatre for the next several days.

Miss Harlow played opposite Gable in one of his first important pictures, "The Secret Six." Since then, both have been catapulted to major fame. She recently changed the color of her tresses for "The Red Headed Woman," and Gable scored an outstanding hit in "Strange Interlude."

Second Feature

By popular request, "She Done Him Wrong," featuring the well rounded performance of Mae West, has been brought here again and will be shown as a second feature. It is a lusty, roaring story of the Bowery, with its saloons and honkytonks, its tough men and bejeweled women.

Phyllis LaPine To Take School Census

Miss Phyllis LaPine has again been chosen by the Gladstone board of education to take the school census in this city. This will be the third year that Miss LaPine has had charge of the work which is done annually in connection with the distribution of primary school money. All persons in the city between the ages of five and twenty are included in the census. Last year there were 1704 listed. It will probably be two or three weeks before the work is started.

Michigan Swimmers Land Second at Columbus

NEW YORK A. C. TAKES TITLE

Detroit Club Comes in Third in National Tournament

Ohio Natatorium, Columbus, O., April 7 (AP)—Emerging from three days of record breaking performance, a small but versatile band of swimmers from the New York Athletic club started back east tonight with the national A. A. U. indoor swimming championship trophy in their possession for the third consecutive year.

Headed by the Spence brothers, Leonard, Walter and Wallace, and ably assisted by Peter Fick and John Howland, the New York club piled up 37 points. The University of Michigan, fresh from winning the intercollegiate championships here last week, finished in second place with 24 points with the Detroit Athletic club taking the show position with 12 points.

Although forced to take second honors in the team standing, the University of Michigan still boasts the low and high board diving champion in Richard Degener, but he nearly met his match in Marshall Wayne of the University of Miami. Degener scored 160.64 points and Wayne was awarded 160.38 points.

Up until the final event tonight there was some sort of a record broken in every speed event of the three-day meet. Counting two special sanctioned exhibition events, there were six world marks shattered during the meet.

Tonight, Jack Medica, sensational University of Washington swimmer, won the 500 yard free style in the comparatively slow time of 5:29.

In the 300-yard medley relay the Detroit Athletic club team composed of Schmieler, Sinkelwicz and Harry Curtic, nosed out the N. Y. A. C. team, made up of the Spence brothers, by less than a yard. The Detroit team's time was 3:42, the only event on the program in which no record was set.

Cochrane Defeats Erich Hagenlacher

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Welker Cochran of San Francisco, cut loose with all his cunning today to smother Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, 400 to 139 in four innings, the shortest match of the meeting in a playoff for first money in the international 18.2 balkline billiards tournament.

The Californian, who held the title in 1928, forced a playoff by defeating Hagenlacher last night. Today he wasted no time in getting the jump. The German won the lag and ran 44. Cochran stepped up and before he missed a three-cushion attempt, had piled up 217 points.

Cochran was Hagenlacher's jinx throughout the tournament. After the German star had won two straight, Cochran beat him. He regained the lead, only to have Cochran go into a tie with last night's victory, and carry off the major prize today.

Detroit Releases Trio Of Pitchers

Lakeland, Fla., April 7 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers today disposed of three pitchers but were confident that Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, pitching sensation of last year until his arm went sore, will be a regular member of the Bengal mound staff this summer.

Charles (Buck) Marrow was released outright to Minneapolis of the American association. Ray Fritz, southpaw, was released to Montreal's internationals on an optional agreement and Truett Sewell, who with Marrow tosses them up with his right arm, was released to Portland or Montreal. If Portland does not want him he will go to the Canadian team in an outright deal.

Rowe pitched five innings Friday and his deliveries were made freely and easily. Manager Mickey Cochrane was impressed with his fast ball.

Stoefen, Allison Reach Tennis Final

Houston, Tex., April 7 (AP)—Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles, national indoor champion, and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Davis cup singles player last year, today blasted their way to the finals of the River Oaks tennis tournament.

Stoefen outclassed Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, Tiny Atlantan, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Allison defeated George Lott of Chicago, Davis cup doubles veteran, 7-5, 14-12, 3-6, 6-0. Darkness interrupted the match Friday night after three of the sets had consumed two and a half hours. The fourth was played today.

The final will be played tomorrow. Allison was seeded Number 1 and Stoefen Number 2.

Carnera Gets Wine at Sharkey's Tavern and Talks About Fighting

BY BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston, April 7 (AP)—Primo Carnera may be the heavyweight boxing champion of the world but as an automobile driver he is not even in the preliminary class.

The big Italian, enroute for a hunting camp at Greenville, Me., left New York early today driving a powerful motor. Nine hours after his departure, he landed in Boston.

"I had three flat tires," Primo sadly moaned, "and I must now buy two new ones."

The hour was so late that most of the tire establishments were closed for the night and Primo was in a quandary until his old pal, Jack Sharkey, from whom he won his title, came to his rescue.

"Come down to my tavern," Jack suggested, "and while you are drinking some of fine Italian wine I have been saving for you, I will attend to the new tires."

Plans Hard Work

Sharkey, who makes the New York-Boston trip, a distance of some 230 miles, in less than five hours, could not understand why his conqueror took nine.

Champion and his predecessor, accompanied by several willing spirits, adjourned to Sharkey's back room and much gaiety ensued before Carnera's automobile was ready to resume its journey.

While Sharkey's bartenders bustled about with heavily laden trays, Primo was put through his paces.

"I am going to do a lot of hard work at Greenville," he explained when interviewers asked him his reasons for going to Maine at this unkindly season. "I'll chop down a lot of trees, run through woods and rough it generally to improve my legs and wind for my bout with Max Baer.

"I am going to remain up there for five weeks and then return to Pompton Lakes, N. J., where I will start boxing. I feel silly doing all this preliminary work for an opponent like Baer, who, in my estimation, is nothing but a great big strong guy and the dumbest boxer the world has ever seen. But it is well to be on the safe side."

While Sharkey was pouring Primo a generous drink of chianti, the champion was asked if he would consider a third meeting with his host.

"Sure," he replied, "if there was any money in it. You know, it's about time that I started getting some of this American money I've been hearing so much about"

"How about you, Jack?"

"I'm a big business man now," Sharkey answered, "and I must remain non-committal, I think that is the big business term for it, but seriously, I have three decisions against me and I am not in Carnera's class. After all he's the champion and I never cared much for the challenger's 12½ per cent slice. I think I'll stay right here in my tavern and let youngsters like Baer and Steve Hamas yap at Carnera. I'm satisfied with life."

Sharkey, one of the few to make a tremendous success out of failure, attempted to advise Carnera out of his great store of experience.

"If I were you," he told Primo, "I would quit after beating Baer."

"Not me," Primo replied, "after I beat Baer in June, I am going to take on Hamas, or any other logical opponent, in September."

Carnera then described his motion picture battle with Baer.

"We didn't hit each other at any time," he said, "but it looked great on the film. I noticed that he still depends more on his elbows, shoulders and head than he does on his fists. I am going to lick him with the greatest of ease."

And the canny Sharkey, who has studied Baer closely, agreed with him.

Bring Laberty and Pond Back to Face Auto Theft Charge

Sheriff John M. Hewitt and Sergeant Fred Kueno, of the Newberry state police, left Friday afternoon for Shawano, Wis., to take into custody Mark Pond and Leo Laberty, Schoolcraft county men who were with Robert O'Brien and William Demars when the latter pair held up an attendant at a Shawano, Wis., gasoline service station Wednesday evening.

Wisconsin authorities are not pressing charges against Pond and Laberty who will be brought back here on the charge of stealing the auto belonging to Mrs. Mary Terrian in which the quartet drove to Shawano. The car was stolen Tuesday evening from the Frank Heinz camp near Port Inland where the men were employed.

O'Brien and Demar are now serving a one to ten year term at Waupun state prison for robbery armed. It is expected that Pond and Laberty will be arraigned before Justice W. G. Stephens on Monday.

Farm Bonds Above Par; Selling Fast

Gottfrid S. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Manistique National Farm Loan association of Manistique recently received word from the governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Wm. I. Myers, telling him of the ready reception which farmers and their creditors are giving to the bonds of the Federal Mortgage corporation which are now being tendered by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul in place of cash in settlement of farmers' debts.

"These bonds have been selling in the large markets at a little above par, indicating a ready market for them. Just a week after banks began using bonds instead of cash, the first bonds to be sold on the New York market were purchased at 100 3-4. We anticipated these bonds which bear 3 1-4 per cent interest per annum would sell at par or above at the time we get the interest rate, for government bonds maturing in 1941, bearing the same rate were selling above par."

Mr. Myers pointed out that these bonds were not only exempt from local, state and federal taxation with the exception of surtaxes, inheritance and gift taxes, but that they are as readily salable as government securities. He said they are being quoted in the metropolitan papers but if such quotations are not available readily to farmers that they will be given the quotations if they will write to the Federal Land Bank of their district.

WINN PREDICTS BETTER DERBY

Bumper Crowd Seen by Advance Reservations, He Says

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—The 73-year-old champion of the Kentucky derby is going to the post again tomorrow, as frisky a thoroughbred as ever nudged his nose to the barrier.

He is Col. Matt J. Winn, guiding genius behind the derby, who saw the first running of the classic from the backseat of his father's grocery wagon in 1875. He's going to Louisville to set the stage for the 60th running of the race, which he has promoted for the last 33 years.

With tremendous enthusiasm, Col. Winn believes the 1934 derby will be up to the standard, in interest and attendance, with the derbies of five years ago, before something happened to this country in 1929.

Racing On Upgrade

He said reservations for box seats were double that of a year ago, indicating to him, that an old time bumper crowd would view the race at Churchill Downs, May 5.

"Racing is on the upgrade," Col. Winn said, "judging from the reports we have received from the winter tracks. Florida had a phenomenal season, and Agua Caliente had its best year in four seasons.

"The 1934 derby shapes up to me a wide open race with a possibility for a field of 21 starters, nearing the record of 22 starters which went to the post when Reigh Count triumphed in 1928. There is an excellent chance for either a maiden or a filly to win this year. The outstanding maiden is Sir Thomas, with Mati Hara the brilliant little filly which raced with such tremendous success as a two-year-old last season."

All derbies thrill Colonel Winn, but the biggest excitement he ever got out of watching one was way back in 1889 when Spokane, a western bred three-year-old, triumphed over Proctor Knott, owned by Sam Bryant of Louisville. He explains:

"That race gave me my biggest thrill, because I was married that year and it was the first derby Mrs. Winn had ever seen. Everybody in Louisville bet hook, line and sinker, on Proctor Knott, because of his triumph in winning the first futurity in New York the year previous. All the Kentuckians thought the horse was invincible, and the race broke everybody in Louisville."

The Kentucky derby is by no means a rich man's race for the Bradleys, the Whitneys, the Hertz' and others of wealth. In 1924 it was won by Mrs. R. M. Hoots, an Indian woman from Oklahoma, who sent her Black Gold to the post at a time when a dollar looked like a thousand to her because her pocketbook was so lean.

Manager McKechnie Has Eye Ailment

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Boston Braves, already handicapped by the loss of Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, tonight appeared threatened with the loss of the services of Manager Bill McKechnie.

The Tribal chieftain, who has been suffering from an eye ailment for several days, entered the Episcopal hospital after consulting with a specialist. It appeared likely that he would be unable to rejoin his team until after the opening of the National league season, in which case Coach Jewell Ens, President Emil Fuchs said, would take charge of the team.

Dissension Rumors Denied By Senators

Chicago, April 7. (AP)—The idea prevails among Washington's American league champions that someone is trying to undermine their morale.

Rumors of dissension in their ranks are denied flatly by the players. Earl Whitehill and Al Crowder, mound stars, insist there is no jealousy between them. Gossip of discord resulting from the tryout given young Cecil Travis, from the Chattanooga club, for the third base job long held by Ossie Bluege has been similarly answered.

Billy Sunday, the evangelist and former Chicago outfielder, recently picked an all-time, all-star baseball team but somehow forgot to select a third basemen for his team. Sunday's selections follow: first base, Hal Chase; second base, Tony Lazzeri; shortstop, Hans Wagner; catcher, Buck Ewing; outfielders, Babe Ruth, Ty Cobb and Tris Speaker; pitchers, Christy Mathison, John Carkson, and Rube Waddell.

If contemplated plans go through, ski jumping may be introduced at Yankee stadium next winter. Anton Lekang, 1932 amateur champion and now a professional, says Jake Ruppert is contemplating the erection of a slide. It would be a portable slide and hill, all in one section. The rising popularity of the sport is responsible for the decision to build the New York slide.

Members of the Chicago Cubs are trying to arrange a match sprint race between Tuck Stainback, Cub recruit, and Evar Swanson of the White Sox. Swanson recently won permanent possession of the Joe E. Brown cup for circling the bases in Los Angeles with Stainback second. The Cubs think Stainback would beat Swanson in a straightaway dash. It is likely the race will take place April 14 or 15 in one of the spring city series games in Chicago.

Charley Gehringer is going to wear No. 2 on the back of his uniform again this year although Manager Cochrane wanted that number, also. Cochrane always wore the number with the Athletics and Gehringer always had the number with the Tigers. Cochrane agreed to let Gehringer wear the number this year and the Tiger manager picked out No. 8 for himself.

GOODMEN SAYS GAME IS GOOD

Amateur Star to Leave Omaha Thursday for England

Omaha, Neb., April 7. (AP)—Confident his game is "much better" than last year, Johnny Goodman said tonight he will leave Omaha Thursday, bound for England and high adventure.

While the rest of golf's elite were grabbing the headlines with their play in winter tournaments, the national open champion remained at home, perfecting his strokes and saving his money. His steady winter play—much of it sub-par—over snowy fairways, he vouches, has prepared him amply for an ambitious summer program.

"For one thing," he said, "I am hitting longer drives. But best of all and I hope it stays awhile, my putting touch is the best I've ever had. I'm getting a lot of them down on the first try."

After his arrival in New York, Johnny plans to shoot a few practice rounds before embarking with the Walker cup squad April 21. He plans to compete in the British amateur meet, but not in the British open. He has no fear of becoming over-golfed before defending his open title at Merion, June 7-9. He would like also to bring the national amateur crown to Omaha.

"Over-golfed? No, sir. I never get enough golf, let alone too much," said the 24-year-old ex-caddy.

Goodman's preparations for the Walker trip have been thoroughness personified. In addition to getting the swing of his new and heavier clubs—he'll take 15 with him—he's bought a hat.

"They say the wind's cold so I'm taking a hat along to wear on the English courses."

ANOTHER WHITEWASH

Lakeland, Fla., April 7 (AP)—Detroit kept its minor league competition record clean today, blanking the Montreal Royals of the International League, 5 to 0.

Elon Hogsett and Tommy Bridges, pitching for Detroit, gave eight hits. The only time Montreal threatened was in the sixth inning just as Bridges went in. Before he was warmed up, they nicked him for three hits.

The Tigers hit and fielded well except for Clifton's error. Gerald Walker hit a homer in the fifth and Goslin and Schuble got triples. The Tigers touched Chad Kimsey, Royals' starting pitcher, for nine hits and four runs in four innings.

Red Wings and Hawks Resume Stanley Cup Playoff in Chicago

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Detroit's Red Wings and the Chicago Black Hawks will collide tomorrow night in the third match of the finals for the Stanley cup, professional hockey's biggest prize—with the Hawks aiming to strike a finishing blow, and the Wings hoping to prolong the battle, if not win.

Primed with the unexpected margin of two straight triumphs, scored on Detroit ice over the National League champions, the Hawks were short-priced favorites to end the series and bring the old cup to Chicog for the first time. However, they had not forgotten that Detroit licked the vaunted Toronto Maple Leafs swice on the latter's sheet, only to be forced to the limit of five games to win the league championship.

Every seat in the Chicago stadium was sold even before the Hawks and Wings moved into Chicago. No standing room will be sold, but there will be a crowd of around 17,600 in their seats at face-off time.

The Red Wings, who led the American division of the league and went on to conquer the Maple Leafs for the league title, have faded rapidly before the play of the Hawks. During the regular schedule Chicago was able to win only one match from Jack Adams' team. They managed a tie, but absorbed four thumpings. A change in style of play and the fact that they reached the peak of their game for the playoffs, have wiped out all of that.

The Wings battled into overtime before going down, 2 to 1, in the opening match of the series. In the second, however, the Hawks crashed through to a most convincing 4 to 1 triumph. If the Wings rally and turn in a victory tomorrow night, the fourth match will be played in the stadium Tuesday night, with the fifth, if necessary, at Detroit.

Nashville, Tenn., April 7 (AP)—The Nashville "Vols," farm team of the New York Giants, today put an end to the New York Yankees exhibition game winning streak, defeating the American leaguers, 5 to 4.

It was the Yanks' first defeat in eight games.

The damage was done at the expense of Pitcher Johnny Allen, who was wild, with four of the six passes he issued materializing in runs.

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—The crashing bats of Fred Schulte, Heinie Manush and Jonathan Stone, Washington's outfield trio, mixed with five errors by the Chicago Cubs, gave the American league champions an 8 to 3 victory today in the first of a two game series.

The Cubs, who compiled a team batting average of .321 against previous exhibition opponents, were almost helpless against the pitching of Earl Whitehill, whose southpawing gave the Senators their only World Series triumph last year. The Cubs located him for only two widely spaced singles in five innings. The National leaguers did all their scoring in the last two innings off Jack Russell.

ANDERSON, KELL WIN DECISIONS

Roy Beats Weitz, Kell Polished Oc Hans Ahl, Oshkosh

Roy Anderson of Gladstone and Milton Kell of Wilson won their fights on an amateur boxing program at Oshkosh Friday night, Anderson licking Mickey Weitz of Wisconsin and Kell polishing off Hans Ahl, Green Bay Golden Gloves champion, who hails from Oshkosh.

In defeating Weitz, Anderson knocked over a boy who holds a decision over Eddie Lick of Iron Mountain. Lick handed Roy's brother, Joe Anderson, a setback at Menominee after Joe had won a narrow decision over Lick at the Coliseum here last Winter.

Kell's victory over Ahl is a remarkable achievement for the former sailor. Ahl was considered by many critics as the most polished fighter in the Green Bay tournament. Kell recently was released from the navy where he served a stretch on the Battleship New York. His friends predict a great career for the Wilson battler.

10% MARKUP IN PRICE ORDERED

Goods Can't Be Sold for Less Than 10% Above Purchase Price

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Under an order issued today by Hugh S. Johnson retailers, except grocers, and druggists, are barred from selling any goods for less than ten per cent more than they cost him.

The ten per cent is an allowance intended to cover, partially or completely the labor costs of a retail establishment, but not to net anyone a profit. Decree of the allowance by Johnson was provided for by the retail code, put into effect months ago.

Grocers already have been given a six per cent minimum allowance, and the figure for drug retailers has yet to be fixed.

The percentages are to be calculated on the actual net invoice cost of an article, less all discounts, or the replacement cost if the latter is lower.

The plan is part of intended protection for merchants who have complained of unfair competitive practices. Sales below the marked-up figure will be considered "loss leaders"—purchase inducements for customers, made up on other items—which the code forbids.

ONE CHANGE IN POSTED SCORES

Chicago Bowlers Tied at Bottom of List in Peoria Doubles

Peoria, Ill., April 7. (AP)—Only one change in the standings a tie for tenth in the doubles, rewarded the assaults on the ten pins at the American Bowling Congress tourney today.

Herbert Lange, who paid his way through the University of Wisconsin, with his bowling, and William Goldammer, both of Chicago, created a tie for the bottom position on the board in the two-man event by rolling up a 1269. Lange chalked up 1901 pins for nine games, just short of the board. He had 668 in the doubles and 620 in the singles.

Frank Nigg, Cicero, Ill., led the attack in the singles with a 687 series, just lacking four pins of the board.

Following with a lighter barrage, keglers from Covington, Ky., Youngstown, O., Buffalo, N. Y., Kenosha, Wis., Detroit, Newport, Ky., and Milwaukee, also registered scores within the prize list range.

The Windy City also took second highest honors of the day when Lee Calloway and Dick Winsberg, smashed 1250 in the doubles and Charles Levine cracked 677 in the singles.

Nick Robinson, Buffalo, N. Y., came through with a 660 series. Other high individual counts were by J. Greco, Kenosha, Wis., 653; Jack Bishop, Chicago, 651; Hans Nelson, Kenosha, 649; Jack Powell, Kenosha, 645; Joe Wilman, Cicero, Ill., 642; and F. Knarr, Newport, Ky., 639.

Two Detroit teams bounced the alleys clear for good doubles counts, Chet Slicey and Joe Green, marked up 1240 while Joe Paulus and Dick Kroll, members of the team of young rollers who starred yesterday, hit 1233. Ed Dilly and Wm. Heil, Covington, Ky., toppled 1225 maple sticks. Milwaukee entered another name onto the cash award list when Andy Bakula and Walt Starr, posted 1222.

The five man team event, with the Employers Mutuals, of Milwaukee, Wis., leading with 3032, ends tomorrow night. The doubles and singles and the tournament finish Monday.

Michigan Swimmers Land Second at Columbus

NEW YORK A. C. TAKES TITLE

Detroit Club Comes in Third in National Tournament

Ohio Natatorium, Columbus, O., April 7 (AP)—Emerging from three days of record breaking performance, a small but versatile band of swimmers from the New York Athletic club started back east tonight with the national A. A. U. indoor swimming championship trophy in their possession for the third consecutive year.

Headed by the Spence brothers Leonard, Walter and Wallace, and ably assisted by Peter Fick and John Howland, the New York club piled up 37 points. The University of Michigan, fresh from winning the intercollegiate championships here last week, finished in second place with 24 points with the Detroit Athletic club taking the show position with 12 points.

Although forced to take second honors in the team standing, the University of Michigan still boasts the low and high board diving champion in Richard Degener, but he nearly met his match in Marshall Wayne of the University of Miami. Degener scored 160.64 points and Wayne was awarded 160.38 points.

Up until the final event tonight there was some sort of a record broken in every speed event of the three-day meet. Counting two special sanctioned exhibition events, there were six world marks shattered during the meet.

"Tonight, Jack Medica, sensational University of Washington swimmer, won the 500 yard free style in the comparatively slow time of 5:29.

In the 300-yard medley relay the Detroit Athletic club team composed of Schmieler, Sinkelwicz and Harry Curtic, nosed out the N. Y. A. C. team, made up of the Spence brothers, by less than a yard. The Detroit team's time was 3:42, the only event on the program in which no record was set.

Cochrane Defeats Erich Hagenlacher

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Welker Cochran of San Francisco, cut loose with all his cunning today to smother Erich Hagenlacher of Germany, 400 to 139 in four innings, the shortest match of the meeting in the international 18.2 balkline billiards tournament.

The Californian, who held the title in 1928, forced a playoff by defeating Hagenlacher last night. Today he wasted no time in getting the jump. The German won the lag and ran 44. Cochran stepped up and before he missed a three-cushion attempt, had piled up 217 points.

Cochran was Hagenlacher's jinx throughout the tournament. After the German star had won two straight, Cochran beat him. He regained the lead, only to have Cochran go into a tie with last night's victory, and carry off the major prize today.

Detroit Releases Trio Of Pitchers

Lakeland, Fla., April 7 (AP)—The Detroit Tigers today disposed of three pitchers but were confident that Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, pitching sensation of last year until his arm went sore, will be a regular member of the Bengal mound staff this summer.

Charles (Buck) Marrow was released outright to Minneapolis of the American association. Ray Fritz, southpaw, was released to Montreal's international under optional agreement and Truett Sewell, who with Marrow tossed them up with his right arm, was released to Portland or Montreal. If Portland does not want him he will go to the Canadian team in an outright deal.

Rowe pitched three innings Friday and his deliveries were made freely and easily. Manager Mickey Cochrane was impressed with his fast ball.

Stoefen, Allison Reach Tennis Final

Houston, Tex., April 7 (AP)—Lester Stoefen of Los Angeles, national indoor champion, and Wilmer Allison of Austin, Davis cup singles player last year, today blasted their way to the finals of the River Oaks tennis tournament.

Stoefen outclassed Bryan "Bitsy" Grant, Tiny Atlanta, 6-1, 4-6, 6-2, 6-3. Allison defeated George Lott of Chicago, Davis cup doubles veteran, 7-5, 14-12, 3-6, 6-0. Darkness interrupted the match Friday night after three of the sets had consumed two and a half hours. The fourth was played today.

The final will be played tomorrow. Allison was seeded Number 1 and Stoefen Number 2.

Carnera Gets Wine at Sharkey's Tavern and Talks About Fighting

BY BILL KING
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Boston, April 7 (AP)—Primo Carnera may be the heavyweight boxing champion of the world but as an automobile driver he is not even in the preliminary class.

The big Italian, enroute for a hunting camp at Greenville, Me., left New York early today driving a powerful motor. Nine hours after his departure, he landed in Boston.

"I had three flat tires," Primo sadly moaned, "and I must now buy two new ones."

The hour was so late that most of the tire establishments were closed for the night and Primo was in a quandary until his old pal, Jack Sharkey, from whom he won his title, came to his rescue.

"Come down to my tavern," Jack suggested, "and while you are drinking some fine Italian wine I have been saving for you, I will attend to the new tires."

Plans Hard Work

Sharkey, who makes the New York-Boston trip, a distance of some 230 miles, in less than five hours, could not understand why his conqueror took nine.

Champion and his predecessor, accompanied by several willing spirits, adjourned to Sharkey's back room and much gaiety ensued before Carnera's automobile was ready to resume its journey.

While Sharkey's bartenders bustled about with heavily laden trays, Primo was put through his paces.

"I am going to do a lot of hard work at Greenville," he explained when interviewers asked him his reasons for going to Maine at this unkindly season. "I'll chop down a lot of trees, run through woods and rough it generally to improve my legs and wind for my bout with Max Baer.

"I am going to remain up there for five weeks and then return to Pompton Lakes, N. J., where I will start boxing. I feel silly doing all this preliminary work for an opponent like Baer, who, in my estimation, is nothing but a great big strong guy and the dumbest boxer the world has ever seen. But it is well to be on the safe side."

While Sharkey was pouring Primo a generous drink of chianti, the champion was asked if he would consider a third meeting with his host.

"Sure," he replied, "if there was any money in it. You know, it's about time that I started getting some of this American money I've been hearing so much about."

"How about you, Jack?"

"I'm a big business man now," Sharkey answered, "and I must remain non-committal. I think that is the big business term for it, but seriously, I have three decisions against me and I am not in Carnera's class. After all he's the champion and I never cared much for the challenger's 12½ per cent slice. I think I'll stay right here in my tavern and let youngsters like Baer and Steve Hamas pay at Carnera. I'm satisfied with life."

Sharkey, one of the few to make a tremendous success out of failure, attempted to advise Carnera out of his great store of experience.

"If I were you," he told Primo, "I would quit after beating Baer."

"Not me," Primo replied, "after I beat Baer in June, I am going to take on Hamas, or any other logical opponent, in September."

Carnera then described his motion picture battle with Baer.

"We didn't hit each other at any time," he said, "but it looked great on the film. I noticed that he is fast and that he will be hard to hit. It will all depend more on his elbows, shoulders and head than he does on his fists. I am going to lick him with the greatest of ease."

And the canny Sharkey, who has studied Baer closely, agreed with him.

Bring Laberty and Pond Back to Face Auto Theft Charge

Sheriff John M. Hewitt and Sergeant Fred Kuene, of the Newberry state police, left Friday afternoon for Shawano, Wis., to take into custody Mark Pond and Leo Laberty, Schoolcraft county men who were with Robert O'Brien and William Demars when the latter pair held up an attendant at a Shawano, Wis., gasoline service station Wednesday evening.

The car was stolen Tuesday evening from the Frank Heinz camp near Port Inland where the men were employed.

O'Brien and Demar are now serving a one to ten year term at Waupun state prison for robbery armed. It is expected that Pond and Laberty will be arraigned before Justice W. G. Stephens on Monday.

Farm Bonds Above Par; Selling Fast

Gottfrid S. Johnson, secretary-treasurer of the Manistique National Farm Loan association of Manistique recently received word from the governor of the Farm Credit Administration, Wm. I. Myers, telling him of the ready reception which farmers and their creditors are giving to the bonds of the Federal Mortgage corporation which are now being tendered by the Federal Land Bank of St. Paul in place of cash in settlement of farmers' debts.

"These bonds have been selling in the large markets at a little above par, indicating a ready market for them. Just a week after banks began using bonds instead of cash, the first bonds to be sold on the New York market were purchased at 100 3-4. We anticipated these bonds which bear 3 1-4 per cent interest per annum would sell at par or above at the time we set the interest rate, for government bonds maturing in 1941, bearing the same rate were selling above par."

Mr. Myers pointed out that these bonds were not only exempt from local, state and federal taxation with the exception of surtaxes, inheritance and gift taxes, but that they are as readily salable as government securities. The bonds are being quoted in the metropolitan papers but if such quotations are not available readily to farmers that they will be given on the inquiry if they will write to the Federal Land Bank of their district.

WINN PREDICTS BETTER DERBY

Bumper Crowd Seen by Advance Reservations, He Says

BY CHARLES DUNKLEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—The 73-year-old champion of the Kentucky derby is going to the post again tomorrow, as frisky a thoroughbred as ever nudged his nose to the barrier.

He is Col. Matt J. Winn, guiding genius behind the derby, who saw the first running of the classic from the backseat of his father's grocery wagon in 1875. He's going to Louisville to set the stage for the 60th running of the race, which he has promoted for the last 33 years.

With tremendous enthusiasm, Col. Winn believes the 1934 derby will be up to the standard, in interest and quality, of the derbies of five years ago, before something happened to this country in 1929.

Racing On Upgrade

He said reservations for box seats were double that of a year ago, indicating to him, that an old time bumper crowd would view the race at Churchill Downs, May 5.

"Racing is on the upgrade," Col. Winn said, "judging from the reports we have received from the winter tracks. Florida had a phenomenal season, and Agua Caliente had its best year in four seasons.

"The 1934 derby shapes up to me a wide open race with a possibility for a field of 21 starters, nearing the record of 22 starters which went to the post when Reigh Count triumphed in 1928. There is an excellent chance for either a maiden or a filly to win this year. The outstanding maiden is Sir Thomas, with Mati Hara the brilliant little filly which raced with such tremendous success as a two-year-old last season."

All derbies thrill Colonel Winn, but the biggest excitement he ever got out of watching one was way back in 1889 when Spokane, a western bred three-year-old, triumphed over Proctor Knott, owned by Sam Bryant of Louisville. He explains:

"That race gave me my biggest thrill, because I was married that year and it was the first derby Mrs. Winn had ever seen. Everybody in Louisville bet hook, line and sinker, on Proctor Knott, because of his triumph in winning the first futurity in New York the year previous. All the Kentuckians thought the horse was invincible, and the race broke everybody in Louisville."

The Kentucky derby is by no means a rich man's race for the Bradleys, the Whitneys, the Hertz' and others of wealth. In 1924 it was won by Mrs. R. M. Hoots, an Indian woman from Oklahoma, who sent her Black Gold to the post at a time when a dollar looked like a thousand to her because her pocketbook was so lean.

Manager McKechnie Has Eye Ailment

Washington, April 7 (AP)—The Boston Braves, already handicapped by the loss of Walter "Rabbit" Maranville, tonight appeared threatened with the loss of the services of Manager Bill McKechnie.

The Tribal chieftain, who has been suffering from an eye ailment for several days, entered the Episcopal hospital after consulting with a specialist. It appeared likely that he would be unable to rejoin his team until after the opening of the National league season, in which case Coach Jewell Ens, President Emil Fuchs said, would take charge of the team.

Dissension Rumors Denied By Senators

Chicago, April 7. (AP)—The idea prevails among Washington's American league champions that someone is trying to undermine their morale.

Rumors of dissension in their ranks are denied flatly by the players. Earl Whitehill and Al Crowder, mound stars, insist there is no jealousy between them. Gossip of discord resulting from the tryout given young Cecil Travis, from the Chattanooga club, for the third base job long held by Ossie Bluege is been similarly answered.

GOODMEN SAYS GAME IS GOOD

Amateur Star to Leave Omaha Thursday for England

Omaha, Neb., April 7. (AP)—Confident his game is "much better" than last year, Johnny Goodman said tonight he will leave Omaha Thursday, bound for England and high adventure.

While the rest of golf's elite were grabbing the headlines with their play in winter tournaments, the national open champion remained at home, perfecting his strokes and saving his money. His steady winter play—much of it sub-par—over snowy fairways, he vouches, has prepared him amply for an ambitious summer program.

"For one thing," he said, "I am hitting longer drives. But best of all and I hope it stays awhile, my putting touch is the best I've ever had. I'm getting a lot of them down on the first try."

After his arrival in New York, Johnny plans to shoot a few practice rounds before embarking with the Walker cup squad April 21. He plans to compete in the British amateur meet, but not in the British open. He has no fear of becoming over-golfed before defending his open title at Merion, June 7-9. He would like also to bring the national amateur crown to Omaha.

"Over-golfed? No, sir, I never get enough golf, let alone too much," said the 24-year-old caddy.

Goodman's preparations for the Walker trip have been thoroughness personified. In addition to carrying the best of his own—and heavier clubs—he'll take 15 with him—he's bought a hat.

"They say the wind's cold so I'm taking a hat along to wear on the English courses."

ANOTHER WHITEWASH

Lakeland, Fla., April 7 (AP)—Detroit kept its minor league competition record clean today, blanking the Montreal Royals of the International League, 5 to 0.

Elon Hogsett and Tommy Bridges, pitching for Detroit, gave eight hits. The only time Montreal threatened was in the sixth inning just as Bridges went in. Before he was warmed up, they nicked him for three hits.

The Tigers hit and fielded well except for Clifton's error. Gerald Walker hit a homer in the fifth and Goslin and Schuble got triples. The Tigers touched Chad Kimsey, Royals' starting pitcher, for nine hits and four runs in four innings.

Red Wings and Hawks Resume Stanley Cup Playoff in Chicago

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—Detroit's Red Wings and the Chicago Black Hawks will collide tomorrow night in the third match of the finals for the Stanley cup, professional hockey's biggest prize—with the Hawks aiming to strike a finishing blow, and the Wings hoping to prolong the battle, if not win.

Primed with the unexpected margin of two straight triumphs, scored on Detroit ice over the National League champions, the Hawks were short-priced favorites to end the series and bring the old cup to Chicog for the first time. However, they had not forgotten that Detroit licked the vaunted Toronto Maple Leafs swice on the latter's sheet, only to be forced to the limit of five games to win the league championship.

Every seat in the Chicago stadium was sold even before the Hawks and Wings moved into Chicago. No standing room will be sold, but there will be a crowd of around 17,600 in their seats at faceoff time.

The Red Wings, who led the American division of the league and went on to conquer the Maple Leafs for the league title, have faded rapidly before the play of the Hawks. During the regular schedule Chicago was able to win only one match from Jack Adams' team. They managed a tie, but absorbed four thumpings. A change in style of play and the fact that they reached the peak of their game for the playoffs, have wiped out all of that.

The Wings battled into overtime before going down, 2 to 1, in the opening match of the series. In the second, however, the Hawks crashed through to a most convincing 4 to 1 triumph. If the Wings rally and turn in a victory tomorrow night, the fourth match will be played in the stadium Tuesday night, with the fifth, if necessary, at Detroit.

AND YANKS LOSE

Nashville, Tenn., April 7 (AP)—The Nashville "Vols," farm team of the New York Giants, today put an end to the New York Yankees exhibition game winning streak, defeating the American leaguers, 5 to 4.

It was the Vanks' first defeat in eight games.

The damage was done at the expense of Pitcher Johnny Allen, who was wild, with four of the six passes he issued materializing in runs.

The Southerners went to town in the fourth inning, where two singles, a double and a triple netted four runs.

SOLONS BEAT CLUBS

Chicago, April 7 (AP)—The crashing bats of Fred Schulte, Heinie Manush and Jonathan Stone, Washington's outfield trio, mixed with five errors by the Chicago Cubs, gave the American league champions an 8 to 3 victory today in the first of a two game series.

The Cubs, who compiled a team batting average of .321 against previous exhibition opponents, were almost helpless against the pitching of Earl Whitehill, whose southpawing gave the Senators their only World Series triumph last year. The Cubs located him for only two widely spaced singles in five innings. The National leaguers did all their scoring in the last two innings off Jack Russell.

STREAK BROKEN

Orlando, Fla., April 7 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers' winning streak was broken at four games today when they dropped a 6 to 5 decision to the St. Louis Browns in their final game at their spring training camp. The teams left here tonight for Jacksonville where they will resume the series tomorrow.

The Dodgers found Bump Hadley for four runs in the first inning but the Browns' veteran hurler then settled down.

Roy Beats Weitz, Kell Polished Oc Hans Ahl, Oshkosh

Roy Anderson of Gladstone and Milton Kell of Wilson won their fights on an amateur boxing program at Oshkosh Friday night, Anderson licking Mickey Weitz of Wisconsin and Kell polishing off Hans Ahl, Green Bay Golden Gloves champion, who hails from Oshkosh.

In defeating Weitz, Anderson knocked over a boy who holds a decision over Eddie Lick of Iron Mountain. Lick handed Roy's brother, Joe Anderson, a setback at Menominee after Joe had won a narrow decision over Lick at the Coliseum here last Winter.

Kell's victory over Ahl is a remarkable achievement for the former sailor. Ahl was considered by many critics as the most polished fighter in the Green Bay tournament, but Kell recently was released from the navy where he served a stretch on the Battleship New York. His friends predict a great career for the Wilson batter.

10% MARKUP IN PRICE ORDERED

Goods Can't Be Sold for Less Than 10% Above Purchase Price

Washington, April 6 (AP)—Under an order issued today by Hugh S. Johnson retailers, except grocers, and druggists, are barred from selling any goods for less than ten per cent more than their cost him.

The ten per cent is an allowance intended to cover, partially or completely the labor costs of a retail establishment, but not to represent any profit. Decree of the allowance by Johnson was previously fixed by the retail code, put into effect months ago.

Grocers already have been given a six per cent minimum allowance, and the figure for drug retailers has yet to be fixed.

The percentages are to be calculated on the actual net invoice cost of an article, less all discounts, or the replacement cost if the latter is lower.

The plan is part of intended protection for merchants who have complained of unfair competitive practices. Sales below the marked-up figure will be considered "loss leaders"—purchase inducements for customers, made up on other items—which the code forbids.

ONE CHANGE IN POSTED SCORES

Chicago Bowlers Tied at Bottom of List in Peoria Doubles

Peoria, Ill., April 7. (AP)—Only one change in the standings is for tenth in the doubles, rewarded the assaults on the ten pins at the American Bowling Congress tourney today.

Herbert Lange, who paid his way through the University of Wisconsin, with his bowling, and William Goldammer, both of Chicago, created a tie for the bottom position on the board in the two-man event by rolling up a 1269. Lange chalked up 1901 pins for nine games, just short of the prize. He had 668 in the doubles and 620 in the singles.

Frank Nigg, Cicero, Ill., led the attack in the singles with a 687 series, just lacking four pins of the board.

Following with a lighter barrage, keglers from Covington, Ky., Youngstown, O., Buffalo, N. Y., Kenosha, Wis., Detroit, Newport, Ky., and Milwaukee, also registered scores within the prize list range.

The Windy City also took second and highest honors of the day when Lee Calloway and Dick Winsberg, smashed 1250 in the doubles and Charles Levine cracked 677 in the singles.

Nick Robinson, Buffalo, N. Y., came through with a 660 series. Other high individual counts were by J. Greco, Kenosha, Wis., 653; Jack Bishop, Chicago, 651; Hans Nelson, Kenosha, 649; Jack Powell, Kenosha, 645; Joe Wilman, Chicago, 644; Wm. Heil, Cicero, Ill., 642; and F. Knarr, Newport, Ky., 639.

Two Detroit teams bounced the alleys clear for good doubles counts, Chet Slicey and Joe Green, marked up 1240 while Joe Paulus and Dick Kroll, members of the team of young rollers who starred yesterday, hit 1233. Ed Dilly and Wm. Heil, Covington, Ky., toppled 1225 maple sticks. Milwaukee entered another name onto the cash award list when Andy Bakula and Walt Starr, posted 1222.

The five man team event, with the Employers Mutuals, of Milwaukee, Wis., leading with 3032, ends tomorrow night. The doubles and singles and the tournament finish Monday.

Spiteful Women Jailed, Cologne

Cologne (AP)—Because of a deluge of denunciations concerning the fitness to hold office, a rigid investigation of all complaints has been ordered and the denunciators prosecuted if their charges were made through malice.

Many of the complaints were brought by women seeking to revenge themselves on men. Recently several divorced women were sentenced to terms of from six weeks to three months when their claims were found to have been based generally on spite motives.

The prosecutions are believed to have been ordered by Premier Hermann Goering. He was deluged by thousands of complaints, not all of which were well founded.

Steel Chiefs Fight Wagner Bill; Seek to Save Company Unions

Charles R. Hook

Ernest T. Weir

Arthur M. Young

An increasingly heavy drumfire of opposition to the Wagner bill to outlaw company unions was climaxed by testimony before the senate education and labor committee of steel executives against the measure. Charles A. Hook, left, president of American Rolling Mill at Middletown, O.; Ernest T. Weir, president of National Steel, center, and Arthur M. Young, right, vice president of U. S. Steel, are shown as they contended that the bill would destroy company unions even when employes preferred them, and turn the steel industry over to A. F. of L. domination.

Deer Still Live On Isle Royale, Says Minnesotan

Contrary to the general belief, some deer are still living in the interior wilderness of Isle Royale, according to a letter received by William H. Loutit, chairman of the state conservation commission, from D. Lange of St. Paul.

Mr. Lange, who is a former president of the Minnesota division of the Izaak Walton league, was one of a party who visited Isle Royale last season, and he states that a buck deer was seen by a member of the party. It is said to have been the first deer observed in years on the island.

It has been noted that in localities on the northern mainland shores of Lake Superior where moose are plentiful, deer are usually absent. On the other hand, moose are rarely seen in regions frequented by deer.

Mr. Lange is familiar with the habits of the beaver, and he believes that due to poaching, beavers are nearly extinct on Isle Royale. The island is about 50 miles long and 10 miles wide or more, and it would not be difficult for fur moonshiners to operate on some parts of the island without interference with the limited local conservation forces. The distance to the Canadian shore is only 20 miles or less, and poachers could come and go at night with comparatively small chance of detection.

"There is an enormous amount of beaver food on the island which can never be put to any other use, and it seems that there might well be a large beaver population there if it can be adequately protected," says Mr. Lange. "The state conservation interests cannot be blamed for the situation and no doubt they are doing the best they can, but it is comparatively easy for a clever thief to catch every beaver in a colony, and that is what the illicit trappers generally do. In my opinion the Isle Royale made possible for them to receive very efficient protection the whole year around."

Amid these developments, the chamber of commerce of the United States issued a statement crediting "many benefits" to code operation but warning aaginst adoption of arbitrary or bureaucratic methods; asking that in any extension of NRA both the licensing provision of the present law and the government's authority to impose codes be dropped.

"Less emphasis on economic reforms" and more attention to recovery was advised by the chamber.

Compliance directors, after the ten days, under the new procedure, will:

"The courts must not be swamped with poor cases," warned the administrator.

"It is only where the respondent has been communicated with and has shown no disposition to correct or adjust, that you should present the case to the district attorney with the request that he take appropriate action thereon," he said.

MRS. PINCHOT HEARD

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Abandonment of NRA principles to "build up the power and wealth of Wall Street" was charged to Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, today by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania.

The labor crusading wife of the governor appeared before the senate labor committee to urge favorable action on the Wagner bill to make permanent the national labor board and prohibit employer-dominated company unions.

"General Johnson," Mrs. Pinchot told the committee, "eager to build up the power and wealth of Wall Street, has done so at the expense of the worker and the consumer."

She said Johnson had "thrown down his arms" to big business.

OFFICERS SEEK LADY IN WHITE

Indianapolis, April 7 (AP) — The wraith-like appearance of a woman in white in the neighborhood of Bert F. Callahan's home perplexed police today as they continued to search for the slayer of the moderately wealthy 45 year old bachelor real estate dealer.

From apparently authentic sources officers received reports that the figure in white was seen near the Callahan residence on Thursday night. The body was found early Friday morning when a negro maid, noting blood stains on the porch, summoned police who forced an entrance. On the living room floor lay Callahan with a bullet wound in his heart and cuts on his knuckles, indicating he had engaged in a struggle with his slayer.

Lieut. Chester Butler of the state police told of being awakened late at night and from his room across the street from the Callahan home seeing the woman in white on the porch.

Employes at a tavern a block from the Callahan home told of having served a glass of beer at 10:30 p. m. Thursday to a young woman garbed in a white evening gown. She entered alone, drank her beer and departed, the tavern employes said.

Police said they were certain the slaying was committed by a man but nevertheless they believed the woman in white, if found, could give important information.

From close friends of Callahan officers were able to obtain little information. No one knew of any enemies or of any love affairs.

Robbery was advanced as the most likely motive, as a $2,000 diamond ring worn habitually by the victim was missing from his hand. A revolver kept in his home was gone also. He apparently had been shot with his own weapon.

Officers were still further confounded by the strange arrangement of the body. A towel had been tied about the body and an oriental rug from the luxuriously furnished house had been thrown across the chest.

Woman Campaigns To Avoid Being Put Back On Job

Hart, Mich., April 6 (AP)—A queer political campaign is Mrs. Myrtle E. Spitler's. She is seeking not to get a political job but to escape re-election to the one she now has.

She opened the campaign with a paid political advertisement in the home town newspaper asking that nobody vote for her. She said she had learned political supporters planned to "draft" her for re-election as Oceana county register of deeds despite her announced desire to retire.

She listed some "planks" for the non-re-election campaign, among them these:

That ten years is long enough to hold one political job; that she no longer needs the salary the position carries, and that anyway it would be nice for somebody else to have a chance at the salary.

Spiteful Women Jailed, Cologne

Cologne (AP)—Because of a deluge of denunciations concerning the fitness to hold office, a rigid investigation of all complaints has been ordered and the denunciators prosecuted if their charges were made through malice.

Many of the complaints were brought by women seeking to revenge themselves on men. Recently several divorced women were sentenced to terms of from six weeks to three months when their claims were found to have been based generally on spite motives.

The prosecutions are believed to have been ordered by Premier Hermann Goering. He was deluged by thousands of complaints, not all of which were well founded.

Steel Chiefs Fight Wagner Bill; Seek to Save Company Unions

Charles R. Hook

Arthur M. Young

An increasingly heavy drumfire of opposition to the Wagner bill to outlaw company unions was climaxed by testimony before the senate education and labor committee of steel executives against the measure. Charles A. Hook, left, president of American Rolling Mill at Middletown, O.; Ernest T Weir, president of National Steel, center, and Arthur M. Young, right, vice president of U. S. Steel, are shown as they contended that the bill would destroy company unions even when employes preferred them, and turn the steel industry over to A. F. of L. domination.

Deer Still Live On Isle Royale, Says Minnesotan

Contrary to the general belief, some deer are still living in the interior wilderness of Isle Royale, according to a letter received by William H. Loutit, chairman of the state conservation commission, from D. Lange of St. Paul.

Mr. Lange, who is a former president of the Minnesota division of the Izaak Walton league, was one of a party who visited Isle Royale last season, and he states that a buck deer was seen by a member of the party. It is said to have been the first deer observed in years on the island.

It has been noted that in localities on the northern mainland shores of Lake Superior where moose are plentiful, deer are usually absent. On the other hand, moose are rarely seen in regions frequented by deer.

Mr. Lange is familiar with the habits of the beaver, and he believes that due to poaching, beavers are nearly extinct on Isle Royale. The island is about 50 miles long and 10 miles wide or more, and it would not be difficult for fur moonshiners to operate on some parts of the island without interference with the limited local conservation forces. The distance to the Canadian shore is only 20 miles or less, and poachers could come and go at night with comparatively small chance of detection.

"There is an enormous amount of beaver food on the island which can never be put to any other use, and it seems that there might well be a large beaver population there if it can be adequately protected," says Mr. Lange. "The state conservation interests cannot be blamed for the situation and no doubt they are doing the best they can, but it is comparatively easy for a clever thief to catch every beaver in a colony, and that is what the illicit trappers generally do. In my opinion the Isle Royale beavers will be completely wiped out in a few years unless it is made possible for them to receive very efficient protection the whole year around."

its policy.

Amid these developments, the chamber of commerce of the United States issued a statement crediting "many benefits" to code operation but warning aaginst adoption of arbitrary or bureaucratic methods; asking that in any extension of NRA both the licensing provision of the present law and the government's authority to impose codes be dropped.

"Less emphasis on economic reforms" and more attention to recovery was advised by the chamber.

Compliance directors, after the ten days, under the new procedure, will:

Make reasonable efforts to adjust complaints of non-flagrant violations.

Send to Washington cases which appear capable of adjustment by headquarters intervention.

Tranfer to the district attorneys violations which defy settlement, together with a complete record of perinent facts, sending copies to Washington.

"The courts must not be swamped with poor cases," warned the administrator.

"It is only where the respondent has been communicated with and has shown no disposition to correct or adjust, that you should present the case to the district attorney with the request that he take appropriate action thereon," he said.

MRS. PINCHOT HEARD

Washington, April 7 (AP)—Abandonment of NRA principles to "build up the power and wealth of Wall Street" was charged to Hugh S. Johnson, the recovery administrator, today by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, wife of the governor of Pennsylvania.

The labor crusading wife of the governor appeared before the senate labor committee to urge favorable action on the Wagner bill to make permanent the national labor board and prohibit employer-dominated company unions.

"General Johnson," Mrs. Pinchot told the committee, "eager to build up the power and wealth of Wall Street, has done so at the expense of the worker and the consumer."

She said Johnson had "thrown down his arms" to big business.

(AP)—The condition of Miss Rosalie Swagerle, 17, of Peru, Ind., who was injured several weeks ago in an automobile accident, was described as "alarming" Saturday by attendants at Wade Memorial hospital. With the exception of one and a half hours in which she opened her eyes but could not speak, she has been unconscious for 500 hours.

Indianapolis, April 7 (AP) — The wraith-like appearance of a woman in white in the neighborhood of Bert F. Callahan's home perplexed police today as they continued to search for the slayer of the moderately wealthy 45 year old bachelor real estate dealer.

From apparently authentic sources officers received reports that the figure in white was seen near the Callahan residence on Thursday night. The body was found early Friday morning when a negro maid, noting blood stains on the porch, summoned police who forced an entrance. On the living room floor lay Callahan with a bullet wound in his heart and cuts on his knuckles, indicating he had engaged in a struggle with his slayer.

Lieut. Chester Butler of the state police told of being awakened late at night and from his room across the street from the Callahan home seeing the woman in white on the porch.

Employes at a tavern a block from the Callahan home told of having served a glass of beer at 10:30 p. m. Thursday to a young woman garbed in a white evening gown. She entered alone, drank her beer and departed, the tavern employes said.

Police said they were certain the slaying was committed by a man but nevertheless they believed the woman in white, if found, could give important information.

From close friends of Callahan officers were able to obtain little information. No one knew of any enemies or of any love affairs.

Robbery was advanced as the most likely motive, as a $2,000 diamond ring worn habitually by the victim was missing from his hand. A revolver kept in his home was gone also. He apparently had been shot with his own weapon.

Officers were still further confounded by the strange arrangement of the body. A towel had been tied about the body and an oriental rug from the luxuriously furnished house had been thrown across the chest.

Woman Campaigns To Avoid Being Put Back On Job

Hart, Mich., April 6 (AP)—A queer political campaign is Mrs. Myrtle E. Spitler's. She is seeking not to get a political job but to escape re-election to the one she now has.

She opened the campaign with a paid political advertisement in the home town newspaper asking that nobody vote for her. She said she had learned political supporters planned to "draft" her for re-election as Oceana county register of deeds despite her announced desire to retire.

She listed some "planks" for the non-re-election campaign, among them these:

That ten years is long enough to hold one political job; that she no longer needs the salary the position carries, and that anyway it would be nice for somebody else to have a chance at the salary.

BUREAU'S FINANCES ARE IMPROVED

ANNOUNCEMENT that the Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has been able to drastically improve its financial position during the most critical period of its 23 years of history and at the same time discharge its fundamental functions in behalf of section of Michigan, neglected and unappreciated until the bureau came into being, will be cheering news to a lot of people.

By cutting overhead expenditures to the bone and curtailing all but its most important activities, officers of the bureau, it was revealed at Marquette on Friday, have been able to reduce an indebtedness of approximately $15,000, accumulated over a long period of years, to an amount less than $5,000 and the budget planned for the remainder of this year, contemplates the wiping out of all indebtedness by Jan. 1, 1935.

Through a state appropriation engineered through the legislature by Gov. William A. Comstock, under which the development bureau will receive $10,000 this year, if the bureau itself can raise $2500 for advertising the peninsula and its summer tourist attractions, bureau officials have announced that every prospect is offered that a sizable advertising campaign can be conducted and by continued vigilance over other expenditures, the present year can be closed with all debts paid up and a cash balance remaining in the treasury.

The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has fully justified itself in the minds of all thinking people of the peninsula, by its accomplishments, in behalf of this section of Michigan and its people, in the 23 years covered by its history. For nearly a quarter of a century every worthwhile movement for the advancement of the interests of the peninsula has been sponsored by the development bureau. It has furnished a common ground for effort by forward looking citizens for the common good of Hiawathaland and its people. It is the development bureau that in season and out of season for many years has advertised the summer tourist advantages of this section of Michigan, to finally place summer tourist patronage as the most important asset possessed by the peninsula. Above all else the development bureau has served as the vehicle for the expression of the wants and the desires of the people of an isolated and detachable section, to officials at Lansing and at Washington, in the collective voice that could be and has been heard, where the voice of individual counties and communities would have been but a whisper. The Upper Peninsula Development Bureau has now proven its ability to function in adversity as well as in prosperity and its continued support by the people of the peninsula in measure with their ability under present economic conditions, is all that is asked or expected by officials of the organization.

GREEN COMING NORTH

ANNOUNCEMENT that Ex-Governor Fred W. Green, of Michigan will join Col. Frank Knox, of Chicago in addressing Republicans of the peninsula at Ishpeming on Saturday evening of this week, should make that meeting the largest political gathering ever held in this section of the state. No governor in all the history of Michigan displayed a more practical interest in the welfare and advancement of the peninsula than did Governor Green. The people of this section of the state have not forgotten the recognition they enjoyed or the favors that were extended during his administration and the announcement that he is to discuss state issues at the Ishpeming meeting, will attract a tremendous crowd of his friends and admirers.

Col. Knox will discuss national issues at the coming meeting and his ability as well as his knowledge of national affairs have been tellingly demonstrated in recent weeks by addresses delivered by him at Indianapolis, Kansas City, and Boston.

Members of the committee in charge of the upper peninsula Republican get-together meeting are to be congratulated upon their success in providing for party followers a program that will be featured by the appearance of two such outstanding men as speakers of the evening.

PWA REJECTS "SAN"

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made by the Public Works Administration in Washington that the application of the board of trustees of Pinecrest Sanatorium for a $300,000 loan cannot be granted at this time, due to the fact that consideration is now being given only to projects sponsored by municipalities. Until Congress makes an additional grant of funds for public works projects, it is likely that the Pinecrest Sanatorium project will remain moribund as far as federal aid is concerned.

Hope has been expressed that the greatly needed addition to Pinecrest Sanatorium might be realized with the passage of the $38,000,000 Michigan public works measure into law, it provided that a sum of $590,000 be allocated for the construction of a sanatorium in the upper peninsula, on a site to be selected by the tuberculosis sanatorium commission, if in the judgment of the commission such a sanatorium is needed.

There is no question that additional sanatorium facilities are a dire necessity in the upper peninsula, for a survey made some time ago has indicated that the death rate from tuberculosis in this region is above that prevailing in lower Michigan.

It is pointed out by some that the $590,000, allocated under the state public works bond issue proposal, could be used advantageously in building additions to the strategically-located sanatoria at Powers and Marquette. Such a procedure would be economically wiser than to construct an entirely new plant at some other point, thereby increasing the cost of maintenance and operation.

Of course, such plans can scarcely be discussed satisfactorily until it is determined whether Michigan's gigantic public works program will be launched. All this depends upon a favorable vote of the people at the special election to be held April 30.

CARNEY ANNOUNCES

CLAUDE S. CARNEY, chairman of the state department of labor and industry, is the first Democrat to definitely announce himself as seeking the nomination for United States senator.

Carney, who hails from Kalamazoo, sought the Democratic nomination for governor in 1932, but was defeated in the primary election by Governor Comstock. Although he was later appointed to the office of labor commissioner by Comstock, it is understood that he is lacking administration support in his new political venture.

Since Carney, although obviously a self-starter, is the first to throw his hat in the ring, he will have a certain strategic advantage. It is possible that the Democratic organization may eventually lend its support to his candidacy, rather than invite others to get into the race, thereby developing a bitter contest that might prove detrimental to the party's interests.

If all the Democrats who have been mentioned as senate possibilities make up their minds to enter the race it will be a grand free-for-all, in which many heads will be bumped. Among those whose names have been in the limelight are: Arthur Lacy, Detroit; Edmund C. Shields, Ann Arbor; Martin R. Bradley, Hermansville; M. S. Pittman, Ypsilanti; Congressman George Foulkes, Hartford; Congressman Michael Hart, Saginaw; Frank A. Picard, Saginaw; and Frank Murphy, now governor-general of the Philippines.

For a time, Auditor General John K. Stack Jr. loomed as a possible senatorial candidate, but the Escanaba man is reported to have his mind set on the governorship. Governor Comstock already has announced his candidacy for relection. The fiery auditor general definitely broke with the administration several weeks ago, and rumors emanating out of Lansing and Detroit indicate that an announcement of his political plans will be forthcoming soon.

25 YEARS SERVICE

REV. DAVID L. CATHCART of Escanaba has gone to Chicago to conduct a series of services in celebration of his 25 years of service as a missionary of the American Sunday School Union.

The Escanaba clergyman first began his missionary work in the mining camps of southern Illinois, and came to the upper peninsula in 1920 to organize Sunday schools in the isolated rural communities and also to preach in the logging camps.

As a lumber camp "sky pilot," however, his work was short-lived, he explained recently. Only for a couple year after his arrival here did he conduct religious services in the camps. The reason for the departure of the old-time "sky pilot" is that lumbering methods have changed, along with the new social and economic conditions. No longer are there the large camps, with from 150 to 250 men employed, since most of the getting out of timber is done by small jobbers.

The automobile and improved highways also have made the services of the "sky pilot" no longer so necessary. The woodsmen usually spend the week-ends with their families in the city and villages outside of the forest areas, enabling them to attend services at their own churches.

The "sky-pilot," like the old-time lumberjack, may be classed along with the other types of pioneer Americans, who no longer appear in the modern scene.

CHAPTER XXXIII

The gossip about Juanito and Estelle finally reached Lottie. "I'll spoil her face!" she promised shrilly as she stood, arms akimbo, looking down at Beau who lounged in a deep wicker chair.

"Aw, show a little sense!"

"It means we'll be kicked outa here," Lottie said craftily. That might reach Beau, she thought.

"A lot you're worryin' about that!" he commented. "Kid," he said easily, "we got our rake-off. I know how you feel about him, Lottie, but he don't lean your way an' that's all there is to it. You might as well make up your mind about it. It ain't your fault an' it ain't his."

"I'll kill that girl!"

"Now don't talk crazy! You got enough to keep you the rest of your days—with what you can pick up easy. You don't wanta go knifin' anyone—"

"Don't I?"

"Aw, have some sense!" he advised again, much tried and showing it.

Marcia sat by Estelle's bed. The girl had suddenly become ill when she heard Marcia planned to go to the fight at La Miraflores. She had asked Marcia to stay with her. Marcia had stayed, but she had also done some wondering.

She knew that Estelle was only pretending to be sick. Estelle had recently shown little desire for Marcia's company. She had been an irreproachable hostess but Marcia had sensed the fact that Estelle did not like her.

Well, in time she'd find out what it meant, Marcia decided. Meantime—

"Shall I read to you, dear?" she asked.

Estelle said that would be very nice. As Marcia hunted for the book Estelle added, "I hate to think of your going Monday—it is Monday, isn't it?"

Marcia smiled. Quite obviously the child wanted her out of the way.

"I might stop a bit longer," she said with hidden malice, "if someone begged me—very prettily!"

She saw Estelle swallow hard at that. "Now what's up?" Marcia asked herself. "What in the world—?"

Jim Field recognized Juanito as Pablito, the boy who had run his boats, but he had no intention of mentioning the fact. He had won heavily on Juanito. "Ted Jeffries was no good anyway." Field thought as he rode home through the darkness, the scents and moving air that make a moonless Cuban night.

No, he would not give Pablito away. But before the passage of an hour he had put a codicil to this decision.

Carlito was in the hall with a letter in his hand as Field entered. Carlito showed his surprise and made the mistake of holding the letter behind him.

"What have you there?" Field demanded.

"Nothing, Sir."

"Let me see it."

"It is—a letter from the sweetheart of one of the servants. I take it to him."

"I said let me see it!"

Carlito answered bravely. "Mr. Field, it is a letter from a lady—"

"Do you want me to knock you down?"

Carlito felt Field's strong, blunt fingers tighten on his arm. A moment and the letter was in those same fingers.

"A letter from one of the servants—addressed to my daughter!" Field sneered as he slit the envelop. He drew forth the folded sheet beginning, "My own dearest," and ending, "Juanito."

Field laughed. "God!" he exclaimed, "this is a find! And I thought she was mild as milk!"

The letter still in his hand, he pounded up the stairs and made his way, without knocking, into his daughter's room. She was in her night things and a negligee, standing by a window. Field smiled on her with that smile he always gave those wholly within his power.

"I have a letter that is directed to you," he said and his sense of strength was increased by her sudden palor.

"How long has this been going on—and just how far has it gone?" he continued.

Estelle did not pretend to misunderstand. Field's keen, sly eyes followed her. He heard her say in the dry, faltering way of those who are badly frightened, "I love him as I never thought I could love anyone—"

"Ah!" he murmured. "Sit down. We must have a little talk."

Trembling, she settled in a low chair and he dropped to one that faced it. She wished, shrinking, that he was not so near. Then he laughed suddenly, elated by the feeling that she was, after all, his daughter. He himself had not been too particular in his gayest years. Here was the same streak in her; the streak that could let her love a prize fighter, a murderer and a thief.

"You little devil!" he commented. "Well, I understand all this but I won't have it! How far has it gone? Where have you been meeting him?"

"Usually at the park and the Cathedral——"

He guffawed. "You'll do better next time," he prophesied, "but next time it will be harder, too! I'm going to have you watched. Understand? And—I won't have this! I have other plans for you."

He sat back. "Estelle," he said, "I recognized Juanito tonight. Juanito!"

She lost even more color.

"I'm going to turn him over to the police if you ever see him again. That's all. Otherwise he can go his damned way without any interference from me. Is that clear?"

"But he didn't do it, Father—!

He smiled and raised his bushy eyebrows. "I don't care whether he did or not. I said I have other plans for you. And I also said that if you see him again I'll turn him over to the police who are still looking for him. Do you understand me?"

"Yes."

"Do you agree?"

"No."

He started, leaning forward. "Why not?"

"I love him so!"

"Is that all?"

"What else?" she questioned with a little surprise. He relaxed, smiling once more.

"Well," he said slowly, "if you can't give him up I can inform the authorities and let justice take its course. That will mean that your Juanito will go to prison for life—if he's lucky. Otherwise he'll sleep a few nights in the Death House and then—" He paused to search his pockets for a cigaret case, finds it and lights a cigaret. "I've always wondered," he went on, "whether the method they use is quite merciful. It sometimes takes three turns of the switch or button—whatever it is—to kill a man. Have a cigaret, child."

"No."

"The young man's life is in your hands, Estelle. He hasn't a chance if I turn him over to the police. And he couldn't hide again. I shall have him watched until you tell me that I do not need to. It's for you to decide."

She began to speak as he had known she would, to beg his mercy. She was still amazingly young, he thought, as he heard her. Her voice blurred, shook, broke as she repeated her petitions.

"All this is interesting," he commented as she paused, breathing hard and shaking. "Interesting but not convincing. If you see him again I'll send him to life imprisonment or death. Have you ever known me to break my word?"

She made no answer.

Field took out his watch. "I shall give you," he said, looking at the watch, "five minutes in which to decide."

He whistled a waltz tune that was being played at the cafes. The girl sat before him, her stricken eyes on his, her tense hands gripping the arms of the chair.

ALL RIGHTIE

I hear her on the telephone.
Behind the counter sometimes meet her.
And yet, though saccharine her tone,
As sweet as sugar, often sweeter,
Of all the folk who come and go,
The one I really would indictie
Is some sweet thing I do not know
Who dares to answer me "All rightie."

I try to telephone some man
About some goods he'd like to sell me.
Say, "Please connect me, if you can."
Then what does that fair maiden tell me?
Another house has lost a sale
Because I'm mad enough to fightie.
Yet some men wonder why they fail
Who have a girl who says, "All rightie."

I know I'd be a man of peace,
I would if clerks and operators
Would only please desist and cease
From stirring up my inner craters.
Alas, I know instead that I
Shall run around some day and bitie
The maid who gives me that reply,
Though she's all right, except "All Rightie."

Bounty System Recommended For Those Who Dip-Net Smelt

Well I have undertook to look into this Smelts fishing sitsuation for you and will now give you the real Low down dope from first hand infomation Gathered by myself on the scene of the action

And after considerable personal questioning amongst the net Dippers theirselfs I have reached the following concluseions why it is they do not get licenst to take out smelts

1st—They do not consider net dipping is fishing

2st—They do not consider Smelts is fish

3st—They do not like to eat Smelts

4st—They do not have the 50c

So from what I can gather on the sitsuation I would say that instead of put fine on those which net dip for Smelts I would say they should pay them a bounty of so much per bushel or so much per truck load and have the coasevation officers punch a hole with a ticket punch in the tails of each smelt which was caught so that the fishermens could not cheat and collect bounty twicet on the same Smelt they same way they use to do with Wolfs and this would be fair to all concerned and those which catch Smelts by the truck load and still do not like to eat them could get some thing out of consevation officers by Bounty and then use them for Fertillizar meaning the Smelts or elst have a closed season on Smelts instead of breaking up their Familys every spring

Now some folks a thrill and a
Lark
And some fun seem to be getting
From Going to fish after dark
And Trying luck at Smelts netting

A smelt can be felt but not
smellt
And often you get a good wetting
When ice of the stream start to
Melt
I never seen sport in Smelt netting

'Now What Are We Going to Argue About?'

Michigan In Washington

(By The Associated Press)

From Capitol Hill come increasing rumors that Emil Hurja, who came to Washington from Crystal Falls, Mich., to play an important role in the new administration, is going to direct the next national campaign for the Democrats.

Hurja, who first was closely allied with Postmaster General James A. Farley, has more recently been connected with the administration of Secretary Ickes in the public works section. The capitol reports now say he is preparing to leave that department and that the indications are he will return to Democratic national headquarters.

The possibility has added to the increasing interest in the Democratic nomination in Michigan of a candidate to seek the seat now held by Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, Republican, who already has made his formal bid for renomination.

Although Frank Murphy, who quit as mayor of Detroit to become governor-general of the Philippine Islands has repeatedly denied that he will return to his home state to make the race for the senatorship himself, there remains a possibility that he will come back to take the stump throughout the state for the nominee.

Michigan Democrats believe Murphy could help make the campaign a spirited one and that he would wield some influence by personal appearances.

Representative Michael J. Hart of Saginaw, who is by a short space the oldest Democratic Michigan member of the house in point of service, still refuses to say whether he will be a candidate, and has indicated strongly that if he is he will not make a formal announcement in advance of the time for nomination.

Arthur J. Lacy of Detroit came into the picture a few days ago when he was in Washington, and friends urged him to consider making the race for senator or to seek the gubernatorial nomination. Lacy was reluctant to discuss his plans, however.

Woodruff Is Prominent

Representative Roy O. Woodruff of Bay City has been one of the most conspicuous participants in debate on the Republican side of the house recently, twice attacking the administration's proposals, and rising frequently in spirited debate over the sugar program.

Woodruff denounced the tariff bill in a lengthy address in which he characterized it as "abandonment of the last vestige of the power of congress under the constitution." He assailed the sugar bill as one that was designed to "wreck the American sugar beet industry."

Prospects for a restoration of airmail service in Michigan have been brightened considerably by Harlee Branch, second assistant postmaster general, who holds out hope that permanent service from Detroit by way of Lansing, Grand Rapids and Muskegon to Milwaukee may be resumed permanently.

Michigan is characterized by its representatives here as being virtually off the air mail map, with only a "relay" from Toledo to Detroit, which has not been serving the remainder of the state.

Who'll Get Job?

The Democrats are still unable to hazard a good guess as to the probable appointee for collector of customs for the port of Detroit.

One of the Michigan newcomers in the house apparently is going to be opposed for renomination by his former secretary. Representative John D. Dingell of Detroit, said he understood that Horace Thurber, who came to Washington with him as his secretary a year ago, is planning to enter the race.

Dingell has made it no secret that the parting of the ways by himself and Thurber was not an amicable one, and he added that he was not "worried" about his opponent. Dingell defeated Charles Bowles, former mayor of Detroit, in the fall election of 1932.

The New York Telephone Co. reports a net gain of 4,781 stations in March, contrasting with a net loss of 13,163 installations in March, 1933. The net increase for the first quarter of this year was 6,711 compared with a loss of 56,542 a year ago.

Although three days have elapsed since Monday's election, no returns have yet been received at the county clerk's office from Fairbanks township, one of the most isolated sections of the county. Masonville, Garden and Nahma townships finally filed their belated returns yesterday but the Fairbanks vote is still missing from the tabulation and County Clerk Semer is becoming concerned over the delay.

An active Mothers club organization, sponsored by the Escanaba Womans club, was organized yesterday at the Webster school, with the following officers: Mrs. Carl Johnson, president; Mrs. W. D. Mooney, vice president; Mrs. A. S. Kitchen, secretary and Mrs. Ira Nelson, treasurer. An effort will be made to organize similar clubs among the mothers of pupils in all the public schools of the city.

Returns filed with the county clerk yesterday showed that Ex-Supervisor Reuben Young, of Rapid River staged a comeback at Monday's election, defeating Supervisor Levi Barboo 142 to 109. In Garden township Supervisor Wesley Gray defeated George Marsil by a vote of 132 to 85.

Deputy State Game Warden Herman Leisner has returned to the city after killing a pack of five deer hounds at the Weston Lumber Company's camp, seven miles north of Watson.

By a vote of 146 to 59 the people of Garden township voted on Monday to issue bonds of the township for the purchase of the Van's Harbor Land & Lumber Company's railroad, extending from Van's Harbor to Cook's mills.

Breaking all records for previousness and displaying the first real sign of spring a well known Escanaba young man appeared on Ludington street yesterday wearing a straw hat. Last year the first straw hat appeared here on April 15.

County Dirt Shovel Damaged by Flames

Fire of incendiary origin Friday evening damaged a gasoline dirt shovel, the property of the Schoolcraft County Road Commission, stationed at a dirt pit along the old route of Highway US-2 near its junction with Lake Shore Drive about two miles east of the city limits. It is believed that gasoline thieves who had punctured a hole in the bottom of the tank about as large as one's finger, deliberately started the blaze which soon enveloped the shovel in flames and vividly lighted the immediate vicinity.

The county fire truck answered the call at 7:10 p. m. Because of the constant flow of gasoline, the firemen found it impossible to extinguish the blaze with chemicals, and the blaze continued for about twenty minutes until the gasoline supply was exhausted. The intense heat and flame kept fire fighters from an attempt to cut off the tank or plug up the opening.

The extent of the damage to the shovel is not known, although the motor is believed to be in running condition. No insurance was carried on the piece of equipment.

Frank Wharfield To Open Tourist Bureau Tomorrow

Announcement was made yesterday by Frank Wharfield, veteran tourist guide, that he will open his tourist information bureau, corner of Deer and Chippewa avenue, tomorrow, weather permitting. It will be the ninth annual campaign in which Frank will attempt to satisfy tourists' questions, send them on their routes, and guide them to beauty spots in the neighboring vicinity.

Mr. Wharfield, a pioneer of these parts who knows every lake, stream, and resort within a hundred mile radius of the city, always tries to keep the tourist in Manistique as long as possible by inducing them to spend several days or longer looking over the scenic beauties in this vicinity. He can cite numerous instances in which he has persuaded tourists to remain here after they had asked for directions to Sault Ste. Marie, St. Ignace, and other places.

He recounts an incidence of this nature which occurred last summer when two couples from the south drove through here on their way to Sault Ste. Marie. Learning that they were merely on a pleasure jaunt and in no hurry to reach their destination, Frank "sold" them on the beauty spots of this vicinity.

The women in the party had never seen a log cabin. Spotting a photo of one in Frank's office, they inquired as to how far they would have to go to see it. It happened that this particular cabin was situated at Indian lake and when the party was told that it was only three miles distant, they immediately went to see it. They were so attracted by the cabin and the beauties of Indian lake that they decided to spend a few days there.

Every other day, they came to Frank's bureau and inquired of various trips which they might take. They were directed to the several lakes north of here on M-94, to the sand dunes near Grand Marais, Blaney Park, the Big Spring, etc., from where they would return each night. The group finally left two weeks later, enthusiastic over the scenery and game afforded by this region. It was only one of many instances where tourists who would have only "passed through," were prevailed upon to stay and become acquainted with the many opportunities for healthful recreation which this vicinity affords.

As an added attraction, Captain Frank, will have on display in his tourist information bureau, a stuffed freak animal which he calls "The Tiger," although it really is non-descript. The animal has one huge eye in the center of its head, two pair of ears, a snoot and tail resembling those of a dog, and four different kinds of feet.

BY JOHN L. COOLEY
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—The sight-seeing congressmen who spent half an hour in the stock exchange visitors' gallery today saw a quiet, routine market. Final changes for stocks, mostly of the fractional variety, averaged into a small net loss, while transactions, amounting to only 549,020 shares, represented the smallest Saturday business in three months.

Bonds were quiet also, although their advance, which featured the week's security dealings, made another new high on the basis of the closing composite. Commodities fluctuated narrowly, except for rye which extended its recent gains. Numerous preferred stocks continued to attract buyers.

A few stocks escaped from the narrow groove which bounded movements of the usual leaders. American Telephone ran into some selling, presumably a reflection of the Splawn report's recommendation of a thorough inquiry into communication company affairs; at the worst it was off a point and a half. Allied Chemical sagged 2. Otherwise the larger changes were mostly made by inactives.

CHICAGO GRAIN
Chicago, April 7—Fireworks in the rye market today gave quotations for that grain an upward whirl to almost 5 cents a bushel higher than yesterday's bottom figures.

The apex today for rye values followed orders from Washington that seven big shipments of rye from Poland be shut out from landing in the United States pending investigation to determine whether the grain was subject to added duties under the anti-dumping clause of the United States tariff act. Further impetus to rye market upturns came from an authoritative estimate that the condition of the 1934 domestic crop of rye is only 65.1, breaking the low point record.

Rye closed unsettled at a fraction under the top prices reached but 1 1-8 to 1 5-8 above yesterday's finish, wheat unchanged to ½ higher, corn 1-8 to ½ up, oats 1-8 to ¼ advanced, and provisions varying from 20 cents decline to a rise of 2 cents.

A maximum gain of exactly 2 cents a bushel today was scored for rye, with the effect however not confined to that cereal but helping to turn all grains from early weakness to comparative strength.

Upturns of wheat prices in response to strength of rye were a good deal hindered because of some selling of wheat at Kansas City to be delivered in Chicago. Something of an offset, however, to Kansas City sales of wheat to come here was prospective silver legislation at Washington. Better shipping demand for corn helped impart firmness to corn and oats.

Provisions were steadied by upturns of grains.

x—New 1934 highs.

BY VICTOR EUBANK
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—Bonds continued to record "new highs" today although most advances were modest and trading relatively quiet.

The average for 60 domestic corporate issues held a net gain of two-tenths of a point at 86.3. On the week this average was up 1.4 points at another peak since 1931. Transfers totaled $8,174,000, par value.

U. S. government securities displayed minor irregularities, but the turnover here amounted to only about $400,000. The called Liberty fourth 4¼s were the most active at a decline of 2-32nds of a point. Liberty 3½s and the uncalled 4¼s were up as much. Most of the treasury loans were a trifle easier.

Mild Demand For Gold Mine Shares Is Curb Feature

BY BERNARD S. O'HARA
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

New York, April 7 (AP)—A mild demand for gold mining shares provided the lone feature in the curb trading today. Other parts of the list were dull and changes extremely narrow.

Hiram Walker lost a small fraction while other liquor shares were inactive. Leading oils including Gulf and Humble Oils closed virtually unchanged. Commonwealth Edison rose a point in a small transfer but Electric Bond and Share and American Gas & Electric were a shade lower.

Hollinger Gold and Hudson Bay Mining advanced a point or so each while fractional improvement was shown by Lake Shore and Wright Hargreaves. Newmont yielded slightly. Greyhound corporation, actively higher yesterday, ended about steady. Swift & Company and Schiff Company were moderately firm.

Total transfers approximated 156,000 shares, compared with 188,000 shares last Saturday.

CIVILIAN CORPS TAKES HONORS

Two Outstanding Camps Of Nation In This Forest Area

"Two of the nine outstanding Civilian Conservation Corps Companies in the United States are found in this National Forest Region, according to selections just announced," said Regional Forester E. W. Tinker. One of the companies is located at the State "Douglas" camp, camp Douglas, Wisconsin and the other occupies the Federal "Good Harbor" camp in the Superior National Forest near Grand Marais, Minnesota.

The competition was conducted by the War Department with the approval of Robert Fechner, Director of Emergency Conservation Work. The selections were made, one in each of nine Corps Areas, as the result of a series of inspections of camp locations and layouts, leadership ability of the officers, morale of the enrollees, facilities, food, and work accomplished for the technical services.

In choosing the winning companies, 100 points were given to leadership and initiative, 300 points to camp administration and operation and 600 points to work accomplished. Company Commanders, Lieutenant Maurice L. Moore of the State camp and Captain Allen Anderson of the Federal camp will receive the Army and Navy Journal gold medals. Silver buttons from the same source will be presented to the subordinate officers of both camps and the C. C. C. enrollees and Army enlisted men will receive bronze buttons.

The Camp Superintendents, largely responsible for the work accomplishments, are W. H. Magie for the "Good Harbor" camp and Leif Steiro for the "Douglas" camp. At the latter the C. C. C. boys have had some fires to fight this year and have done trail-side clearing for fire prevention, forest stand improvement and some road work.

"Work at "Good Harbor" included fire hazard reduction, timber stand improvement, truck trails, public camp ground clearing, planting, rodent control and surveys," concluded Mr. Tinker.

Path Cleared For Payment Of Taxes

Minneapolis, April 6 (AP)—Riot or no riot, the city's taxes must be paid.

As police battled 6,000 unemployed rioters at the courthouse today, one Minneapolitan fought his way through the mob and protested to police barring him and "not allowing an honest citizen to pay his taxes."

Shown his tax statement and a roll of currency, police finally escorted him through a haze of tear gas to the city assessor's office.

THEATRES

Clark Gable and Jean Harlow, platinum blonde charmer of the screen, are seen together for the second time in their careers in "Red Dust," sensuous drama of Indo-China, which heads the program at the Rialto Theatre for the next several days.

Miss Harlow played opposite Gable in one of his first important pictures, "The Secret Six." Since then, both have been catapulted to major fame. She recently changed the color of her tresses for "The Red Headed Woman," and Gable scored an outstanding hit in "Strange Interlude."

Second Feature
By popular request, "She Done Him Wrong," featuring the well rounded performance of Mae West, has been brought here again and will be shown as a second feature. It is a lusty, roaring story of the Bowery, with its saloons and honkytonks, its tough men and bejeweled women.

Phyllis LaPine To Take School Census

Miss Phyllis LaPine has again been chosen by the Gladstone board of education to take the school census in this city. This will be the third year that Miss LaPine has had charge of the work which is done annually in connection with the distribution of primary school money. All persons in the city between the ages of five and twenty are included in the census. Last year there were 1704 listed. It will probably be two or three weeks before the work is started.
